Introduction.

THE KANSAS CYCLONE is about to sweep down upon the students and friends of the Kansas State University. And lest the reader, frightened by its threatening title page, be rudely driven from our door, we beg him lay aside a Kansan's fear, while we introduce what we hope may yet prove his jolliest companion.

The students have long felt the need of some organ other than the yearly catalogue and monthly magazines, by which college life as seen through students' eyes might be gleaned and chronicled for the public.

Accordingly last year a company was formed, and determining to represent all interests, both socially and politically, marshalled its chosen band to the vociferous cantations of a Screech Owl; the result of which was the ever memorable Kansas Kikkabe.

With due reverence for the departed, let us say "It was a success." But notwithstanding the rumors of an overflowing treasury, and the honored trophies of the fight—alas, in the very bloom of youth it sickened and died. And although triumphant in life, in death it failed to soothe the bleeding heart of its common foe.

Life once joyous and gay now assumed a dark and gloomy hue. And some said that life without an Annual was not worth the living. The organization of a new company was suggested, but Greek met Greek with defiance in his eyes, and the "base schemer" quietly withdrew.

But "every cloud has a silver lining." And just as the fond hope of getting even with the "Profs" seemed fading away, a "Soph" of unheard-of-fame rushed boldly to the front and from the very precipice of his ambition, proclaimed that he alone would become the avenger of this people.

A proposition was sent to each society stating that if each would elect an editor, he would lead the van to an easy victory; and now, without constitution or by-laws, they have seized upon chaos and forged this deadly thing.

It remains to be said that the "calm before the storm" has left the sky of investigation so exceedingly "clear and peaceful" as to render it no light task to fill the storm with Nature's precious truths.

But to our beloved legislature, and all who know us not but think they do, we say—

Feast your eyes upon our frontispiece,
Then hide your blushing face for shame,
For they are ours—the noble few—
Who bear the honor of our name.

By the students and friends of the University, the full-page photograph of the Class of '83 will be received with delight. For we are proud of these bright stars who now go forth to labor for the interests of our fair State.

And now the deed is done. Conscious of its imperfections, we ask you, mindful of the attendant trials and difficulties, to receive this—the reward of our labors.

KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY.

Kansas State University.

"Kansas sunflowers," "Kansas mud," "Kansas drouths" and "Kansas grasshoppers" are expressions of national use. Expressions that have ever carried with them feelings of distrust with reference to the future welfare of our beloved state.

To overcome these impressions and to build up a commonwealth of truth loving, law-abiding citizens, was always the aim of those who early made their homes upon our broad, rolling prairies. But they did not consider material wealth the only thing essential to our success, for, at an early date, they commenced building churches, school houses and colleges.

As a result of their labors, Kansas ranks to-day among the first states of the Union—viewed from an agricultural standpoint—while her educational system compares favorably with that of any other state. It admits of one's passing from the alpha of a practical, to the omega of a higher education.

Kansas, though she cannot count her colleges by the dozen, points with pride to the work the few are doing. But it is with a special pride that she dwells upon the merits of an institution entirely her own; one which she erected, which she sustains, and of which she is expecting so much, the

UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS.

It was not till '63 that any action was taken upon the part of the State with reference to the establishment of educational institutions, but in that year—Congress having previously set apart seventy sections of land for the support of a State University—the Legislature accepted a proposition made by the city of Lawrence, and established, in the place of the "Lawrence University," the University of Kansas.

The locating of the University at Lawrence was a wise move upon the part of the Legislature. No city in the State is so well suited for a college as Lawrence. It is healthfully situated, rich in the memories of the past, surrounded by a moral and intelligent people, and is blessed with a society beyond reproach. Its location with reference to the states and territories of the West and the large cities along the Missouri river, is destined to make it the educational center of the Interior.

Lawrence is pre-eminently a literary town. To visit it is refreshing, after having listened to the eternal din of business life in some of the neighboring cities. Its people are friendly to the student and gladly welcome him to their city. He is admitted into both social and church circles, and aided in many other ways. The Lawrence Business College—the best institution of the kind west of the Mississippi—affords students attending college a chance of obtaining some special knowledge that will aid them in working their way through school. The City Library, together with the reading-room of the Y. M. C. A., furnish the best books and periodicals of the day, which are always accessible to the university student.

As for the University itself, it is known by its growth and work. During the seventeen years of its existence, it has not only grown from a preparatory school of fifty-five pupils into a college of six hundred, but it has in the meantime given to 208 students a complete collegiate training, to 45 a good normal education, and to 22 a thorough knowledge of the laws of our land. Besides these, a great many have taken special courses in Assaying and Metallurgy, Medicine, Chemistry and Music. Many of its graduates are known both in the East and West as worthy professors, scientists, teachers and expounders of legal lore.

The Faculty of our State University numbered in the beginning only four members, now it numbers nineteen, all of whom are enthusiastic in their respective fields of labor. Some of our Professors have a national reputation. The departments have gradually increased, and now there is no college in the land that offers better advantages for obtaining a thorough classical, scientific or literary education than does the University of Kansas.

The outlook is flattering. The Junior preparatory year has been dropped, thus freeing the institution from one of the three weights that was beginning to hinder its further material prosperity. The other preparatory years will be dropped as soon as the high schools throughout the State are far enough advanced to justify it.

The $12,000 chemical Laboratory that is to be built this coming summer, will add to the appearance of the campus, and will so much improve upon the advantages now offered in the Chemical department, that Kansas State University's will rank no longer as second in the State in that line of work, but will then lead, as it now does in all other departments.

The Natural History department, with reference to its line of work, is far more complete than ever before. The Museum in connection with this department is rapidly growing and already contains some of the most rare and valuable specimens in the world; in fact, some that are found in no other collection known to naturalists.

The other departments are under the control of able and energetic professors. The Normal has become, from present indications, a fixed star. The Law department will offer next year, greater inducements to the legal aspirant than at any previous year. The library gradually grows, and is, in and of itself, a better educator than the combined knowledge of those legislators who so fiercely assailed our University in the legislature last winter.

Two college journals, the Review and Courier, are published by the students, and from the columns of these papers one can glean a good idea of student life. These journals afford the students a rare opportunity for becoming proficient in essay writing, because the work spent in preparing articles for the paper is additional to regular work, and is generally done much more carefully.

Looking at the grand strides the University of Kansas has made, at its present high standard and bright prospects, at the support it is winning from all sections of the West, who can predict for it aught but a glorious future?

Prophecy of the Class of '83, K. S. U.

It is one of Dame Fortune's strange caprices that to the weakest is sometimes given the most Herculean task. Behold, an unfortunate example! To stand on the brink of "Old Ocean" and hurl Demosthenian facts and fancies to the gaping whales and charmed fish—to "talk in meetin'," when everybody is asleep; to manufacture quires of wretched poetry, and reams of more wretched prose, when one is assured that both will find a hallowed grave in the distracted editor's waste-basket; even to stand before the foot-lights, and, Abbott-like, warble of the poor, forlorn rose; when said foot-lights are dark lights, and seats and boxes are alike empty. Any or all of these marvelous feats will I gladly perform; but to predict the coming glories of the "Class of '83"—my brain reels, my tongue, mirabile dictu! refuses to move; the pen drops from my nerveless hand. With fear and trembling I essay the mighty work. Come, all ye gods and smiling muses! help me to fitly chronicle the future of "Old '83."

From the days of our Prephood we have been a never-failing source of wonderment and delight to our long-suffering Professors. They have watched with bated breath and admiring eyes, while unharmed, we passed through the fiery ordeal of Freshman greenness, Sophomore stubbornness, Junior rakishness, and Senior foolishness.

With such a marvelous record our future is sure to be all that we and our numerous friends could desire. When our embryo lawyers—"and their name is legion"—become honored statesmen; when Judge Hutchings oracularly advances before unheard-of opinions from the time-honored Bench; when the halls of Congress echo and re-echo with Senator Smith's original presentation of anti-monopoly measures; when President Russell mildly(?) calls him to order (they never would agree, on the railroad question, or anything else); when "Spangler," "Tucker," "Brown" and "Dart" are names well known and honored in this and other lands; when it will be said by the world, as now by the Class, "He is Little, but oh my!" When Professor Sterling and Doctor Whirlow skillfully manipulate the brains and bones of their fellow creatures; when Brewster's mighty pen sways millions of readers—oh! when—but such a picture is neither impossible nor improbable,

"Life goes a Maying
With nature, hope, and poesy
When we are young."

And what of "the girls?"

"We girls are such poor creatures,
Slaves of circumstances and fate,
Denied the warrior's glory,
And the conqueror's splendid state."

And if we are? The spheres of action open to us are broad and varied, and though we can not wield the ballot, nor earn as much in dollars and cents as our more fortunate brothers, each can strive to be

"A noble type of good,
Heroic womanhood."

Marriage is not every girl's Mecca—but queen of a good man's heart is better than queen of a kingdom; and if, perchance, the fairy story read awry and the prince comes not gallantly for the princess, she, this brave American princess, will not sit, "sadly waiting, idly dreaming," but,

"Building nests in Fame's great temple,
As in spouts the swallows build,"

find for herself a niche in the mart of life, and earnestly, conscientiously fill it.

For the Class as a whole, it may be said—Little wit, of Sterling worth; ably represented at all times and on all occasions by the trumpet-like voice of Gabriel, we fearlessly hurl at you the Dart of truth. We can proudly point to our smiling Bay and graceful Brig(gs); our dignity is well upheld by the grave Cornelius; we refer you to "Ben Butler" for ponderous imponderability; we have "Miles" of good nature; we are overflowing with the combined wisdom of David and Solomon, not to speak of the modern decisions of Blackstonë; we are replete with good Fellows, and are, all in all, worthy of a Brown study. In view of these many virtues, are we not destined for glorious renown?

"The web of our life is of a mingled
Yarn, good and ill together; our virtues
Would be proud, if our faults whipt them not, and
Our crimes would despair, if they were not
Cherished by our virtues."

We are indeed "sair fau'ty," but "minded always to do right." May I not hope for each and every one of us standing on the threshold of school days, giving little heed just now to them, but so eager for life and its lessons—the fulfillment of his desires—knowing well that his wants are right, his aims pure, his purpose steadfast toward truth. For the "Class of '83," I prophesy patience in misfortune, joy in success, life-long usefulness, and honored remembrance. In the words of the poet:

"Life is before ye!—and as now ye stand
Eager to spring upon the promised land,
Fair smiles the way where yet your feet have trod
But few light steps, upon a flowery sod.
Round ye are youth's green bowers, and to your eyes
Th' horizon's line but joints the earth and skies,
Daring and triumph, pleasure, fame and joy:
Friendship unwavering, love without alloy,
Brave thoughts of noble deeds, and glory won,
Like angels, beckon ye to venture on.
Life is before ye!—from the fated road
Ye cannot; turn then, take up the load.
Not yours to tread or leave the unknown way,
Ye must go o'er it, meet ye what ye may.
Gird up your souls within you to the deed,
Angels and fellow-spirits bid ye speed!
What though the brightness wane, the pleasure fade,
The glory dim! Oh not of these is made
The awful life that to your trust is given,
Children of God! Inheritors of Heaven!"

“Take Care of the children!”—Nor wasted
 Is the care on the weakest of these :
 The culturer the product has tasted,
 And found it the palate to please.

This is the most interesting Class of all. Ever since we can remember they have been our tenderest care. They are a terror by day, and by night they roam the streets of our fair city. Would that some benign power would take them forever from us. We have tried every expedient our wisdom could devise, but all to no avail.

A prep's a prep for a' that.

During the past year we have tried the last remedy known to the profession, by placing them in the care of '83. But with all our care one, the youngest, '89 by name, has sickened and died.

"Secrecy is the chastity of friendship."

O college days that speed on wing so strong,
 O college joys that last not long, not long,
 O college friends from whom we soon shall sever,
 O college friendships made for aye and ever,
 O dreams of youth so sweet, so frail, so fleeting,
 'Neath touch of time and care so swift retreating.

To thee the goblets clink,
 Greek pledged to Greek we drink,
 Eternal be the link

That binds our hearts in one.
 Long mystic flame shall dance
 'Neath warm, fraternal glance,
 Till life's last set of sun.

From where the sunshine glistens
 On mantle fair of snow,
 To where old Ætna listens
 To sullen depths below;
 From where the morn's fair fingers
 Throw ope the gates of day,
 To where the daylight lingers
 No more on crested spray;
 O'er man and stream and hillside,
 O'er all, the shadows fall:
 But the sunlight softly lingers
 Around the dear old chapter hall.

Aside our fears we fling.
 Greek pledged to Greek we sing
 Till wall and rafters ring,
 Nor time, nor space shall sever.
 The sparkling wine we quaff,
 At fate and hate we laugh.
 God bless the Greeks forever!

THE FRIENDSHIP OF LEARNING.

"Not a vain boast was that of thine,
 O Horace, when in words divine
 Thou saidst 'I shall not wholly die.'
 Fresh voices every year have praised
 They words of wisdom, wit, and truth,
 Which throb with an undying youth.
 And thou, the Muses' favored son,
 New laurels every year hast won,
 Endear'd thyself to scholars' hearts,
 Enriched our life with pleasing arts,
 Touched e'en the dull and commonplace
 With gilding of poetic grace,
 Disarmed the foe of rankling hate,
 Swung open friendship's golden gate,
 And taught the mind to soar above
 On wings of universal love.

Dear brother Greeks, a stronger bond
 Than love for ancient classic lore
 Makes each to other's heart respond
 And friendship's treasures free outpour.
 We, too, have read with tireless zeal
 The thoughts that burn with living fire,
 But, kindled at Faith's deathless torch,
 Our souls aflame have mounted higher,
 Beyond unaided strength of men,
 Beyond the poet's widest reach,
 Beyond the intellect's broad ken,
 Beyond the utterance of speech,
 To know love is the highest good,
 To feel we are a brotherhood."

Engineering Literary Society.

MOTTO:—Accuracy, Neatness, Dispatch.

With the opening of the present college year quite a number of students, both new and old, signified their intention of pursuing the Engineering course. As this became more generally known the organization of an Engineering society was immediately talked of. The plans and ideas of several were soon put into action, and on Friday, November 24th, 1882, the Engineering society was organized.

The exercises consist of papers by members of the society on different topics directly or indirectly connected with Civil and Mechanical engineering. A free and open discussion follows the reading of each article on its object.

The money derived from initiation fees and fines is used in the purchase of scientific literature for the use of the Society, and as a result of this, together with the liberality of Profs. Marvin and Smith, we have many Engineering and Scientific periodicals to which each member has free access.

Thus far the Society has been a complete success, giving opportunities for work in particular directions, not otherwise easily attained.

The Engineering department under its present successful management is bound to grow, and with its rapid progress we can but predict for the Society a bright and glorious future.

Der deutsche Studenten-Verein

Was organized in the spring of 1882, at the instance of P. R. Bennett, by members of the second year Normal (Freshman) German class. Those students who were active in its organization are: P. R. Bennett, F. H. Clark, B. T. Chace, C. S. Crane, C. S. Metcalf, J. A. Fowler, C. V. Penn, E. B. Reay, and N. A. Swickard.

There was a fundamental rule of the Verein that while it was in session only German should be spoken, and a fine was attached to its violation. Meetings were held every Saturday evening at the residence of one of the members, and German conversation, orations, essays, debates, and declamations and select readings from standard German authors supplemented the work of the class-room in acquiring a mastery of the German language. The members of the Verein grew rapidly in readiness and correctness of speech, and a livelier interest was aroused in the class work.

The Verein began the present college year with increased membership and enthusiasm. Professor Carruth kindly offered his residence for a place of meeting, and there the Verein now convenes every Friday evening. It has been reorganized upon a basis more social and more in harmony with its purpose; that all may feel equally interested and be equally benefited. The different members, in alphabetical order, preside at the meetings—no fines are assessed, none are necessary. The members attend regularly and perform the work assigned them, because they had rather than not. The regular literary exercises, German songs and games, and the assistance of Professor and Mrs. Carruth, combine to make the meetings altogether enjoyable and instructive.

Dancing Clubs.

The art of Terpsichore has been sadly neglected at the University of Kansas during the past year. The exhortations from the chapel rostrum and the influence exerted by the faculty against "dissipation" has lessened the number of those who "trip the light fantastic." The few students who love the "mazy waltz," content themselves with the means of enjoyment offered by the city clubs. The music rooms were also the haunts of those who longed for the forbidden dance, and the pleasure was only enhanced by the dread of discovery. The literary society halls also offered retreats where the merry dancers could retire and "foot it" to their heart's content. The "University Hop" was not what might be called a great success. Indeed the students were mostly conspicuous by their absence, and the enterprising projectors were compelled to make up a considerable shortage.

On the whole the dancing season has been a failure. But, as may be seen by a glance at the clubs, no one knows what a year may bring forth. "Coming events cast their shadows before," and there are still "buds of promise," and "flowers of hope."

I ADMIRE YOU CLUB,

Canfield Silver Ball.

Rules Governing the Contests for its Possession.

"This ball is given to the First Nine of the State University on these conditions:

"It is to be held by them as the champion ball of the educational institutions of Kansas, including such High schools as have been recognized by the State University."

"It shall be the prize in all contests between the University nine and any other nine of the University, or any nine representing the institutions above specified — subject to the usual regulations, and to reasonable demands as to time and place of either first, second, or third games."

"Each nine winning the ball will sign a written agreement to hold it subject to the above conditions; and should they disband, to return it to the nine from which they won it."

"The ball shall not be the prize in any contest except as above specified, and shall, in each case, be transferred only at the close of the decisive game."

The last nine holding the silver ball was the University nine of 1879-80. The following are the names of the members of that club:

New York Street Dining Club.

MOTTO—Omnia vorare virtus est.

Affectionately dedicated to F. H. SMILEY.—

As brooklets to the river run,
As shepherds carry lambkins home;
Thirst-quenching waters will return
And sheep will pasture by the bourne.

GEORGE WASHINGTON H—, of Nemeha.—

Of horse-raddish fondly a lover,
Why search for beetles the valley of Kaw?
Your hat's hid away in the parlor.

A. L. HICKS.—

Matthew of long generation,
Aspiring to higher spheres
Climbs, till he thrusts his palms
Into the hidden molasses.

T. W. HOUSTON.—

Some scions are slender
And others are tall,
And some are remarkably tender.

THOMAS HALSTEAD.—

Well may'st thou grieve for in thy sides,
Rather than in thy head, thy faculty abides.

GRANT McALEXANDER.—

A man of fame without a name is nature's greatest blunder;
Yet is't right, forsooth, that one small youth should be titled "—"
Alexander?

S. F. HARDING.—

O, what may man within him hide,
Though modest on the outward side!!

J. E. C.—

Hungry, hungry, yes I am—
Eat an apple—eat a man;
I know that I'm a "masher—"
Boys, I can make a thresher!
Clear the way, I'm in a hurry;
Professor, what d'you think of Joseph Curry?

To A. M. B., i. e. Morning Breakfast.—

Quisne scit quo "Ille" sit;
"Ille" procul abfugit.
Puella domum ademit
Non dicendus ub, "Ill" est.

F. W. BARNES.—

My tender youth was never yet attained
With any passion of inflaming love,
Except for taters, beans and hash,
And cattle fattened on the Western plain.

B. T. CHACE.—

"Your breath is like soft music, your words are the echoes
Which, to my heart, express the sweet murmurs of calm eventide's stillness."

C. A. SEAMAN.—

Mysterious Love, uncertain treasure,
Who could live and eat beside thee!!

J. C. HALL.—

The highest clouds are crimsoned last,
The highest peaks last tinged with gold,
Hail thou, O Hall, of lofty structure,
Thou may'st re-echo tenderest strains.

Our Dear Faculty.

JAMES MARVIN, D. D.—

“He still retained
His manly sense and energy of mind,
Virtuous and wise he was, but not severe,
He still remembered that he once was young,
His easy presence checked no decent joy.”

F. H. SNOW, A. M.—

“I do not think so fair an outward, and such stuff within Endows a man but he.”

E. MILLER, A. M.—

“For he by geometric scale
Could take the size of pots of ale,
Resolve by sines and tangents strait
If bread and butter wanted weight;
And wisely tell what hour of day
The clock does strike by algebra.”

D. H. ROBINSON, A. M.—

“His talk is like a stream which runs
With rapid change from rocks to roses,
He slips from politics to puns,
Passes from Mohamet to Moses.”

G. E. PATRICK, M. S.—

“Filled with the sense of age, the fire of youth,
A scorn of wrangling, yet a zeal for truth.”

J. H. CANFIELD, A. M.—

He speaks not reservedly, but he speaks with force,
Nor scarce can a word be changed but for a worse.

L. W. SPRING, A. M.—

“So unaffected, so composed a mind,
So firm, yet soft; so strong, yet so refined.”

J. W. GLEED, A. M.—

"I never knew so young a body, with so old a head."

F. O. MARVIN, A. M.—

"A man of solemn mein,
But not exact mean,
Meaning well, perhaps."

H. S. S. SMITH, C. E.—

"His speech was like a tangled chain,
Nothing impaired, but all disordered."

P. J. WILLIAMS, A. M.—

"By many followed; loved by most; admired by all,
Gave while he taught and edified the more."

W. H. CARRUTH, A. M.—

"Fie, fie, unknit that threatening, unkind brow,
And dart not scornful glances from thine eye."

CARINA B. CAMPBELL, A. B.—

"Charming woman can true converts make,
We love the precept for the teacher's sake."

R. L. TAYLOR, A. B.—

"When he speaks, the air a chartered libertine is still,
And mute wonder lurketh in men's ears
To steal his sweet and honeyed sentences."

L. L. DYCHE.—

"A very Nimrod, who in his mind's eye, can slay more game than is in the land."

R. A. LEHMAN.—

"The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils."

J. W. GREEN, A. B.—

"A man of law, a man of peace,
To frame a contract or a lease."

M. SUMMERFIELD.—

"Let me have men about me that are fat, such men as sleep o' nights."

ARTHUR CANFIELD, A. B.—

"The nephew of his uncle."

'A young gentleman of great hopes, whose love of learning is highly commendable."

Truths on the Sub-Faculty.

"No eye hath seen such scare-crows."

C. C. DART.—

"He has a lean and hungry look,
He thinks too much, such men are dangerous."

E. C. LITTLE.—

"God made him, therefore let him pass for a man."

CARA FELLOWS.—

"Of sterling worth
She is the noblest Roman of them all."

J. F. TUCKER.—

"A man that thunders, lightens, opens graves, and roars."

W. S. WHIRLOW.—

"Oh wad some power the giftie gie us
To see ourselves as others see us."

FRANK PRENTISS.—

"This is as strange a thing as ere I saw."

MINA E. MARVIN.—

A maiden never bold
Of spirit so still and quiet that her motion
Blushes at herself.

F. H. CLARK.—

"O Satan, when ye take him,
Gie him the schoolin' o' your weans,
For clever deils he 'll make 'em."

L. H. LEACH.—

"This hand hath oft been held by one,
Who now is far away,
And here I sit and sigh alone
Through all the dreary day."

M. W. STERLING.—

"Behold, thou art fair; thou hast doves' eyes within thy locks: thy hair is as a flock of goats."

Rubs on Editors.

"Truth is too precious to be wasted on everybody."

E. F. CALDWELL.—

"His ears, like a donkey's, are good for music,
And if cheek were trumps, what a hand he would hold."

O. D. WALKER.—

Alas! for we must lose him,
Though we do what ere we can,
For he hath full determined
To become a family man.

MINA E. MARVIN.—

"Woman be fair, we must adore thee;
Smile, and the world is weak before thee."

W. H. BRITTON.—

"And he too talked and forgot much
He talked of. Surely after all,
The noblest answer under such,
Is perfect stillness when they brawl."

GLEN L. MILLER.—

"Behold, it is a slender thing of wood
That up and down its slender arm doth sway,
And coolly spout, and spout, and spout away,
In one weak, washy, everlasting flood."

NELLIE GRISWOLD.—

“In wedlock a species of lottery see,
Where in blanks and prizes we dole;
And, if ever by fortune's indulgent decree
As a ticket to me you should roll,
A sixteenth, heaven knows! were sufficient for me,
For what could I do with the whole?”

W. T. FINDLEY.—

“The women tell him every day,
That all his bloom has passed away.
'Behold,' the pretty creatures cry,
'Behold this mirror with a sigh.'”

MARY C. MCQUISTON.—

“And when e'er her man appears,
Age is on her temples hung,
But her heart — her heart is young.”

W. Y. MORGAN.—

“How I love the festive boy,
Tripping for the maiden's joy,
But made by her a perfect toy.”

F. H. CLARK.—

“A fairer person lost not heaven:
He seemed for dignity composed and high exploit;
But all was false and hollow.”

W. S. KINNEAR.—

“I often wonder how nature, so mild and frugal, could commit such disproportions.”

W. C. STEVENS.—

“And I might see the youth intent,
Guard every pass with cross-bow bent.”

Special Carves.

---

GEO. W. H—K.—

" See and believe your eyes.
Speed your flight, lest an host
Beneath his foot be lost.
When he eats, Famine threats,
When he drinks, Neptune shrinks."

JO-PH E. C—RY.

" Doth make himself the measure of mankind,
And fondly thinks that he doth honor merit, then,
When praising self in other men."

W. J. M—SE.—

' Like a fine bragging youth,
I'll tell quaint lies,
How honorable ladies sought my love,
Which I denying, they fell sick and died."

JNO. L. S—LI—N.—

" Some have at first for wits, then poets passed; Turned critics next, and proved plain guys at last."

R. M. OS—D.—

" The world calls me small:
Therefore
" In one short view, subjected to your eye,
Gods, emperors, heroes, sages, beauties lie."

L. H. L—CH.—

" I'm not yet so bald that you can see my brains."

O'TIS LITTLE WILLIE.—

" But, ah! I fear thy little fancy roves,
On little females — little loves."

VIC- L.—LY.—

“Melting into air—thin air,
Are like the baseless fabric of a vision.
Ye are such stuff as dreams are made of,
And your little life is rounded with a sleep.”

GEO. E. R.—SE.—

“These kind of knaves I know which in their plainness
Harbor more craft and more corrupter ends,
Than twenty silly, ducking observants,
That stretch their duties nicely.”

A. S. RIFFLE.—

Never wedding, ever wooing,
Still a love-lorn heart pursuing,
All my life with sorrow strewing,
Wed, or cease to woo.

S. W. BREWSTER.—

His cares are eased with intervals of bliss,
His little children climbing for a kiss.

KANSAS LEGISLATURE.—

“High on a throne of royal state
Sn—dy exalted sat.
Before him displayed, shone many a pate,
Empty as his old hat.”

Class Medley of "'83."

Of all college customs new or old
The more absurd retain the firmer hold.
No better place for incongruity
Than in a modern university.
Kind reader when this medley you review
Look not for wit or wisdom in these lines;
Accept the true, the bad eschew
Gold always fails in lead-producing mines.

Talent and beauty,
Strong love of duty,
Are virtues we claim.
The Prof's lives we sweeten;
We ne'er have been beaten;
Ah! great is the fame
Of Old '83.

Juniors revere us,
Sophs they do fear us,
To be like us they aim.
Freshies adore us,
They quake at the name
Of Old '83.

**

Co-education, cause of our delight,
Happy are we who know thy magic might.
Upon thy head with love's availing power,
In benediction we our blessings shower;
And since thy aid for each hath found a friend
Whose presence shall his path of life attend,
Forever shall thou hold the lion's part,
Within the deepest recess of each heart.

Melancholy sits on me as a cloud.
"Pa" has refused a graduating suit,
And Five Dollars for graduating fee
Sounds something like a horrible campaign lie.

Mashing is a desperate deed
So I aver, aye, yes indeed.
Thus said the Senior as with a weed
He lashed his fiery wheezing steed.

I love the dude, the Senior dude,
With his tiny waxed mustache,
His rattan cane in his gloved hand
All ready for a mash.
Among the dear things that I love
I love the female dude.
In etiquette she doth eclipse
The rest of the Senior brood.

But lest some fuss I inaugurate
Contested subjects I'll not debate
My rustle is over, adieu, adieu.
My "sig" is hidden from you, from you.

To string the muse's lyre
For songs of liberty,
Love adds poetic fire
With floods of poetry.

And I hear 'em say, till my ears do tingle
That in chains I lie, till I do mingle
My thoughts in this incongruous gingle,
Thoughts that should be, as I am, single.
Then "hang" hang your editor's and rhymster's saddle
If I'd the chance, I swear I'd paddle
The muse that put me here astraddle.

A RAVING.

Once upon a midnight tepid
As I strove with fingers rapid
To set down in figures fair
How a circle you should square ;
As my fancy, grown prophetic,
Saw the furious rage splenetic
Pictured in our tall Prof's face;
Or that son of Typhon's race,
Algebra—beloved, whose glory
I'd like to celebrate in story.
Wild their rage, most wild and frantic,
And their manners strangely antic
When they saw I'd solved the question
Which no man has been at rest on.—
Lo I heard a noise of slipping
As of some one slyly tripping
Through the grass that lay in windrows
Newly mown beneath my windows—
Sooth I smiled with smile befitting
As I said: "Some girl is flitting,
Kappa or I. C. it may be,
To the spot where all my hay be.
Some artistic, young Maud Muller
She will find her lot is duller
Than the poet's Maud's. She'll sigh,
"For no Senior Law am I."
Then I turned me to my paper,
Trimming first my midnight taper—
German student, nickle-plated, present from my doting ma,
When I said to home "Ta ta."
Suddenly a voice of thunder

Shrieked a song my casement under.
 Strange the words, but old the meter,
 Could my rage have been completer
 Than when on my ears there rung
 Words like these from brazen tongue:—

“I saw the Senior come on the stand,
 Good-bye, oh Senior, good-bye,
 To take his sheepskin in his hand,
 Good-bye, oh Senior, good-bye.

CHORUS :

Go, Senior, go-oh!
 Go, Senior, go-oh!
 Go, Senior, go-oh!
 We're mighty glad you're gone.”

Then straightway I smote the floor
 And I cried, “some Sophomore
 Dares to beard me in my den—”
 Then I heard his voice again:

“We're singing farewell to a Beta bold,
 Farewell to Beta Pi,
 And ‘All is wretchedness’ we'll sigh
 When Beta Pi(e) is cold.”

Swift I seized my well filled ewer,
 And my aim I thought was sure.
 But I heard a sound of laughter
 Following undampened, after;
 Laughter loud and clear and hearty
 As of quite a numerous party.
 While their mirth they still prolong
 They shout into my ears this song:

“Shake the empty pitcher out,
 Wave it low or high,
 Once again we'll raise the shout
 It never hurt Phi Psi.”

"Sooth," I said "I know a Gamma
Far as I can hear his grammar;
Never yet was known a Delta
Who had e'er of kindness felt a
Pang or quiver even fleeting—
Every one deserves a beating."
Seizing swift my base ball bat,
Jamming on my Stetson hat,
Down the stairs with rage I started,
Not a moment had I wasted ;
Soon my steps grew slow and stealthy
As a burglar's, round a wealthy
Slumb'ring citizen's fine house,
But I found not e'en a mouse.
Still, my hay field and deserted,
And the Bedlam was converted
Into summer stillness deep
And all nature seemed asleep.
Then I swore, and swear it now,
By my halidome, I trow
If the caitiff I should find
Who framed those words in his mind,
I would tear him limb from limb,
I would hang, draw, quarter him.
Hear me, Thou Great Jumping Jingo,
Hear me, Bulldog, Frog and Bingo,
He shall rue it ever more.

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED DICTIONARY.

For more than a quarter of a century Webster's Dictionary has been largely the acknowledged Standard throughout the country.

Almost all the School Books of this country are based on Webster, and to a very large extent this is true of all other publications.

Actually contains over 118,000 Words and Meanings, over three thousand more than are found in any other English Dictionary.

The Courts look to it as the highest authority in all questions of definition.—Morrison R. Waite, Chief Justice U. S. Supreme Court.

So frequently is Webster cited as authority in Courts of Justice that one Reporter sent us a list of twenty-seven such cases from one State, and he wrote: "I presume I could collect five times as many from the Reports of other States."

Webster's Dictionary "is the Standard used in the Government Printing Office at Washington, D. C., January, 1882," and has been for many years.

Worker nineteen-twentieths of the newspapers in the U. S. that follow any Dictionary, follow Webster's, so far as learned, while but one pretends to follow any other.

Worker recommended by State Sup'ts of Education of 36 States, and by over 50 College Presidents.

The sale of Webster's Dictionaries is believed, by the testimony of over 300 Booksellers, to be at least 20 times that of any other series of Dictionaries.

Hundreds of Booksellers do not even pretend to keep any other Dictionary in stock, while no bookstore would be thought complete that could not at any time supply a customer with a Webster's Unabridged.

Careful inquiry develops the fact that every State Purchase of Dictionaries for Schools, has been of Webster's.

Cover 50,000,000 Webster's Spellers, and a large number of Readers based on Webster, have been sold in the United States.

Considered one thing has done more to unify the English language, and prevent local dialects in this country, than Webster's Dictionaries and Spellers.

So undiminished is the demand for Webster's Spellers that over a million copies were sold in 1880, and this is about an average year's sale.

Sixty illustrations, 3000, about three times as many as are found in any other Dictionary, and these are repeated and classified at the end of the book.

Illustrations by illustrations are nowhere better or more carefully and accurately shown than in Webster's Unabridged Dictionary.

Demands about 100 years of literary labor. Dr. Webster spent ten years and Dr. Mahn, of Berlin, five years on the Etymologies alone.

Reaches by direct sale the English-speaking and English-reading people of the whole world.

Indispensable in Schools. Over 32,000 have been placed in the Public Schools of the United States by legal enactments or by school officers.

No man ever gave so much of his life to English Lexicography as did NOAH WEBSTER, "The Schoolmaster of the Republic."

Get the Best.—Get the Standard, and you will certainly get Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, Published by

G. & C. MERRIAM & CO., Springfield, Mass.

STUDENT NEEDS IT.

It is not a Whisky, nor a vile fancy drink that leads the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but a true and reliable Medicine which has been in use for the past fifteen years, and has been prescribed and used by many of our leading physicians.

Here we give a few Testimonials of the Merits of

LEIS' DANDELION TONIC.

Col. G. W. Veale, of the Union Pacific Railroad, writes that he has used Leis' Dandelion Tonic for torpidity of the liver and that general sluggishness of the system common to this climate, with highly satisfactory results. He considers it a most excellent tonic and liver medicine.

Maj. H. J. Hopkins, and A. Campbell, the warden and chaplain of the Kansas State Prison, unite in a letter commending Leis' Dandelion Tonic as an excellent remedy for malarial troubles and the general unhealthy condition of the system brought on by dwelling in a malarial district.

Hon. Dudley C. Haskell, Member of Congress from Kansas, writes that he has used Leis' Dandelion Tonic with good results. He says further, "I can heartily recommend it as a safe and valuable remedy."
