CHARGE TO THE STRATEGIC PLANNING STEERING COMMITTEE

I am pleased to distribute the attached charge to the KU Libraries Strategic Planning Steering Committee. The role of the committee, as described therein, was developed and clarified in a one-day retreat of the eight-member committee with Susan Jurow, our consultant for the project.

The committee will guide the planning process over the next 5 ½ months, and will provide plenty of opportunity for input from Libraries’ employees, students, teaching faculty, administrators, and other stakeholders in the Libraries’ future. This is a unique opportunity for us to re-examine our collective future in serving KU and the state of Kansas, and to develop a compelling vision of where we want to take the organization.

Please join me and the committee in preparing that vision and strategies for approaching it. Thanks.

OLD CLARK LAB GETS NEW NAME

To reduce confusion, the former Clark Lab (once a typing room, and maybe even before that a smoking room, and who can remember what else?) is now named the WATSON TRAINING LAB. A sign installed outside the room reflects this new name. Mary Miller still maintains the scheduling of this facility. So, to review, we now have the Clark Instruction Center, located within the Watson Reference Room, and the Watson Training Lab, located next to the Fines Office. Happy Training!

INSTRUCTION STATISTICS REPORTING FORM
The FY00 instruction statistics reporting form that went out in the 6/29 issue of FYI is NOT the correct version. I apologize for any confusion and am attaching a copy of the correct form to this issue of FYI. I also sent this version electronically via KULIB-L on 6/29/00. Thanks.

Strategic Planning Steering Committee Charge
Library Instruction Statistics Report and Form for FY 2000
The Watson Exhibits Committee is responsible for exhibits placed in the Jim Ranz Reading Area on the Third Floor of Watson Library. The committee encourages library staff to place exhibits this area, reviews exhibit proposals turned in by library staff, provides technical support for staff mounting exhibits, and to publicizes exhibits. To facilitate the Exhibits Committee’s work, the Libraries’ Administration has graciously allocated $500 annually for use in preparing exhibits, buying supplies needed to maintain the exhibit cases and mount exhibits, and publicizing exhibits.

Members of the committee for FY2000 were Brian Baird, Chair; Ken Lohrentz; Bryan Culp; and Geri Slater. Members are generally assigned to the committee for a three year term. Brian Baird and Ken Lohrentz will complete their appointments to this committee at the end of this fiscal year, and the administration will need to appoint two more committee members.

It was challenging this year for the committee to find volunteers to mount exhibits. This difficulty was largely the result of the Voyager implementation which was a huge drain on staff resources, time, and energy. Nevertheless, the committee was able to keep the exhibit cases full most of the year thanks, in large part, to the excellent exhibit that was prepared for the 75th Anniversary of Watson Library which we ran for several months. Following is list of exhibits that were displayed throughout the fiscal year.

- May 15–July 15, 1999
  Sacred Texts of the West by Annie Williams and Al Mauler.

- Aug. 19–Sept. 25, 1999
  Role of Student Employees in the Conservation of Library Collections by Brian Baird and Meg Brown.

- Sept. 27–March 15, 2000
  Watson Library’s 75th Anniversary by Mary Rosenbloom, Kathleen Neeley, and others.

- March 15–April 17, 2000
  Exhibit relating to the African Literature Association that held a conference on campus by Ken Lohrentz and Rob Melton.

- April 17–May 1, 2000
  Snyder Book Collecting Contest by Jeff Bullington.

- May 1–June 1, 2000
  Exhibit relating to a Balkan Linguistics Conference held on campus by Geoff Husic.

- June 15–July 15, 2000
  Favorite Books of the KU Libraries Staff by Exhibit Committee.

For the coming year there are already three exhibits scheduled that will last through October. These exhibits are as follows:

Aug. 15–Sept. 8, 2000  Preservation Department Exhibit by Brian Baird.

Sept. 8–Oct. 31, 2000  Native American Leaders in Kansas. Exhibit will coincide with a Native American Leaders Conference being held at KU by Lea Reid.

Next year the committee will be kept busy trying to fill out the remainder of the calendar. However, it would also be wise for the committee to develop a list of resources available to those preparing exhibits to assist them in finding the supplies and expertise they need to mount high-quality exhibits. The committee has benefited by the experience and expertise of Brian Baird and Ken Lohrentz who both have mounted several exhibits and were willing to advise others in their efforts. It would be prudent for the committee to fill this advisory void with a written set of guidelines and list of resources. Especially given the many resources available in the Libraries to assist in preparing professional quality exhibits. This documentation could be part of a committee web page that could also be used to publicize exhibits.

Finally, it will be important for the committee to work closely with Mary Rosenbloom, the External Relations Librarian, to insure that all exhibits are well publicized. For this reason the committee suggests that the External Relations Librarian be made an ex-officio member of the Watson Library Exhibits Committee.

The meeting was called to order at 10:30 am in the Anschutz small conference room. We completed work on a slate of candidates for LFA and LCPT positions for FY02.

We also worked on a ballot for wording changes in LCPT’s Criteria for Academic Ranks of Librarians. Judith will check with Brad Schaffner and Sherry Williams on the wording of this ballot.

These ballots will go out next week.

The meeting adjourned at 11:30 am.

Present: Lin Fredericksen, Michiko Ito, Kathleen Neeley, Stephanie Schaffner (recorder), Kendall Simmons (treasurer)
Absent: Sandy Gilliland (ex officio), Lea Reid (Chair)

Minutes: The minutes of the previous meeting were read, corrected and approved.

Travel Requests: There was one travel request this week, but more information is needed from the applicant before we can decide the number of shares to allocate. We also approved one travel request over email for Vicki Coleman. Vicki will be going to the ALA conference in Chicago, IL in July.

Programs: Cornel Pewewardy’s program had a very large attendance last week. We will ask participants to fill out the evaluation form that can be printed off from the SDC website.

We discussed SDC’s Open Meeting that is scheduled for June 29. We came up with an agenda and divided up the topics to be covered in the meeting.

Survey: Corrections were made on the most recent draft of the survey. The draft should be ready to send to the chairs of LFA Exec and CCEB by the end of next week. The final survey report will not be completed until after SDC’s Open Meeting.

We plan to issue the final survey report to staff electronically, since it is a lengthy report and would require a huge amount of paper.

RE: Charge to the Committee

Thank you for agreeing to serve on the Steering Committee for the Libraries’ Strategic Planning initiative. I look forward to working with you on this important endeavor. Susan Jurow will be the consultant working with the Steering Committee to identify the work to be done and to establish an appropriate timeline, and she will advise the Committee throughout the process.

It is the charge of the Steering Committee to:

- create and manage the strategic planning process,
- establish communication channels with me and the library staff concerning the planning effort,
- create opportunities for participation and learning by the whole library staff and others in the KU community, and
- appoint appropriate subgroups to help the Committee carry out its work.

Susan Jurow and I have discussed the strategic planning process. Because of the speed of change today, the concept of how strategic planning is done has changed since the last plan was completed in 1993. The current thinking is that a library should try to plan no more than 3 years into the future and should enunciate strategic directions rather than lay out a detailed step-by-step plan. It is still necessary to develop a vision statement and clarify institutional values, and to analyze the strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats that would or could affect our plan.

In your work you may find it useful to review the KU Libraries' strategic plan from 1993 and the work that was started (and subsequently suspended) on a new planning process in 1997/98. Please ensure that the entire range of staff opinion and perception is solicited and considered in this process, and allow as many opportunities as possible for staff to participate. As appropriate, KU students, faculty, staff and administrators, as well as staff of other KU libraries and Regents university libraries, should be included in the process.

I will schedule a regular meeting time with Jim in order to stay informed of the ongoing work of the committee, and will provide resources and encouragement in support of this effort.

By December 20, 2000, I would like to have a report from you on the strategic directions toward which the KU Libraries should be moving. Thanks much for your involvement.
Why Are We Collecting Instruction Statistics?
Instruction statistics will be collected once each year. This information will be used to help the Instruction Council chart the extent of educational programs led by KU Libraries staff. Instruction statistics will also be included in the Libraries’ annual statistical reports to the Association of Research Libraries.

What Statistics Should Be Collected?
For the purposes of this form, instruction is defined as any educational program (orientation tours, course-specific sessions, presentations to visiting groups, etc.) conducted by library staff for a class or other group of patrons. Please do not include one-on-one reference appointments on this form. Sessions taught as part of the Workshop Series will be counted separately.

Multi-session instruction presentations should be recorded as follows:
- count each session separately;
- for multi-session classes with a constant enrollment (e.g., for-credit classes) count each student only once.

Persons who team-teach sessions, should do the following:
- Each staff member who helps teach a session should record that session
- Participants in the session may be counted only one (consider having each staff person count half of the students in their totals)

The above definitions are based upon those supplied by the Association of Research Libraries, available at http://www.arl.org/stats/arlstat

Who Should Fill Out This Form?
All staff members whose job responsibilities include instruction as defined above (bibliographers, reference staff, etc.) are asked to fill out this form. Forms should be returned to Cindy Pierard, Watson Library Reference Department (or to your department head - see note below).

When Should Statistics Be Reported?
The call to report instruction statistics will coincide with the annual call for ARL statistics (typically late June/early July). Forms should be returned by Friday, August 18.

NOTE: Because department heads are typically responsible for reporting these types of statistics, and because they may wish to review these figures for other reports, I would like to ask that department heads coordinate the collection of Instruction Statistics Reports from appropriate staff in their units. If desirable, department heads may also wish to keep this data on a semester-by-semester basis for use in annual evaluations.

NEW EXHIBITION IN THE MAIN GALLERY AT SRL

Deborah Dandridge and Kristin Eshelman have mounted a new exhibition in the main gallery at Spencer Research Library. The exhibit coincides with a visit to campus next week of Sumner High School alumni who are attending their convention in Kansas City. Johnnie Love (formerly Reference Dept. and Diversity Librarian) is president of the Sumner Alumni Association and she will be here to view the exhibition and welcome the visitors.

Achievement Against the Odds: Sumner High School, Kansas City, Kansas 1905-1978 is the title of a new exhibition at the Spencer Research Library at the University of Kansas, Lawrence. On view are photographs, instructional materials, reports of parent-teacher associations, copies of the school newspaper, and similar materials. The exhibition, drawn from the holdings of the Kansas Collection, will remain on display through mid-September.

Deborah Dandridge, archivist at the Kansas Collection and co-organizer of the exhibition, notes that the Sumner High School materials provide a unique resource from which to study segregated secondary education in Kansas and the daily life of African American teenagers throughout much of the 20th century.

For three-quarters of a century, Sumner High School in Kansas City, Kansas was one of the most influential public educational institutions in Kansas. Established in 1905 by an act of the Kansas State legislature, Sumner was the only high school in Kansas designated for African Americans. Its curriculum centered on the classics: science, math and literature. Sumner High School faculty and graduates created an outstanding legacy of achievement that continues into the 21st century. In 1978 under a federally mandated plan for racial integration, Sumner was closed as an African American high school.

In 1986, the Sumner High School Alumni Association, with help from former Sumner principal Solomon Thompson and the Sumner Class of 1930, donated a substantial collection of materials documenting the history of the high school to the Kansas Collection. The collection includes a variety of manuscript and photographic sources documenting student life, the academic curriculum and classroom activities throughout the school's history. Yearbooks and the school newspaper, the Sumner Courier, provide detailed information about day to day Sumner life and events. Photographs depict early classroom scenes, faculty members, graduating classes, dramatic performances, and band parades. Manuscript materials document parent-teacher organizations, student council activities, and instructional material.

In 1985, working in cooperation with the University of Kansas Department of African and African American Studies, the Kansas Collection greatly expanded a collecting program designed to increase opportunities for researchers interested in state and regional African American history. The Sumner High School Alumni Collection was one of the earliest collections acquired by the library through this program. The addition of the personal papers of African American leaders of the region and the archival records of African American clubs, civic groups, churches, and other organizations to the Kansas Collection have made the library the premiere resource for studying African American experience in Kansas and the Great Plains region.

Hello from the Steering Committee of the Library’s 2000 Strategic Planning Initiative
Strategic Planning Process (2 page Memo)
SP Steering Committee Needs Your Help

An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer
My conference activities began on Friday, when I made the sacrifice of leaving Wrigley Field during the ninth inning of a tied Cubs-Sox game to attend my first committee meeting. Fortunately, that meeting (of the Educational Behavioral and Social Sciences Section’s Social Work & Social Welfare Committee) was a good one. The group discussed the evolving nature of our Web site and I led participants in a discussion of integrating information competencies into the social work curriculum, drawing upon some local experiments we are beginning with the Master’s in Social Work program at KU. Although I am cycling off of this committee, I hope to maintain ties with some of the members through a newly-formed gerontology interest group since this area is becoming increasingly important to the field and to activities here in Kansas.

I also attended “final” meetings of two other committees from the Instruction Section. The first of these, the Think Tank III Task Force, elected to formally disband and to continue our work as a “virtual group.” Task Force members are currently finishing up a monograph based upon last year’s Think Tank, an Instruction Section forum that takes place about once per decade and attempts to outline directions for theory and practice in the field. The monograph, which will be published by ACRL, should go to press sometime during the coming year. During the final meeting of my other group, the Management of Instructional Services Committee, we discussed progress on our current project of designing a process for instruction managers to use in developing competency standards for instruction librarians at their institutions.

I am beginning work on two new committees. The Evaluation of Reference and User Services committee is busily planning for a RUSA (Reference and User Services Association) institute on assessing reference services that will be held in Baltimore this coming October. Committee members will develop a bibliography in conjunction with the institute and will help facilitate some of the discussions that are planned for the event. This group is also working on a new edition of the Reference Assessment Manual, a Pierian Press publication. I am also incoming chair for the Instruction Section’s Membership Committee and attended several orientation sessions for new section chairs. Fortunately, the outgoing chair of this group is Jeff Bullington, so it should be fairly easy for us to make this a smooth transition and continue that group’s work.

Due to a heavy meeting schedule, I did not have opportunities to attend any formal programs. I did visit the exhibits, paying particular attention to the Endeavor and SilverPlatter booths, since we may be moving to new versions of both systems within the coming year.

Despite the painful process of getting to the Convention Center (about 35-40 minutes by shuttle bus!) and the hectic nature of overlapping committee meetings, I had a fine and productive time in Chicago—beginning work on new projects and seeing others through completion, seeing old friends, and spending time in a terrific city. I am grateful to the Staff Development Committee for their assistance in defraying the costs of this trip.
On June 22-25 I attended the annual NASIG conference (North American Serials Interest Group) at the University of California at San Diego. More accurately, I should say that fellow traveler Geoff Husic and I attended from June 23-25, thanks to a canceled flight. United may have friendly skies, but their on-the-ground stuff needs improvement. We arrived in San Diego 24 hours after leaving Lawrence, having missed not only the Thursday and Friday morning sessions but a dinner and tour at the Scripps Aquarium.

The conference speakers included several KU-connected luminaries: Marilu Goodyear, Adrian Alexander, and Julia Blixrud gave presentations on BioOne and SPARC. Since I couldn’t make up my mind which one to go to—and feeling fairly confident of hearing them in Lawrence—I elected to attend a session on the Open Archives Project and PubMed Central. This presentation offered an informative look at what promises to become an increasingly prominent vehicle for scholarly communication. (The presentation did have its depressing side: when the computer crashed, a pre-pubescent boy was brought in to fix it.) The most useful presentation I heard was by Thomas Downing from GPO, who shed considerable light on many of GPO’s mysterious practices. Other sessions of note which I attended were on the latest revisions to the new AACRII draft, and a very entertaining talk by Bob Cringeley (inventor of the trashcan icon).

Some color commentary for folks who have not been to San Diego. The library at UCSD is the university’s dominating feature, no easy task as the campus has numerous awesome architectural structures. The library has been described as an upside down wedding cake, but its official attribution as the tree of knowledge provides a more dignified and accurate description. The library is situated at the highest point on campus; one reaches it by climbing up a winding path composed of multi-colored slate tiles. Soon one realizes that the path very much resembles a snake and its scales; this observation is confirmed by a 5-foot high marble sculpture of a book which portrays Milton’s “Paradise Lost.” (The book even has a call number on the spine). The initial image which the library evoked in my mind, however, was the Emerald Palace at the end of the yellow brick road … My other favorite architecture on campus was the engineering complex. One of its buildings was especially beautiful, with its rose-colored marble and green-tinged concrete façade and beautiful interior courtyard, where masses of brilliant bougainvillea climbed up stainless steel sculptural frames several stories high. The University also is noted for its sculpture, although I admit I again realized I had been in Kansas too long when I mistook one item for a snow-drift control fence.

Other trip highlights were an evening at the wharf and a dinner at the San Diego zoo. Unfortunately, Geoff and I lingered too long at the dessert cart and missed seeing the baby panda, who goes to bed rather early.

Thank you, Staff Development Committee, for helping to finance my attendance at this conference.
On July 6-7 I attended the ALA ALCTS preconference on metadata. The sumptuous Chicago Palmer House seemed an appropriate setting for the virtual orgy of information which was presented on this topic. I think every conceivable metadata scheme and project was crammed into the two days: TEI, EAD, Dublin Core, DDI, CORC, Infomine, CDP, IMS, art objects, museum collections, video clips, music, maps, etc. There was also the ubiquitous incomprehensible session on RDF and XML. In fact, the preconference presented so much information that, although I learned a lot, in some ways I’m more uncertain now about metadata than before I attended! Even my pre-conference assumption that at least metadata couldn’t “hurt” anything was shot down by Clifford Lynch. He explained that the reason public search engines did not make use of metadata was because they spend so much time countering unethical web stuffers, and metadata actually might make this situation worse.

The speakers were an impressive mix that hailed from LC and NLM, Microsoft, OCLC, the Getty, and various universities, and included the self-professed Californian, Michael Gorman. Brad Eden, a former student employee in Cataloging, gave a presentation on “The Instructional Management System (IMS);” he also helped organized the conference, was moderator for the second day. It was fun to talk to him and see how he had metamorphosed in his thinking since his days at KU. As moderator, Brad interspersed the sessions with pep talks, urging the audience to stop worrying about control of bibliographic information and start thinking about access to it; to think of ourselves as “knowledge managers” instead of librarians; to take risks; and to collaborate with others in promoting metadata projects.

The conference papers will be published next year. In the meantime, if anyone out there has even the faintest interest in learning more about metadata, I would be most happy to share the conference materials I received, which are extensive.

Thank you, Staff Development Committee, for helping to finance my attendance at this conference.

Minutes
June 29, 2000

Present: Judith Emde, Paulelle Difilippo, Connie Powell

The meeting was called to order in the Anschutz Library kitchen at 3:30 pm. The first order of business was to count the ballots for the proposal to change the guidelines for the criteria for academic ranks of librarians. The ballot stated that “The Criteria for Academic Ranks of Librarians guidelines should be revised so that appointees shall normally remain in the rank of Librarian I for a minimum of five years before promotion to Librarian II. Persons being considered for appointment or promotion to the rank of Librarian II shall have had at least five years of academic library experience at the beginning professional rank.” The vote was 36 in favor out of a total of 37 ballots cast. Thus the measure passed.

The previous two Wednesdays, June 14th and 21st the committee had counted ballots for the election of LFA Exec and LCPT members for FY00-01. Of the 58 returned ballots for LFA Exec, 57 were eligible. One had no label and was not counted. The following were elected for positions on LFA Exec for FY00-01: Nancy Burich, Vice-Chair Chair-Elect; Bryan Culp, Secretary; Margaret Wilson, Librarian III; Gaele Gillespie, Librarian II; Faye Christenberry, Librarian I; and Mary Miller Unclassified Professional.

Of the 45 ballots returned for LCPT positions, 44 were eligible as one vote was returned without a label. The following were elected for positions on LCPT for the coming year: Bill Crowe and Mary Roach as LIII representatives and Judith Emde as LII representative.

The next order of business of our June 29th meeting was revision of the flyer asking for volunteers for LFA committees. The flyer is entitled Call for Volunteers: Appointed LFA Committees. Connie presented a rough draft of this document. This document was critiqued for wording and for the names of continuing members. It will be completed and sent out in the next week.

The last order of business was to begin writing the committee’s Annual Report. The committee made suggestions for the format and information to be included in the Annual Report. Judith will complete a rough draft of this report. We will discuss it at our next meeting.

The meeting adjourned at 4:30.

Meeting Minutes

June 20, 2000

Present: Lin Fredericksen, Michiko Ito, Kathleen Neeley, Stephanie Schaffner (recorder), Kendall Simmons (treasurer)

Absent: Sandy Gilliland (ex officio), Lea Reid (Chair)

Minutes: The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Travel Requests: There were no travel requests this week.

Announcements: Kathleen advised that Shannon Royer was collecting information from the budget requests each unit/committee turned in last winter in preparation for creating the FY01 budget. Keith Russell wants any revisions that need to be made due to changing circumstances. Our original request was for $50,000, but this amount included funding for a Staff Development & Training Officer. The library received funding from the university to create the Staff Development & Training Officer position; therefore SDC is revising its budget request for FY01. Our revised request no longer includes funding for the new position. Instead, we are requesting additional funding to double to the first share to $210. The anticipated increase is $10,000. We are also requesting a programming budget of $2000, which should be kept separate from SDC’s regular allocation so it is not used for travel funding. The total budget request for regular funds is $32,000; plus a programming funds request of $2000.

Survey: The draft of the survey report was distributed to LFA Exec and CCEB. We have received very positive comments from some of the members. We will try to make the survey available to all staff shortly after the Open Meeting held on June 29. It will be distributed electronically.

Report on the ARL Office of Leadership and Management Services Advanced Facilitation Skills Lab - Denise Stephens, Keith Russell

Denise: The lab component was a very important part of this training and was attended by a wide distribution of people throughout libraries. It was focused, had very good feedback and provided valuable information to take back to improve one's job, especially in the areas of learning to identify cultures and practices. An excellent part of the training concentrated on the important role of sharing information, how lack of knowledge can lead to misjudgments - good or bad, and how assumptions might not be tested.

Keith: Stated he had received facilitator training with same two trainers while at the Agricultural Library. Other Universities are also investing in facilitator training. A facilitator is taught when to intervene, when to keep quiet.

Enough interest has been shown in the Association of Computer Machinery (ACM) conference that separate tracts were set up a few years ago. The workshops are intensive and cover problems such as language barriers and the different meanings of words. Programmers really need to know this information. Denise highly recommends this ACM conference and plans to attend again next year.

Hello from the Steering Committee of the Library’s 2000 Strategic Planning Initiative.

Committee members are Jan Altenbernd, Peggy Bell, Kristin Eshelman, George Gibbs, Kathy Graves, Jim Neeley (Chair), Marianne Reed, and Margaret Wilson. We look forward to working with you in the coming months on this important project.

Communicating with you, the Library’s staff, and ensuring each of you has an opportunity to participate in the planning process are primary roles for us. This message marks the beginning of our effort.

We intend for communication to go both ways. We hope that you will contact any of us with your suggestions or concerns. You may e-mail the entire Committee at LIBSP-L@STAFF.LIB.UKANS.EDU.

The Committee has also started a Web site for sharing information: http://www2.lib.ukans.edu/~staff/committees/strategicplanning/. Dean Russell sent the Committee’s charge to KULIB-L on July 6. In case you missed it, you will find it on our site.

Opportunities for your participation begin this month. Future messages will give details. The complete planning time line is given on the attachment to this message, which is also posted on http://www2.lib.ukans.edu/~staff/committees/strategicplanning/.

The Committee, with the Dean’s support and the assistance of our consultant Susan Jurow and others, is committed to an effective and efficient strategic planning process as defined in our charge. We believe the outcome will have a definite impact on the Library’s choices over the next several years. The degree and direction of that effect will depend heavily on everyone’s contributions, yours and ours.

RE: Strategic Planning Process and Staff Involvement

Strategic Planning Process

The Strategic Planning Steering Committee met with Susan Jurow on June 22 to plan the Libraries’ strategic planning effort. The plan has been refined in subsequent discussion within the Committee and with the Dean and the Management Team. Although the basic outline is settled, details will undoubtedly change as we proceed. It remains a work in progress. Here is the plan as it now stands, including the dates that have been associated with the various steps:

July-August: (listed in chronological order)

The Steering Committee will establish methods of communicating with Library staff and obtaining input from them. The Steering Committee will ask for Library staff volunteers who wish to be involved in the planning process.

An All-Staff Meeting, chaired by the Dean, July 26 (9:30-11:00, Jayhawk Room, Kansas Union) and July 27 (2:30-4:00, Watson Conference Room A), will be devoted mainly to strategic planning, including answering staff questions and concerns.

The Steering Committee will orchestrate the following “Background Activities” to promote fresh thinking:

Ask Library staff to help identify topics that indicate future directions and trends for the Libraries and the environment in which it operates.

Ask Library staff to help identify and make available readings to inform and update staff and the Committee on these topics and to help identify potential presenters from within or outside the Libraries.

Ask Library staff to help sponsor and participate in group discussions around these topics. Some topics will be general and of interest to all staff. Others will focus on more specific issues and will attract smaller interest groups.

Sponsor, in coordination with the Staff Development Committee, programs on topics identified by staff and featuring presenters whom staff have suggested. One of these is already planned: August 3, Mel Hawkes, Staff Development Officer at the University of Utah Libraries and Visiting Program Officer at ARL.
September:

Week of September 11th: Sessions involving all Library staff to clarify the Libraries’ values, facilitated by ARL consultant Mel Hawkes.

September 21st and 22nd: “Town Hall” meetings involving all Library staff to identify the themes that will be discussed at greater depth in later parts of the strategic planning process. These meetings will be facilitated by ARL consultant Kathryn Deiss.

October:

Week of October 2nd: The Steering Committee will hold a retreat, facilitated by Susan Jurow, to further explore the strategic directions that might be included in the final report of the Committee. Additional staff, to be determined later, will also participate in the retreat.

Retreat participants will select the three to five most important strategic directions. The Steering Committee will establish Task Forces that will flesh out these directions and recommend specific actions (key success factors) needed to move the Libraries along the designated path. Task Forces begin work in mid-October.

Mid-to-late October (tentative): The Senate Library Committee and the Hall Center will sponsor a program on the future of research libraries.

Late October: More Town Hall meetings, these specifically including the Libraries stakeholders: faculty, students, and other administrative units.

November:

Task Force reports due on November 17.

Steering Committee begins work on final report.

December:

Final report due to Dean on December 20.

Staff Participation.

As you can discern from the outline above, there will be several places in the strategic planning process in which staff participation will be essential. The Steering Committee expects that each Library staff member will participate in at least one of the Background Activities (July-August), in one of the Libraries’ Values sessions (September), and one of the Town Hall meetings (also September). Multiple sessions of each of the events will be held to enable staff with service desk duties to attend. The Committee is recommending to the Dean that he ask all supervisors not only to encourage but also facilitate staff participation in strategic planning.
PERSONNEL

Vicki Coleman, Engineering Librarian, has announced her resignation to accept the position of Director of Clemons Library with the University of Virginia. Vicki began her employment with the KU Libraries in August, 1998. Her resignation is effective September 7, although she will be using some accumulated vacation leave prior to her official date of resignation, making the timing of her departure in mid-August.

Sandy Gilliland

INTERIM ARRANGEMENTS ANNOUNCED FOR ENGINEERING LIBRARY LEADERSHIP

I am pleased to announce that Kathleen Neeley, University Archives and Grants Coordinator, and Helen Dee, Periodicals Unit, Access Services, have agreed to serve part-time on an interim basis in the Engineering Library for the duration of the Fall semester. Kathleen will be responsible for providing leadership to the Engineering Library staff, some collection development, patron assistance, liaison with the Engineering faculty, and she will represent Spahr Engineering Library at Pub Heads and Coordinating Council meetings. Helen will be responsible for providing circulation support and supervision of student assistants while the Library Assistant II position is vacant. In addition, she will be involved in training the new Library Assistant II, once that person is hired.

We very much appreciate Kathleen's and Helen's willingness to provide this much needed assistance in the Engineering Library.

Keith Russell

CHANGES IN BIBLIOGRAPHIC RESPONSIBILITIES

A number of staff transitions are reflected in upcoming changes to the bibliographic responsibilities of several librarians.

As noted in another article in this edition of FYI, Kathleen Neeley is filling in as Engineering Librarian upon the departure of Vicki Coleman.

Beginning August 1st, Loretta Spurling will add Economics to her bibliographic responsibilities. As has been previously announced, Loretta is joining the “greater” Anschutz staff full-time where she can easily interact with the Business and Economics faculty and students. Jim Neeley will concentrate on his library-wide responsibilities for licensing electronic resources.

With his arrival on August 7th, Richard Fyffe will take over as temporary bibliographer for Physics and Astronomy as well as the new Indigenous Studies fund. George Gibbs had been filling in pending the hiring of an assistant dean for scholarly communication.

CORRECTION TO THE WATSON LIBRARY EXHIBITS COMMITTEE ANNUAL REPORT
In the Watson Library Exhibits Committee’s Annual Report we neglected to include Rich Ring’s name in the list of people who worked to put together the exhibit commemorating the 75th anniversary of Watson. This was an important exhibit that was extremely well prepared, and Rich played an important role in its development. The committee apologizes for the oversight.

An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer
We are encouraging all interested library staff to attend KU's second annual Teaching Summit, to be held Tuesday, August 22 from 8:00-1:00 (the last hour is an optional lunch). The opening session will take place in 130 Budig Hall. This event is sponsored by the Center for Teaching Excellence and will be open to all KU and KU Medical Center staff.

This year's format features many opportunities for KU Libraries staff to interact with faculty colleagues. Following a welcome by the Chancellor and a keynote address on "How We Measure Teaching and Learning" by the Provost, participants will get to choose two different break-out sessions covering topics such as:

- Motivating students to learn: engaging strategies for success
- Meeting the needs of all students: reaching a wide range of abilities
- Using student feedback to improve teaching before the end of a course
- Best teaching practices in higher education
- Using technology to enhance instruction
- General education goals at KU: how they affect our teaching

Interested staff should contact CTE directly (#4199 or cte@ukans.edu) to register.

Shortly after the Teaching Summit, IC would like to sponsor an informal summit of our own staff on the library's role in supporting teaching and learning. We hope this will provide all of us with an opportunity to reflect upon what we learned in the larger teaching summit and to consider how well our current instructional programs are supporting the Library's and University's goals. The library-wide summit will take place on Wednesday, August 30 from 3:00-4:30 in Conference Room A. A revised copy of the Libraries' Instruction Plan, which states our goals and objectives for instruction and includes some new sections on ideas for assessing the success of our efforts, is attached to this message.

We hope to see you there!

ACRL: Rare Books and Manuscripts Section [RBMS]
RBMS Preconference July 7, 2000

I attended the Rare Books and Manuscripts Section’s Preconference to present an invited paper, “A Science of Shadows: Carbon Dust Illustrations From the Herrick Collection,” which summarized my research [in progress] conducted in the Herrick Collection of Spencer Research Library’s Special Collections Department. In the Herrick Collection are 24 original carbon dust scientific illustrations created by A.B. Streedain, an early 20th century University of Chicago scientific illustrator. The carbon dust technique was developed in 1911 by Max Brodel, an artist at the Johns Hopkins University’s School of Medicine. My presentation focused on the reasons Brodel invented the carbon dust technique, Brodel’s possible association with Streedain, and why the carbon dust technique was used to illustrate the scientific publications of C. Judson Herrick, a notable University of Chicago neuroanatomist.

ACRL: Science and Technology Section Program
ALA Annual Conference
July 8-10, 2000

I attended the following programs:

• E-books: the future is at our doorstep

This program included presentations by Susan Maciak [Univ. of Texas at Austin] and Brad Norris [netLibrary]. The potential use and impact of e-books on the sci/tech library were the focus of the presentations and discussion which followed. I have requested a copy of the presentors’ texts for this interesting program and will be glad to share the copy with colleagues.

• Continuing developments in energy, science, and technology information

Judith Gilmore, a senior librarian from the U.S. Dept. of Energy’s Office of Science and Technology Information [OSTI] highlighted new information services and products which provide internet access to research reports, federal R&D project summaries, journal literature, and preprints of interest to scientists, engineers, and the public. Several useful websites were described; my favorites were http://www.osti.gov/graylit, which provides a nexus for environmental and energy-related “gray literature” and technical reports from various government agencies, and http://emsp.em.doe.gov/hain.htm, which provides access to resources of the U.S. Environmental Management Scientific Program.
• Bibliographic instruction in sci/tech libraries: best practices

This program included lively discussion and excellent presentations which summarized "best practices" for teaching sci/tech students how to effectively find and use scientific information. I have printed summaries from each presenter, and would be glad to share them with colleagues.

• The Forum for Science and Technology Libraries: Research Program

The "Forum" is an appointed committee which reviews research in progress, and selects presenters for a research program held at ALA annual meetings. I attended the program as a new member of the Forum, and as a sci/tech librarian very interested to hear about research by colleagues. Topics discussed during the program included performance measures for e-journals; issues pertaining to recruitment, leadership characteristics, and productivity of science and engineering librarians; the "e-volution" of scholarly communication in Physics and Astronomy.

I am grateful to the Staff Development Committee for providing support for my attendance at the programs described above.

Travel Report

Name: Lea Currie
Name of Event: ALA Annual Conference, 2000
Dates of Travel: July 8-10, 2000
Department: Watson Reference
Location: Chicago

My trip to the Annual Conference was very brief this year. I arrived in Chicago just in time to join some other KU librarians for a boat tour of the architecture of Chicago. Since it was my first trip to Chicago, this was an excellent introduction to the city and a great way to get my bearings.

Next on my agenda was a meeting with Jeff Bullington, who is the co-chair of the New Members Round Table Mentoring Committee. We met with an interesting gentleman from the Netherlands, who Jeff and I were co-mentoring at this year’s ALA. He is a vendor for a company that supplies materials to all public libraries in the Netherlands. His company is government owned, so it is a not-for-profit.

Sunday morning was spent at McCormick Place visiting with vendors in the exhibit hall. Some of the more interesting offerings were Questia, the new company that really isn’t selling anything yet, Gale, who has new databases offering links to full-text primary materials, and ProQuest, who was touting its extraordinary genealogy database.

My first committee meeting was Sunday, 2:30 p.m. – 4:30 p.m. I met with the RUSA/MARS (Machine-Assisted Reference Services) Products and Services Committee. Each summer we plan a Discussion Forum for Midwinter, usually inviting vendors to talk about the latest resources. This year we are planning a discussion on the economics of full-text publishing. We want participants to learn how much it really costs to publish full-text online. Invited to the discussion will be an e-book publisher, an encyclopedia publisher, and a non-profit publisher or a group who publishes a resource online, free of charge.

Monday morning I attended an orientation for Board Members and Chairs of New Members Round Table committees. I am the incoming chair of the NMRT Diversity Committee. This meeting was a great opportunity to meet with other NMRT Chairs and plan some liaison activities for the upcoming year.

I want to thank the Staff Development Committee for helping me pay for my trip to this conference.
Minutes of the Executive Committee
Library Faculty Assembly
Tuesday, July 18, 2000
1:00-2:30 p.m.
Conference Room A, Watson Library

Present: Anderson (Chair), Burich (VC, Chair-Elect), Christenberry (LI), Culp (Secretary), Gillespie (LII), M. Miller (UC Professional), Wilson (LIII)

- Anderson opened discussions on the recruitment and appointments to the Assembly's standing committees. Recommendations were heard. It was suggested that we remind colleagues (via a posting on the appropriate library list-serv) to submit on or before July 21, the form, a "Call for Volunteers: Appointed LFA Committees".

- In keeping with established practice, we made tentative appointments of LFA Executive Committee members as liaisons to five of the six LFA appointed committees. We hope to make the sixth appointment at our next meeting.

- The committee opened for discussion the subject of responsibility for the periodic update of the LFA intranet page. Recommendations will be heard at the next meeting.

- Charges to the standing committees will be a subject for discussion next meeting. In view of impending demands, during the coming semester, that strategic planning and its task forces will impose on our time, it was suggested that any special charges be carried out during the six-month period of January to June 2001.

- Next meeting, 1:00-2:30 p.m., Tuesday, July 25, 2000, Conference Room B, Watson Library.

Respectfully submitted,
Bryan Culp, Secretary
OUR LIBRARY ‘FRIENDS’
Professor Norman Saul recently spotted a book in the Lawrence Public Library book sale with KU markings and held it out for possible return to its proper place. The book is: Francois-Xavier Martin, The History of Louisiana from the earliest period (New Orleans, 1827-1829. Only vol. II was in the book sale because vol. I was just where it was supposed to be – on the Watson shelves. These volumes were originally given to the University of Kansas in 1917 in memory of William B. Thayer. The first volume has an even more interesting bookplate: Edward Everett, with the latin motto “Patria Veritas Fides”. I believe that this is the Edward Everett, one of the most famous orators in nineteenth century America. After a long career as Governor of Massachusetts, US representative and senator, and president of Harvard, Everett delivered the principal address at the dedication of the national cemetery at Gettysburg on November 19, 1863.

The restored and re-united volumes will be moved to special Collections. Thanks to the library’s friends for their sharp eyes and generosity. And to Jim Helyar and Gordon Anderson who helped with this rescue operation.

Event: ALA 2000 Annual Conference
Dates of Travel: July 6-11, 2000
Location: Chicago

I attend the semiannual ALA meetings primarily to meet with colleagues in the ALA/ACRL/ Western European Studies Section. WESS is a very active and diverse group whose members are extremely busy during these ALA conferences.

In Chicago I began this particular ALA peregrination with the AAU/ARL German Resources Project membership meeting on July 6th. The GRP (http://lcweb.loc.gov/loc/german/) is devoted to expanding and enhancing resource-sharing and interlibrary loan between German and North American Research Libraries. (see http://www.gbv.de, English version, for more information about the German side of the project). German research libraries are extraordinarily rich in English-language and other foreign-language collections, and this project seeks to make these collections available to scholars in North America, and vice versa. The GRP is not a German-language ILL service, it is a genuine and far-reaching resource-sharing project across the bibliographic board. As Deborah Jakubs noted at the meeting, the German Resources Project demonstrates how area studies enhance all aspects of the research library's mission. The GRP is a model for other regional projects of the ARL's Global Resources Project.

The three-hour meeting focused on two areas. We first heard reports from the chairs of the GRP working groups: Collection Development [where I reside], Document-Delivery, Digital Libraries and Bibliographic Control. Most of the meeting was devoted to hearing presentations from subject librarians from several specialized libraries in Germany:

- Peter Altekrüger, Head of User Services at the Bibliothek des Ibero-Amerikanischen Instituts Berlin
- Tomas Bürger, Head of Special Collections and art librarian, Sächsische Landesbibliothek, Dresden
- Rachel Heuberger, subject specialist for Jewish Studies, Stadt- und Universitätsbibliothek Frankfurt/Main
- Dorothea Sommer, Deputy Director and librarian for Near Eastern Studies, Universitäts- und Landesbibliothek Halle

These libraries collections are fully part of the German Resources Project. The most immediate benefit to KU library scholars from the GRP is these libraries' participation in interlibrary loan.

Please contact me directly if you wish to learn more about the German Resource Project's services to library cooperation and research.
Saturday was full of meetings, beginning with a meeting of the WESS Membership Committee, of which I am the outgoing chair. We made final preparations for the coming Sunday-evening WESS social event (q.v. below), worked on plans for a WESS event at the March ACRL conference in Denver, and discussed other ways to attract and bring new WESS members more quickly into our main-stream activities.

At the WESS Scandinavianists Discussion Group we shared our analyses of online periodical indexes and subject databases available free from Scandinavian research libraries via the web. Mariann Tiblin, Germanic-studies bibliographer at the University of Minnesota, outlined the Scandinavian cooperative collection-development plan between the Universities of Minnesota and Wisconsin. I will be the chair of the Scandinavianists DG for the coming ALA midwinter and annual meetings.

The WESS Research & Planning Committee, along with the ALA International Relations Round Table and the Goethe-Institut US/Canada hosted a program on "European Initiatives in Library Cooperation and Technology". The program featured four speakers and their topics:

- Patricia Manson, Directorate General Information Society for multimedia content and tools and cultural heritage applications: "Towards a European library space: European Commission initiatives in library networking and technologies"
- Dieter Fellner, Technical University of Braunschweig, and the Director of V3D2: "Digital library initiatives: Distributed Processing and Delivery of Documents"
- Christa Schoening-Walter, Society of Medical Documentation, German Research Society: "Digital Library Activities in Germany - Strategic Concepts and Major Projects"
- Ewald Brahms, German Res. Soc. and Univ. of Lower Saxony, Goettingen, "Overview: European digital library projects with the League of European Research Libraries"

Next the Collection Development Working Group of the German Resources Project met to continue working on an extensive plan for collection-development among GRP member libraries in North America and Germany. We also discussed a plan for several libraries to acquire jointly the collection of the now closed Erfurt (Germany) Pedagogical Institute Library.

Finally, Michele and Barbara Casalini, publishers of the periodical Reference Reviews Europe Annual (Fiesole: Casalini Libri -- for the online version, see http://www.rre.casalini.com/RREO.htm) invited the RRE editors, reviewers, and abstractors (of whom I am one) for a quiet party to celebrate the publication of the 1999 edition (also available on line). RRE is the English-language abridged version of the quarterly German publication Informationsmittel für Bibliotheken [Reference Sources for Libraries] (Berlin: Deutsches Bibliotheks Institut, 1993- ISSN: 0944-1867 -- also available online through the RRE web site).

Sunday meetings began with the WESS Germanists Discussion Group, where we heard report from Mike Olson (Harvard) on the March 2000 Leipzig Book Fair, an overview of the Deutsche Bibliothek and the of work the DB's national bibliographic services, a very interesting presentation by Gary Handman, Director of the Media Resources Center at UC-Berkeley, and Dick Hacken, [husband of KU's own Marianne Siegmund and] European Studies Bibliographer at BYU, on the latest developments, hurdles, and other aspects of acquiring German cinema on DVD.
The WESS special topics discussion group was led by Mariann Tiblin, who facilitated discussion on how to promote and foster development of special collections on European-language groups, particularly beyond established the German and Scandinavian collections to those of other European immigrant nationalities in the United States, and to expand "Europe" beyond the prevalent notion of Western Europe.

The WESS social event on Sunday evening was the acme of the conference, a real hit. Aboard Chicago's First Lady, the flagship of the Chicago Architecture Foundation's series of Chicago River architectural lecture-tours, we cruised the River and Lake Michigan in the late evening and twilight. The WESS Membership Committee (chaired by this writer) charted the boat and hired a caterer to provide a wholesome buffet for two and one half hours of delightful weather, calm waters, and pleasant company. Our special fortune was soon thereafter followed by a dark and stormy night.

The Monday-morning WESS program, entitled "Italian Studies and Italian Cultural Presence in North America: A Tribute to the Life and Contributions of Mario Casalini [1926-1998]", a Mensch fondly remembered and deeply missed by a great many people. Mario's Casalini Libri, now ably led by his three children, has over the past 40 years been the key supplier of Italian-oriented materials to academic library collections in North America. The program featured four speakers:

- Dante Della Terza, Harvard University. "Italian Books in North America: the Role of Mario Casalini in Enriching Academic Collections."
- Ingrid Rowland, Associate Professor of Art History, University of Chicago. "Athanasius Kircher, a Jesuit Scientist in Baroque Rome."

The speakers' papers will be posted to WESS Web (http://www.lib.virginia.edu/wess/index.html). The 2001 WESS program will focus on the Iberian peninsula, with emphasis on emerging groups such as non-Castilian women writers, gay and lesbian publishing and writing, and North African immigrant literature.

For the last thirty-six hours my energies went toward attending the Monday-morning WESS general membership meeting, where this year's recipient of the Nijhoff award (10,000 Dutch guilders) was announced -- Jeffrey Larson, Yale University, will work in the Vatican on "Documenting the Dissemination of the Gregorian Calendar Reform [1582] in France During the Wars of Religion.", Monday afternoon visits with European vendors at the McCormick Place center; Monday-evening dinner with Lars, Faye, and Mel that evening; and a Tuesday-morning WESS Executive Committee meeting. Here we presented our individual committee reports and discussed progress on the combined WESS-SEES-ACRL exhibit to be held at the International Booksellers' and Librarians' Centre at the October 2000 Frankfurt Book Fair.

The Delta Airlines terminal at O'Hare Airport was pleasantly quiet on Tuesday afternoon.

As usual, I wish to thank warmly the Staff Development Committee for providing travel support so that I can attend in person these important meetings of the ALA/ACRL Western European Studies Section, both in the past and, I hope, in times to come.
Minutes of the Executive Committee
Library Faculty Assembly
Tuesday, July 25, 2000
1:00-2:30 p.m.
Conference Room B, Watson Library

Present: Anderson (Chair), Burich (VC, Chair-Elect), Christenberry (LI), Gillespie (LII), M. Miller (UC Professional), Wilson (LIII)

- The minutes for July 18 were approved.

- We continued to discuss appointments to the Assembly’s standing committees. Recommendations were heard, and the following appointments were made:

  - Planning & Resources – Denise Stephens
  - Staff Development – Stephanie Schaffner
  - Research & Scholarly Activities – Sally Haines, Lyn Wolz
  - Salaries & Benefits – Susan Craig
  - Nominating & Ballot – David Pardue
  - Code & Bylaws – Susan Case

- Nancy Burich will attend the Senate Libraries committee meetings as the representative of LFA Exec.

- We began discussion of committee charges for FY 2001. Rather than attempt to read all the annual reports, and discuss charges in this meeting, the appointed committee liaisons will read over the annual reports for their committees and propose charges to be discussed in a later meeting.

- The committee discussed the need for a procedural manual for LFA Exec. detailing common practices. Nancy Burich offered to document these common practices throughout the year and create a schedule that could be followed in future years. For example, perhaps elections could be held earlier in the year so that committee appointments can be made before July 1 of each year.

- Next meeting, 3:00-4:00 p.m., Monday, July 31, 2000, Conference Room A, Watson Library.

Respectfully submitted,
Mary Miller

The cataloging department has established an email account on Outlook for staff to report problems, and request services. To facilitate distribution of the incoming messages, the subject lines on incoming messages should be filled out with the appropriate topic listed below.

- To email about the cataloging services mentioned below you just need to type: watcatserv in the To field. This address is an alias (i.e. a simplified form of the name). If you use the address book you’ll find the email address under: Library Watcat Service.
- To email the entire department (used mainly for announcements) the email address is: watcat-l.

Strategic Planning Website Outline
Present: Anderson (Chair), Burich (VC, Chair-Elect), Christenberry (LI), Culp (Secretary), Gillespie (LII), M. Miller (UC Professional), Wilson (LIII)

- The minutes of July 31 meeting were approved.

- It was recommended the secretary consult the LFA Executive Secretary for past years to find out who has been responsible for updating the LFA Executive Committee/LFA intranet site. Culp will report to the committee.

- Citing inconsistencies in the Code & Bylaws regarding the role of ex-officio members on the standing committees, the chair reported on findings in Robert's Rules of Order, Newly Revised regarding the privileges of ex-officio members, in a word, “there being no distinction between him and other board members.” Even if the ex-officio member should be outside the authority of the society [in this circumstance, presumably, KU Libraries], he “has all the privileges of board membership, including the right to make motions and to vote . . . .” LFA Exec will refer this issue to the committee on Code & Bylaws for further consideration.

- LFA Exec continued from the last meeting review & discussion of standing committee special charges.

  The committee discussed special charges to the Committee on Staff Development.

  The committee discussed special charges to the Committee on Salary & Benefits.

- Next meeting, 3:00-4:30 p.m., Monday, August 21, 2000, Conference Room A, Watson Library.

Minutes of the Executive Committee
Library Faculty Assembly
Monday, July 31, 2000
3:00-4:30 p.m.
Conference Room A, Watson Library

Present: Anderson (Chair), Burich (VC, Chair-Elect), Culp (Secretary), Gillespie (LII), M. Miller (UC Professional), Wilson (LIII)

• The minutes of July 25 meeting were approved.

• The chair requested that LFA Exec’s liaisons to the standing committees notify the newly elect of their appointment. The liaison will request of the whole committee that it call a meeting for the election of officers, and that the committee report, forthwith, the results to LFA Exec.

• We continued from the last meeting review & discussion of standing committee special charges.

The chair submitted for discussion a proposal that LFA Exec convene a meeting to include the Dean, PRC, Classified Conference Exec, and Jim Neeley (chair, strategic planning) to discuss PRC’s functions in strategic planning. The committee concurred.

The committee reviewed the special charges to the Committee on Salary & Benefits. It was suggested that the pending ARL salary analysis endorsed by the Dean include comparative data not limited to job category. Discussions are pending with S&BC members regarding FY 2000 discussions of the ARL salary analysis.

The committee reviewed the special charges to the Committee on Research & Scholarly Activities.

• Next meeting, 3:00-4:30 p.m., Monday, August 7, 2000, Conference Room A, Watson Library.

Respectfully submitted,
Bryan Culp

Coordinating Council Meeting

07/12/00

Absent: G.Anderson, P.Bell, Burich, Cardell, Craig, Culp, Doll, Emde, Gibbs, Gillespie, Graves, Koepp, Krentz, J.Miller, R.Miller, S.Williams, M.Wilson

Welcoming New Members of Coordinating Council - Keith Russell

- Jan Altenbernd, Classified Conference Executive Board chair
- Gordon Anderson, LFA Executive chair
- Lee Currie, Diversity chair
- Becky Schulte, SRL Reader Services Librarian

Open Call for Brief Announcements of ALA Highlights (more details may be presented/requested for future CC meetings, other open meetings, and/or a Staff Development Sponsored ALA review, If one is held) (I contacted everyone for a more in-depth version of their role at the ALA conference, rcw)

- Becky Schulte, with help from Jerry Niebaum, presented a seminar called “Collecting the Web” on July 6th at the Rare Books and Manuscripts section of ALA’s pre-conference. Becky spoke about a project she’ll be doing during her sabbatical on left and right wing political organizations. The research is being done to add to the Wilcox Collection on contemporary political movements. Becky presented to a full house with standing room only available.

- Brian Baird received the Esther J. Piercy Award, which includes a citation and a $1,500 cash prize, on July 12th. This award recognizes early-career librarians who show outstanding promise for continuing contribution and leadership in the areas of collections and technical services librarianship. The selection committee noted Brian’s leading role locally, nationally and internationally in the field of preservation and especially his enthusiastic willingness to share his expertise and commitment to preservation on the regional and national levels. He has contributed innovative ideas to library literature on a wide range of topics including conservation, binding, environmental controls, and collection surveys. He also created “Brittle,” a cooperative program that enables subscribing libraries to purchase preservation photocopy replacements of embrittled books in a cost-effective manner.

- Denise Stephens presented, "GIS in Business Research: It’s All About Relationships", at the ALA Meeting on July 8. The program was sponsored by the Business Reference and Services section of RUSA (Reference and User Services Association). Her speech focused on the relationships (internal and external) that libraries must build in order to develop and sustain effective digital services like GIS.

- Susan Case presented a paper to the Rare Books & Manuscripts Section [of ACRL/ALA], 7 July 2000, in Chicago. The title of her presentation was: A Science of Shadows: Carbon Dust Illustrations from the Herrick Collection. She was reporting "research in progress" that she’s conducting in the Herrick Collection [re: neuroanatomy] at KU’s Spencer Research Library. In the Herrick Collection Susan has found 24 original scientific illustrations created with the carbon dust technique originated by Max Brodel. The Herrick Collection illustrations were created from 1913-1934 by A.B. Streedain, an artist at the University of Chicago. Her presentation focused on the reasons Brodel invented the carbon dust technique, Brodel’s possible connections to A.B. Streedain and/or C. Judson Herrick, and Streedain’s use of the carbon dust technique to illustrate the scientific publications of C. Judson Herrick.

- Texas A&M University hosted a meeting where they discussed the results of the SERVQUAL survey that was administered this past spring. Keith Russell, Julia Rholes and Vicki Coleman attended the meeting. Twelve institutions participated in this project. The data for KU almost mirrors the aggregate data. "Access to collections" is an area where we may consider improving services. Our "neat and professional appearance" exceeded the respondents expectations.

- Bill Crowe reported that he had spent a good deal of time on OCLC related matters at ALA. Keith Russell commented that he had seen Crowe act as master of ceremonies for the OCLC President’s luncheon, which had a "Wizard of the Web" theme.

- Provost David Shulenburger was also a guest speaker

- Kent Miller was selected to fill a 3-year term as co-chair of a committee involved with library moves.

Update on Strategic Planning – Jim Neeley
The steering committee, consisting of Jim (chair), Jan Altenbernd, Peggy Bell, Kristin Eshelman, George Gibbs, Kathy Graves, Marianne Reed and Margaret Wilson, met June 22nd with Susan Jurow to plan the Libraries’ strategic planning effort.

Keith Russell issued the committees’ charge on KULIB and published it in the July 6th issue of FYI. All staff and student participation in the process is strongly encouraged. There will be ample opportunities for communication with all committee members through an e-mail address and a web site that will be available very soon. The final report will be due on December 20th.

Personnel Issues Update – Sandy Gilliland
- The search committee for the Assistant Special Collections Librarian, Digital Projects, position is reviewing applications. They hope to agree on three candidates and schedule interviews near the end of August.
• The search committee for the Publications Design position has been receiving applications. This is an unclassified professional position. The committee plans to ask a professional in this field to evaluate each applicants' portfolio of designs.
• A new position for a Reference Librarian at the Regents Center will be advertised soon. This will be an entry level position.

Facilities Updates – Kent Miller
Government Documents is in its last three days of life in Malott Hall. Staff will be moving at the end of this week. The Science Reference collection in Anschutz has been shifted to make room for the Government Documents collection. Refer people to Anschutz Reference desk for information. Denise Stephens is planning for no service disruptions during this move.

Other Topics and Announcements
Provost Dave Shulenburger has asked for a concerted effort from KU employees and students to conserve energy. This hot summer has taken a toll on utility resources.

Agenda for Future Coordinating Council Meetings
Lyn Wolz on the Security Conference
Margaret Wilson on CORC
Bill Crowe will show 'Wizard of the Web' video presented at an OCLC luncheon

CHANCELLOR'S AWARD FOR DISTINGUISHED LIBRARIANSHIP

I am very pleased to announce that Brian Baird, Preservation Librarian, is the 2000 recipient of the Chancellor's Award for Distinguished Librarianship.

Information about nominees for this prestigious award was reviewed by the Distinguished Librarian Award Committee: Prof. Bill Carswell (Architecture & Urban Design), Lars Leon (Retrieval Services), Kathleen McClusky-Fawcett (Associate Provost), Brad Schaffner (Library Slavic Department), Becky Schulte (Kansas Collection), and Lyn Wolz (Regents Center Library). The committee’s recommendation that Brian be the 2000 recipient was endorsed by me and Provost Shulenburger.

The University community will recognize Brian during the Faculty/Staff Convocation, September 6, 3:30 p.m. This is an occasion which, in former Chancellor Budig’s words describing the award (which he established), “allows us to underscore for our new students and their parents the University’s emphasis upon excellence in teaching and also the central role played by the Libraries and our Library faculty and staff.” The Library will honor Brian at a reception to be scheduled later this semester.

This prestigious award confirms what so many of us long have known about Brian's exemplary skills, abilities, and knowledge. He is without doubt a librarian of the first rank. All who are associated with the University of Kansas and its Libraries are fortunate indeed that Brian is among us. Please join me in congratulating him.

Johnson Room Announcement (aka manuscripts reading room, Dept. of Special Collections)

An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer
Effective the week of August 21, 2000, the William Savage Johnson Memorial Room is being closed temporarily for renovation. All manuscripts-related reference books formerly shelved in the Johnson Room have been moved into the stacks and can be paged from the Department of Special Collections. Manuscript readers will now use the reading room at the west end of the third floor.

The Johnson Room is expected to be reopened in late November, 2000, to accommodate traditional book collections and readers who may need special accommodations, and will retain much the same ambiance intended by the donors who supported its original establishment in Watson Library. We are very pleased to announce that the room also will be available for use for some class sessions and to welcome groups as large as about forty persons for seminars, colloquia, and instructional sessions.

Among other new features, the room will include a contemporary lectern equipped to allow high-quality detailed projection of rare and fragile materials on site and from the Internet.

The KU community will be invited to a re-dedication of the room in Prof. Johnson’s memory later this academic year.

Thank you for your patience during this period of transition.

An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer
The Institute for Information Literacy was established by the Association of College & Research Libraries (ACRL) in 1998 for the purpose of: preparing librarians to become effective teachers in information literacy programs; supporting librarians, other educators and administrators in playing a leadership role in the development and implementation of information literacy programs; and forging new relationships throughout the educational community to work towards information literacy curriculum development. I participated in this year’s Immersion ‘00 institute, held August 5-9, at the University of Washington in Seattle.

Ninety librarians from across the country and around the world (Australia, New Zealand, Canada, and Jamaica, anyway) participated in the program. Institute participants were selected to participate in one of two tracks: Track I, designed for new librarians or instruction librarians who are interested in enhancing, refreshing, or extending their individual instruction skills which can be applied to instruction programs; or Track II, designed for instruction librarians who seek to further develop, integrate, or advance an information literacy program within their institution. I was selected to participate in Track II.

The faculty for the Institute, Debra Gilchrist (Pierce College), Susan Barnes-Whyte (Linfield College), Joan Kaplowitz (UCLA), Karen Williams (University of Arizona), and Anne Zald (University of Washington) led us through 4.5 days of presentation, discussion, and reflection upon such topics as change dynamics within higher education and within library organizations, institutional outcomes assessment, scalability, distributed learning, and the integration of teaching, learning and technology. Each Track II participant wrote a case study describing their institution’s instructional environment in advance of the Institute. While in Washington, we were charged to develop an “action plan” for some aspect of our program that we wanted to strengthen or enhance, incorporating some of the information and techniques that we covered during our group sessions. To support us in this effort, the 30 Track II participants were subdivided into six cohort groups. We met in these groups to discuss our case studies and to begin deciding which facet of our programs we wanted to tackle and how.

I chose to focus my action plan on ideas for enhancing our instructional outreach within the various disciplines at KU. I believe the University climate is very favorable to the idea of students’ developing research skills within their majors: We must redesign our undergraduate programs so that every undergraduate student will undertake a research experience that is discipline appropriate – Provost’s 1998 Convocation Address on “Creating Premier Learning Communities.” This is also a logical extension of the proposed goals for KU’s general education program, which include a goal for the educational experience to help students: enhance the skills and knowledge needed to research, organize, evaluate and apply new information and develop a spirit of critical inquiry and intellectual integrity. And, this effort complements some of the discussions we will begin within the Libraries and throughout the University with regards to scholarly communication – how the different formats of information materials support the University’s goals of fostering excellence in teaching and research. In the coming months, I hope to further refine some directions for these efforts in the coming months, based upon conversations with various groups in the Libraries, including the Instruction Council, bibliographers, and Assistant Deans Fyffe and Rholes.

Attending the Immersion ’00 program was a marvelous experience, particularly for the opportunity it afforded me to talk with other folks who do what I do and who are all trying to do a better job with developing library and information competencies within our institutions. I met many terrific people, picked up some good ideas, and managed to rise above a steady diet of less-than-inspiring UW dorm food. I would like to thank the Kansas Library Association’s Continuing Education committee, the KU Libraries Staff Development Committee, and Dean Russell, whose financial support made my participation in this program possible.
PAULETTE DIFILIPPO ANNOUNCES RESIGNATION

Paulette DiFilippo, Reference Librarian, has announced her resignation. Paulette began employment with the Libraries in July, 1980 as a Science Cataloger. Throughout Paulette's 20-plus years in the KU Libraries she has served as Head of the Catalog Maintenance Section, Head of the Authorities Unit, acting co-head of the Cataloging Department, Special Projects Cataloger, Monographic cataloger, and NACO Coordinator. In the mid-1980's Paulette's interest in reference services was fulfilled by working a few shifts each week at the Watson Reference Desk. In 1992, Reference assistance was added to her formal assignment on a part-time basis, and in 1993 this assignment became one-half of Paulette's duties. She assumed her current, full-time Reference Librarian assignment in July, 1999. Paulette's resignation becomes effective October 15, 2000.

This weekend is the 146th birthday of Lawrence and a small exhibit of drawn from the collections of the Kansas Collection will be on display at the Lawrence Public Library to mark the anniversary.

"Only Yesterday: Remembering the Lawrence Centenary" recalls the 1954 celebrations that marked the 100th anniversary of the founding of Lawrence. The exhibit includes photographs of parades, printed posters and programs for events held during the centennial year. One of the documents on display lists the names of more than 200 children and adults who took part in pageants, plays, and performances of the day.

The exhibit will be on display from Friday, 15 September, through Monday, 18 September.

Bruce Flanders, director of the Lawrence Public Library, and Bill Crowe, Spencer Librarian, noted that the display anticipates the work of the Lawrence Sesquicentennial Commission. The Sesquicentennial Commission, under the leadership of Clenece Hills, has already begun to plan for the 2004 celebration. Current information about the Commission and its work may be found at http://www.lawrence150.org.

"This is a first of several 'countdown' events to Lawrence's 150th birthday," remarked Crowe. Flanders and Crowe hope that the periodic displays encourage the community to take advantage of the remarkable library collections available here in Lawrence.

Committee Minutes: (none)
I attended this year’s conference, “Sustaining our roots; Enriching our libraries” with Cindy Pierard and I was pleased to see many other KU Libraries staff members in attendance as well.

The General Session address, which opened the conference at 1:15 pm on Thursday, was presented by Paul Kobulnicky, Vice Chancellor for Information Services and University Librarian at the University of Connecticut. His presentation was entitled, “The Full Meal Deal: What IT and Libraries Bring to the Plate.” He addressed the attributes of and interactions between information technologists and librarians in higher education. I next attended a session presented by Terri Summey of Emporia State University, entitled “Who’s out there in CyberLearning: Creating a profile of distance learners for library services.” Terri reviewed the ACRL Guidelines for Distance Learning Services, discussed distance education at ESU, then discussed distance learning at the School of Library and Information Management as well as profiling SLIM distance learners. She discussed services offered to and proposed for distance learners. The last Thursday afternoon session I attended was “The Changing Role of Department Heads in Academic Libraries,” presented by Sha Li Zhang, Head of Technical Services, at Wichita State University Libraries. This turned out not to be what I expected as she basically reviewed job ads from the 1960s to 1990s to determine how duties and requirements had changed during those decades.

Thursday evening we were bused to the Kauffman Museum in North Newton for a catered dinner of traditional Mennonite foods — including borscht, verenice (dumplings), zwieback (buns), cucumber salad, and German chocolate cake. Tables were set up throughout the exhibits and I ate with a stuffed buffalo peering at me! This is an interesting little museum focusing on the immigration of the Mennonites to Kansas in the 1870s and I would recommend a visit if you are in the area.

Friday Cindy and I managed to get ourselves to the 7 am Library Instruction Round Table (LIRT) business meeting — Cindy is the present Chair of LIRT and focused the discussion on topics for a LIRT session presentation at the Tri-Conference next spring. I attended a session presented by David Duncan of WSU Libraries, “Internet inspirations I: the nuts and bolts of virtual instruction” followed by another session, “Public services and network services: talking together, working together. This was a lively panel discussion (Cindy was a panelist!) that focused on facilitating improved interaction between public services and computer/network services staffs in academic libraries.

The conference was interesting and informative and I am always glad for opportunities to visit with my Kansas library colleagues. I appreciate the support of the Staff Development Committee which subsidized my conference expenses.

Name of Event: The Annual Slavic Librarians’ Conference

Location: The University of Illinois, Urbana.

Dates of Travel: June 20-23, 2000

The 10th Annual Slavic Librarians’ Conference was held at the University of Illinois Libraries on June 21-23, 2000. It was hosted by the University of Illinois Center for Russian and East European Studies and was funded in part by the US Department of Education. The conference provides the opportunity for Slavic librarians from the US, Canada, and East Central Europe to meet and discuss issues of mutual concern. Although the conference is always held at the University of Illinois, the Slavic librarian who organizes the conference changes from year-to-year. As a result, the focus of the conference changes each year because the sessions and panels generally reflect the interests and concerns of the organizer. This year there were sessions devoted to cataloging, electronic resources, acquisitions, and reference. The organizer of this conference is a Slavic librarian at the University of Chicago. The Slavic Department at the UC Library still acquires over half of their new publications on exchange (most US libraries now acquire a majority of their materials from vendors). Therefore, it was surprising that there was no session devoted to the current state of book and serial exchanges.

I led a discussion on the development of a proposal to ARL’s Global Resources Programs for the Slavic world area. It appears that we will propose the creation of a document delivery program, similar to the Japan and Germany projects.

I would like to thank Staff Development for providing funding so I could attend this conference.

Travel Report

Name: Brad Schaffner
Department: Slavic

Name of Event: American Library Association’s Annual Conference

Location: Chicago, Illinois

Dates of Travel: July 6-11, 2000

As in past years, my main reason for going to the ALA conference is to attend meetings of the Slavic and East European Section (SEES) of ACRL. I continue to chair the SEES Preservation Committee. Thanks to Brian Baird’s help, I was able to arrange a small program on the de-acidification of books and paper. Robert J. Strauss of Preservation Technologies explained how de-acidification works and why it is an important preservation technique. He also talked about Preservation Technologies experience with working on Slavic and other international publications. The talk generated a lively discussion about the pros and cons of this process.

In addition to attending SEES meetings, I’m also a member of ALA’s International Relations Committee Eurasia and Central Asia Subcommittee. The bulk of this meeting was spent planning a program for the next annual meeting in San Francisco.

Along with attending meetings, I also served as the discussant for the SEES Annual Program. The Program focused on changes that have taken place in Slavic librarianship over the past decade. Speakers included June Pachuta Farris, Bibliographer, Slavic & East European Studies at the University of Chicago Regenstein Library; Allan Urbanic, Slavic & East European Librarian at the University of California Berkeley; and Teresa Tickle, Slavic, East European, and Central Asian Bibliographer at Michigan State University in East Lansing, MI.

I would like to thank the Staff Development Committee for providing partial funding so I could attend this meeting.
The International Slavic Librarian’s Conference is held every five years in conjunction with the International Council for Central and East European Studies’ (ICCEES) World Congress. (The World Congress was held immediately following the librarians’ conference in Tampere, Finland.) The theme of the Tallinn conference was “Libraries in Open Society.” The National Library of Estonia hosted the conference in its conference and meeting center. Completed in 1996, the National Library was a wonderful place to hold the meetings. Slavic librarians from over 20 different countries attended the conference.

As with most international gatherings, there was a broad array topics discussed during the sessions ranging from cooperative collection development to the creation of new electronic resources for Slavic studies. I organized the panel “Preserving Slavic Collections for Future Generations.” The panel provided a forum for the discussion of issues related to the preservation of materials published in East Central Europe and the countries of the former Soviet Union. Three papers examining various aspects of the preservation of library collections were presented. My paper focused on the evaluation of the condition of Slavic collections, while the other two, presented by the Slavic librarian at Indiana University and the Deputy Director of the Czech National Library, discussed options for the actual reformatting and preservation of materials.

Along with presenting a paper, I chaired a round-table discussion on the challenges of creating and providing access to Slavic electronic resources. Two vendors and two Slavic librarians addressed various issues related to the topic. Initially, I was concerned that the vendors would use this opportunity to present “infomercials” promoting their own products. I was pleasantly surprised when both vendors focused their comments on the challenges and expense (copyright, licensing, etc.) of creating these resources rather than pushing their own products. Many in the audience were surprised by the amount of negotiate and work that goes into the creation of an aggregate electronic resource. Based on the amount of discussion generated from the audience, this panel was well received by everyone who attended.
Along with the sessions, there was also a reception at the Finnish Ambassador's residence. (The ambassador and his wife actually attended the reception!) The closing dinner was held at an open-air museum in a old tavern with a thatched roof. After the dinner, Marianna Tax Choldin of the University of Illinois Libraries was honored by the Russian Government for the work that she has done with the Soros Foundation to improve libraries in Russia and beyond.

Tallinn, a medieval walled city, was a lovely venue for the conference. Much of the wall, as well as many towers and gates, remain making the city very picturesque.

I would like to thank the Staff Development Committee for providing partial funding so that I could attend this conference.

COLLEGIUM MUSICUM TO PERFORM AT SPENCER RESEARCH LIBRARY
The Instrumental Collegium Musicum, Prof. Paul Laird, director, will perform a concert at Spencer Research Library on Sunday October 29, at 7:30 p.m. The group, made up of students and faculty, will play music from the 16th, 17th, and 18th centuries for which original sources are found in the Spencer's collections. PROF. ALCOCK TO DEMONSTRATE CD OF ILLUSTRATIONS OF 17TH CENTURY DAILY LIFE
Staff are invited to attend a lecture/demonstration given by Dr. Nat Alcock (University of Warwick) on November 7th, 3:30, in the Johnson Room, Spencer Research Library. Dr. Alcock's presentation is entitled, "Living and Working in Seventeenth Century England: a presentation of the CD-ROM of drawings and descriptions from Randle Holme’s Academy of Armory (1688)."

Randle Holme's 1688 Academy of Armory began as a straightforward textbook of heraldry, but half-way through it he moved on to examine objects and activities of everyday life and work in the 17th century. He essentially transformed his heraldic manual into an illustrated encyclopedia of seventeenth century life and work. Although Holme was only able to publish the first part of the Academy, the remainder of his text with almost all of his original drawings survives in manuscript in the British Library. This unique encyclopedia of text and drawings has now been edited in the form of a CD-ROM, recently issued by the British Library. Dr. Alcock, the designer and compiler of this electronic edition of the Academy, will demonstrate the CD-ROM and discuss something of the technical aspects of CD-ROM presentation of primary historical material.

SATURDAY MORNINGS AT THE LIBRARY
Two very successful Saturday Morning workshops have already been held and two more are planned. Thanks to Sherry Williams and Brian Baird for starting off the series with such excellent presentations. On Saturday, November 4th Susan Craig and Cindy Pierard will present, “Armchair Traveling on the Web.” Library staff are more than welcome to attend. This workshop will start at 10:30 a.m. in the Clark Instruction Center. The final workshop for the fall will be on December 2nd when folks travel into Kansas City to the Linda Hall Library (lunch and holiday shopping following!). FROM: Cindy Pierard, Instruction Coordinator

RE: Report on Instruction Statistics Project

Attached to this memo are three supporting documents: 1) a table showing the number of instruction sessions reported by departments/units; 2) a table showing for-credit classes taught by library staff members; and 3) a copy of the Instruction Statistics form, which was used to gather this data.

Session Totals/Participant Totals
In FY00, 41 staff members (down from 45 last year) reported teaching 699 instruction sessions reaching 8855 people – both of these figures represent an increase over last year’s figures – 636 and 7778 respectively. A variety of staff members are active in the program and some are quite heavily involved with instructional outreach.

Curricular Impact of Instruction
Several new questions were added to this year’s form, asking staff members to note the KU courses with which they had worked. The purpose of these questions was to begin developing a better gauge of the curricular impact of our instructional programs.

Many staff members may be aware that recent University documents point toward a need for students to develop research skills. For example, the “Premier Learning Communities” report of Initiative 2001, the University’s Strategic Plan, states that: “Every student should have at least one assignment in the freshman/sophomore years that includes library research. Faculty should work with the library staff to enhance the library research experience.” Similarly, the proposed goals for KU’s general education program include among them a goal that these courses should:

enhance the skills and knowledge needed [by students] to research, organize, evaluate and apply new information and develop a spirit of critical inquiry and intellectual integrity...to this end, departments and schools should determine the types of research skills that are essential to their discipline and consider the classes in their subject area into which discipline-specific skills might be incorporated. KU Libraries staff members are available to assist instructors in this process.

These documents suggest that our instructional outreach is likely to intensify. As it stands, library staff members are already actively involved in outreach to KU courses. Survey respondents reported that they had worked with courses from approximately 43 different KU departments. 36% of all respondents reported that they had provided instruction (or would soon) for a research methods class in one or more of those departments. Six staff members reported that they taught or team-taught courses concerning library and information research skills. Future planning for instruction will need to involve careful consideration of the types of programming that will be most effective in expanding course-integrated instruction and what resources (space, staff time, technical support, etc.) might best facilitate this work.

Staff Concerns
The lack of quality instructional space was the greatest concern cited by survey respondents. Several people noted that the new CIC is great, but one facility cannot meet the demands on it, particularly during busy times in the semester such as early/mid-fall. Clearly, we will need to continue working towards better solutions to this problem, which was cited as a concern by staff throughout the library system. Another concern was the challenge of finding way to work effectively with faculty to help their students develop research skills. Two respondents reported that they felt challenged by the prospect of having to report all of these statistics.
National Trends in Instruction

The increase in our local instruction statistics is mirrored by trends in other ARL libraries, where instructional presentations were the second fastest growing service area as of 1998/9:

By 1999, more than one out of every four instructional sessions conducted in a typical ARL library had been added since 1991. The typical ARL library offered over 714 "teaching" sessions in 1998-99. If we assume that each session was at least an hour long, then, on average, the typical library offered the equivalent of 16 three-hour credit courses last year. Each course was attended on average by 13 people with a median number of 9,400 people receiving formal education through library instruction in a typical ARL library (excerpted Introduction to ARL Statistics, 1998/9)

Once one includes the instruction session totals for the Law Library and the KU Medical Center (in 1999, our combined report totals reported 776 sessions for 9,025 participants), it is clear that KU’s figures closely reflect those of the typical ARL library.

An interesting sidebar is that some ARL libraries have reported a slight decline in sessions between 1998 and 1999. The speculation is that this may reflect a shift away from “in-person” instruction sessions and towards Web-based instruction modules. Given nationwide increases in distance education, and the very real constraints of providing staff-led instruction to very large classes that are typical of many ARL institutions, I believe that KU will need to begin moving in this direction as well.

Using the Data

I hope that we will use this information to:

1) recognize and commend all the staff members who are involved with instruction; and
2) review the scope of our instructional efforts and identify areas in need of attention and/or support.

It is not my (or the Instruction Council’s) intention to set numerical standards for instructional activity. Instead, we need to consider the context of these figures. The levels and types of activities do—and should—vary somewhat to reflect the needs of individual programs. There may be some programs and departments that do not request or require library instruction despite the best efforts of library staff members. Other instructional activities are not fully described by these figures. For example, several staff members teach for-credit courses on library research. These classes require a great deal of time and preparation, which is not meaningfully conveyed by this type of data-gatherings.

With the above considerations in mind, I think we must also take an honest look at those areas that may require additional attention.

• Do our outreach efforts to some departments and programs need to be increased?
• Are there programs with which we’re not working due to insufficient resources?
• Are there instructional programs or activities that should be discontinued or decreased in order to make it possible for resources to be directed towards expanded and/or new instructional programs?

I encourage staff members who are involved with instruction to think carefully about these questions and to contact me if there is some way that I could be of assistance. I will also supply the instruction session totals reported by individuals to appropriate library managers and would be very willing to meet with individuals and/or departments to explore strategies for improving instructional outreach. Finally, I will continue to work with the Instruction Council and Library administration in the coming months to see what might be done to address some of the challenges raised by staff such as inadequate space, equipment, etc.

Instruction takes a great deal of time and energy, but it also provides us with an essential means of sharing the strengths of our collections and resources with the University community. Clearly, this is also an area that has received renewed institutional attention in recent years. As information resources continue to increase in number and complexity, it will be vital for us to continue to expand and improve upon our instructional services in order to fulfill our mission of supporting teaching and learning at KU.

Why Are We Collecting Instruction Statistics?
Instruction statistics will be collected once each year. This information will be used to help the Instruction Council chart the extent of educational programs led by KU Libraries staff. Instruction statistics will also be included in the Libraries’ annual statistical reports to the Association of Research Libraries.

What Statistics Should Be Collected?
For the purposes of this form, instruction is defined as any educational program (orientation tours, course-specific sessions, presentations to visiting groups, etc.) conducted by library staff for a class or other group of patrons. Please do not include one-on-one reference appointments on this form. Sessions taught as part of the Workshop Series will be counted separately.

Multi-session instruction presentations should be recorded as follows:
- count each session separately;
- for multi-session classes with a constant enrollment (e.g., for-credit classes) count each student only once.

Persons who team-teach sessions, should do the following:
- Each staff member who helps teach a session should record that session
- Participants in the session may be counted only one (consider having each staff person count half of the students in their totals)

The above definitions are based upon those supplied by the Association of Research Libraries, available at http://www.arl.org/stats/arlstat

Who Should Fill Out This Form?
All staff members whose job responsibilities include instruction as defined above (bibliographers, reference staff, etc.) are asked to fill out this form. Forms should be returned to Cindy Pierard, Watson Library Reference Department (or to your department head - see note below).

When Should Statistics Be Reported?
The call to report instruction statistics will coincide with the annual call for ARL statistics (typically late June/early July). Forms should be returned by Friday, August 18.

NOTE: Because department heads are typically responsible for reporting these types of statistics, and because they may wish to review these figures for other reports, I would like to ask that department heads coordinate the collection of Instruction Statistics Reports from appropriate staff in their units. If desirable, department heads may also wish to keep this data on a semester-by-semester basis for use in annual evaluations.

ROBERT DARNTON TO SPEAK AT KU
The Hall Center for the Humanities is sponsoring a campus visit by Robert Darnton, the renowned historian of the book and reading. Prof. Darnton has published numerous books including, The Business of Enlightenment: A Publishing History of the Encyclopédie, 1775-1800, The Literary Underground of the Old Regime, The Great Cat Massacre and Other Episodes in French Cultural History, Revolution in Print: the Press in France 1775-1800, The Forbidden Best-Sellers of Prerevolutionary France. His has won numerous prizes and awards including a MacArthur Prize Fellowship.

VETERANS DAY HOLIDAY
Veterans Day will be observed on Friday, November 10th. This holiday is for the classified staff only; library faculty and unclassified professional staff are not eligible for the holiday leave. Because the campus is open and classes are in session on Veterans Day, library departments and units with public service responsibilities must remain open for regular service. There is less a need for departments without direct public contact to remain open and staffed. However, department heads may allocate staffing appropriate for the service needs of their units. Questions regarding departmental staffing on this holiday may be addressed to the appropriate assistant dean. As a reminder, classified staff who work on Veterans Day will receive holiday compensatory time at the rate of 1.5 hours for each hour worked.

Travel Report

Name: Judith Emde
Name of Event: Medical Library Association
Annual Meeting
Date of Travel: May 6-10, 2000

Department: Anschutz Library
Location: Vancouver, BC

The annual meeting of the Medical Library Association was held at the Vancouver Convention & Exhibition Centre. I attended invited paper sessions based on the experiences of several institutions actively promoting Web-based instruction. Self-instructional programs were developed at Wayne State University using Blackboard CourseInfo to replace some of the traditional classroom-based instruction. Health science librarians at UNC-Chapel Hill have integrated electronic library instructional modules into the curricula developed for distance education programs. Representatives from Duke compared the differences between presenting an MLA course in a traditional setting versus Web-based. A post evaluation survey was conducted to determine how well the information learned was retained between the two groups. Individuals enrolled in the Web-based class retained more of the information than those students enrolled in the traditional class. The instructors believed that students participating in the Web-based class were more motivated, had more time to complete the work and apply the information, and actually received more individual attention through e-mail and chat rooms.

I attended the business meeting of the Pharmacy and Drug Information Section and the annual EMBASE lecture sponsored by the PDI section. The topic of the lecture was photodynamic therapy for oncology and ophthalmology. Photodynamic therapy involves the use of certain wavelengths of light that activate a photosensitive drug that specifically targets abnormal tissue and spares normal cells.

Most importantly, Loretta Spurling and I presented a poster session entitled, Developing Library Support for Online Distance Education. We had developed and distributed a survey to libraries supporting pharmacy schools to determine what guidelines had been created for distance education and what services these libraries were providing to virtual students. The poster was based on the results of that survey and our experiences with the online nontraditional PharmD program offered through the Pharmacy School at KU.

I thoroughly enjoyed my trip to beautiful Vancouver. I want to thank the Staff Development Committee for the financial support.
I began my conference activities on Saturday morning in the exhibits hall visiting with sales reps and viewing a number of posters at the poster session that addressed measuring usage of databases and serials. In the afternoon, I attended a Science and Technology Section discussion group presentation on developments in energy, science and technology information at the Department of Energy. A representative from DOE spoke of a movement to develop a national library for the physical sciences. She provided an overview of the multiple resources available at the Office of Science & Technical Information Web site. Gateways are provided to full-text journal articles and reports in the physical sciences. A preprint network allows access to preprint servers around the world and allows faster access to scientific research.

In my new role as coordinator of processing in Anschutz, I wanted to attend a number of GODORT meetings to become familiar with current issues of interest to documents librarians, especially in processing documents. The GODORT Cataloging Committee addressed maintenance of the proliferating PURLs to government resources. Several other sessions centered on the upcoming release of the 2000 Census data and in what formats the data will be available. The Internet resource, American FactFinder, will allow searching and customization of data available in the summary data files of the 2000 Census. An ongoing project is to scan older census documents onto the Web beginning with the year 1790.

The last session I attended was on scholarly communication for the new millenium and included Provost Shulenburger as one of the presenters. Ken Frazier, founder of SPARC, emphasized the need for libraries to create a greater presence on the Web since that is where students are going for informational resources. Michael Rosenzweig, editor of Evolutionary Ecology Research (a SPARC journal), critically evaluated publishers' arguments for price increases.

I want to thank the Staff Development Committee for the financial support.

Update on Action Plan to Encourage Classified Staff Participation:
Carmen reported the following suggestions were proposed at the Library Management Team meeting
Lists of benefits – There should be benefits for the employee and the unit that he/she is from.
Expect and reward supervisors who support participation – there was some discussion about the wording.
These changes should be presented to the Coordinating council on Wednesday, June 28th.
The outcome is to get more classified employees to participate and be acknowledged.
Then, the suggestions go to the Library Management Team to decide about implementation.

Update on Strategic Planning:
New KU Libraries Classified Employee members of the Steering Committee: Jan Altenbernd and Peggy Bell.
The Steering Committee met all day Thursday, June 22nd and Jan met again with them today to plan for staff involvement in the planning process.
The goal is to have the Strategic Planning process completed in December.
The committee will communicate weekly with staff and plans to get everyone involved. The following methods of communication will be used: Web page, email, town meetings, task forces, etc. The committee is trying to get staff involved and thinking about the plan.

Chair Reports:

A. Coordinating Council Meeting:

June 14th meeting:
Keith said he wanted the CC to meet with him and send a schedule to CC members to sign up for a meeting with him. Branch staff need to call and schedule appointments. Kathy Graves and Rick Clements reported on a Conference on Restructuring they attended in Arizona: A team approach works better in tech. services than in reference. Budget and personnel issues: Budget – Student payroll allocations were discussed. The library is working on an Operating Budget. Annual Statistics are due August 18th. Strategic planning: The Steering Committee (8 members) will make an announcement soon, because the Library Mgt. Team wants to start now in order to complete the plan by December. Sandy Gilliland said the deadline for turning in instruction statistics is August 18th. Some of these statistics are also reported to ALA. Fee based printing: Keith said no at this time. The library will wait until the state matches funds to do this.

June 21st meeting:
Copies of the Preliminary Budget Requests for Fiscal Year ending June 30, 2002 were distributed. Keith and Denise went to the ARL lab for more information about facilitating skills. Denise reported on an ACM library conference she attended – ACM would like more libraries to attend. Update on Budget: Second round of charts for Department Heads. There was some discussion on the flexibility of the budget, which is broken down by Department. The budget handout included staff and longevity pay and benefits. There was some discussion about the Kansas Access Project. The Endowment Association will soon have a person to work with the libraries on fund raising. The Capital Campaign will not be published for 1 or 1 ½ years. Sandy Gilliland reported that 10 of 11 classified positions were advertised, filled and announced. Other recruitments are ongoing.

B. Meeting with Keith, Sandy, Jan and Carmen, June 20th

Classified staff job descriptions will be reviewed. Carmen noted the trend of having supervisory positions changed to unclassified instead of LA III's. Also asked if the new Anschutz Office Manager position will become a classified or unclassified position. Point: If LA III positions can't be filled from within, then the pay is too low to attract qualified applicants from outside the library.
Job description reviews: Sandy said she hopes to do this in the fall. Maybe the creation of the new Staff Development Officer position will give her more time for these reviews. Sandy said that some position reclassification requests from supervisors have been received recently.

Facilitator Training this summer and fall was discussed – also the possibility of some events training. Keith asked for all employees who are on the list and who want to be on the list.

There was some discussion about the number of classified staff who have topped out (120). There might be 29 in the libraries. Also wanted to know how many members of the Library Management Team are close to retirement. Carmen brought them up to date on the Regents Civil Service Plan – no input until at least this fall.

Supervisor Training for all supervisors – not much change – hoping to have an abbreviated form of training here in the libraries.

Carmen will be talking to the Coordinating Council about the Action Plan.

Special Note: The minutes Rita Wilson has been writing for the Coordinating Council Meetings are greatly appreciated.

Discussed the Strategic Planning process – Keith plans to have the PRC involved this summer.

Keith was given the CCEB election results.

Talked about the Staff Development & Training Officer – they will take the draft to ALA and also circulate the draft and request comments from staff. This employee might be responsible for orientation (there used to be a committee on new staff orientation with classified staff members about 7 years ago).

Asked for clarification of the Assistant to the Dean position. Clarified that it is a vacant position.

Asked Sandy if recent hires would be in FYI.

Classified Employee of the Year: last week Sandy replied to everyone who expressed interest in being on the committee. There have already been nominations.

Discussed Keith’s meeting with the Provost for Unclassified and Classified employee salaries. This is not a dead issue.

Sent a message to Sandy about the possibility of a vending machine in Watson Lounge issue.

Appointments to PRC and SDC: This will be on the agenda for the next meeting. We want to talk about changes to these committees and the Classified Employee Personnel Committee.

1. Strategic Planning News
Jim Neeley offered to answer any questions about Strategic Planning and requested nominations from CCEB for participants to attend the Strategic Planning Retreat on October 4th and 5th.
He said the Steering Committee would verify that all names submitted meet the four qualifications for attending the Retreat and then Dean Russell would make the final decision. The four qualifications are:
- Willingness to think in organization-wide terms.
- Must be able to commit to a full two day retreat.
- Must be willing to serve on a taskforce after the retreat.
- Must attend at least one of the Value Sessions and one of the Town Hall Meetings.

The Steering Committee is looking for a good cross-representation of library staff. The recommendations must be submitted by September 6th.

Carol asked Jim if there had been any feedback from staff that had attended previous meetings. The answer was “no.”
Jim said this might be the result of a general unfamiliarity with the use of public folders.

The CCEB nominations for the Retreat are: Carol Jeffries, Jana Borchardt, Dan Sodders, Nancy Hawkins, Jim Smith, Sue Hewitt, Craig Moore and Carmen Orth-Alfie.

2. Personnel Committee:
Names mentioned for the Personnel Committee are: Geri Slater, Jana Borchardt and Jim Smith.
Jan emphasized the importance of filling out this committee, since rewriting Classified Staff job descriptions is a very real possibility this year.

The next CCEB Meeting will be on September 20th, 1:30-3:00, in Conference Room B.
Present: J. Altenbernd (chair), B. Conway (secretary), N. Hawkins (vice chair), C. Kulp (group IV rep.), A. Unfred (group III rep), C. Jeffries (group I rep), S. Hewitt (Retrieval Services).

Next Meeting: To be determined at a later date.

Strategic Planning:
Jan asked for reactions to the Values and Town Hall meetings.
Carol - Some classified staff members thought their contributions at the Strategic Planning meetings were not taken seriously by the “professional” staff in the small groups in which they participated. The post-it note method of expressing ideas was generally regarded as much more effective and democratic than having one person record everyone’s ideas.
Nancy – Asked if some staff feel that strategic planning is a futile process.
Sue – The last plan was reviewed each year and recommendations for change did happen.
Billie – When will the strategic planning involve input from the library’s user community?

Classified Senate – Sue Hewitt:
Sue reviewed the discussions and meetings that followed the Chancellor’s request to Classified Senate for a proposal to change the Classified Employee system to a Regents Employees merit based system.
Sue asked if it is true that there will be a re-evaluation of library-wide positions this year.
Sandy Gilliland said that Human Resources is ready to begin on the reviews with any departments that are ready.
Discussion:
Carol asked how these re-evaluations would affect classified staff.
Jan said the new job descriptions would more accurately reflect the actual job duties.
Carol asked if library staff know that these evaluations probably will not result in upgrades.
Jan said she would ask Sandy if job upgrades would come out of the re-evaluations.

Personnel Committee:
Committee members are Jim Smith, Geri Slater and Jana Borchardt

SDC Charges:
LFA sent their charges.
Jan distributed copies of SDC charges from last year and asked for ideas.
We need to find out whether CCEB is a separate unit for charges or if it is a joint effort, since we don’t want conflicting charges.

November 1
8:00 p.m.

This presentation explodes the idea that the present period is the first “information age.” In addition, it explores the stunning power of poetry in pre-revolutionary Paris and the attempt by police to suppress it for fear of its subversive effect. Darnton follows the path of this poetry through forms of media, now overshadowed, to provide a vivid glimpse into this long-forgotten information system.

In attendance:
Brian Baird     Denise Stephens
Sue Hewitt      Shannon Royer

Absent:
Angel Unfred    Helen Dee
John Richardson

Our next meeting will be held:

Thursday, October 26th
3:00 – 4:30pm
Watson Conference Room B

Despite the fact that many members could not attend, we decided to go ahead and discuss a few things. Denise Stephens shared that she had met with the LFA Executive committee and Dean Russell. They informed her that a special charge was being developed by LFA for PRC, in which we would be asked to define our role in the strategic planning process and the annual budget process.

Shannon Royer distributed the library calendar compiled by Barbara Gorman, which contained several key dates related to the annual library budget process for FY02. She reviewed the timing of the budget activities last year in comparison to the proposed dates for this year.

Three issues were identified for further discussion at our next meeting:

1. Whether or not PRC would like to request that all members be allowed to sit in on the Budget Hearings with the Management Team in December.

2. Request that PRC's meeting with the Management Team be scheduled after the other departmental hearings, so as to allow time to incorporate departmental discussions into our recommendations to the Management Team.

3. Discuss the possibility of Management Team/PRC revisiting the budget requests in late May to help give further guidance in creation of the internal operating budget for the following year.

In addition to these matters, we hope to have our new charge from LFA by then, and will need to discuss how to go about carrying it out.

Sue Hewitt volunteered to update PRC's web page. Denise Stephens will contact Jim Dryden to confirm that Sue is given appropriate access.

Margaret Wilson is PRC's LFA liaison for this year.

Meeting adjourned.

Committee Minutes:
    Coordinating Council, 10-11-00, 10-25-00, 11-29-00
Flyer: Law Library Hours

An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer
My time at the conference was spent catching up with colleagues, visiting vendors and attending meetings. I attended the panel "The Dark Age of Information" chaired by Brad Schaffner. The papers presented addressed the problems and issues that have arisen as a result of new technologies. Many of the concerns in the Slavic field are shared by all areas of academia. For example, research and scholarship appear to be replaced by copy-paste data collection. Teachers and librarians are concerned that the instant access generation does not have the skills to process information into knowledge. The mental work of research may not be valued or understood by the younger generations. This leads to the argument of who is responsible for teaching them. Grammar or high school teachers, school librarians, college professors, or college librarians?

In addition, there was discussion and dissension among the librarians regarding their profession. The curricula and focus at library schools has drastically changed. The older generation feels that the skills and knowledge they learned and possess are not appreciated, respected, or wanted by the newer generation.

This conference will be particularly memorable due to an unrelated event. As we were checking out, I noticed a gentleman that looked a lot like Stephen King. I was not convinced it was him, until I noticed he was speaking to Dave Barry. In case you are wondering, Stevie was not limping. He appeared to be in perfect health.

My thanks to the Staff Development Committee for providing funding so that I could attend this event.

Shannon stated that last year the budget was rushed and the timing was not good. She hopes it to be more organized this year. Strategic Planning also has to be considered this year.

UPDATE ON HEALTH INSURANCE – Sandy Gilliland
Open enrollment deadline is October 31st. A new method is being used this year - all employees must make their changes for this coming year 'on-line' during the open-enrollment period. This procedure is required and therefore a dedicated computer will be available in the Administration Office for staff members convenience. If you have Signa or Kaiser health insurance, or Protective Dental Care insurance, you must make a change, as they will not be provided next year.

Do not try to upgrade browsers. You will be offered help on a case-by-case basis. Home computers can be used if you have Netscape 4.75 (or better) or Explorer 5.5.

Sandy stated that she would be mailing instructions. She advised staff not needing or wanting to make changes to double check all on-line information for errors. Everyone received information at their home address regarding necessary passwords, etc.

ADDRESS CHANGES (ZIP+4 & KU DOMAIN NAME) – Kent Miller (handout)
Kent brought members up to date on the university mail developments. The United States Post Office has imposed more zip+4 codes on us. Some zips have definitely changed. Please send e-mail comments to Kent if issues arise. This will take a year to implement, but we can start at anytime.

Kent passed out an address update from Printing Services and changes will be as follows:

Anschutz Library, 1301 Hoch Auditorium Drive, 66045-7537
Spencer Museum of Art (Art & Arch. Library), 1301 Mississippi, 66045-7500
Learned Hall (Spahr Engineering Library), 1532 W. 15th, 66045-7611
Green Hall (Law Library), 1535 W. 15th, 66045-7577
Murphy Hall (Music Library), 1530 Naismith Dr., 66045-3102
Spencer Research Library, 1450 Poplar Ln., 66045-7616
Watson Library, 1425 Jayhawk Blvd., 66045-7544

Retrieval Services will experience the most significant issues. The post office will sort our mail by room number within the zip+4. This might be helpful for Doug Hatton and Bruce Coburn, as they could just deliver the pre-sorted mail.

Another change we will experience is in the Internet domain name for the Lawrence campus. To make the domain name easier for those outside the University to remember is one reason for the change. The "ukans.edu" will be shifted to "ku.edu". The "ku.edu" has been the universities secondary domain name and has been used on a restricted basis for years.

We will be informed when the changes must be implemented.

ELECTRONIC CALENDAR – Keith Russell (handout)
Keith had a copy of the latest printed version available. Computer ‘read only’ version will be ready soon. Send any information for calendar corrections or additions to Barbara Gorman.
NANCY BURICH’S PRESENTATION (handout)
Nancy’s handout was in two parts: (1) Description of responsibilities as Coordinator for Distance Learning Information Services (2) Two-page summary of her Sabbatical Leave Report.

Nancy’s sabbatical leave was from December 26, 1999 through May of this year. She stated that it was an interesting experience that went from a structural to a non-structural environment. Her sabbatical consisted of lots of reading, talking to KU faculty and staff to see what their definition of distance learning was. She also visited Old Dominion University, Norfolk, VA. and the University of Maine at Augusta.

Nancy ended her interesting presentation by summarizing her vision for distance learning services, initial activities of the coordinator position and goals for the first year and beyond.

Coordinating Council Meeting Dates: October 25th, November 1st.

Coordinating Council Meeting

UPDATE ON STRATEGIC PLANNING - Jim Neeley (handout)
Strategic planning is now in the phase of getting feedback from KU faculty, students, administrators and many other KU Library users. Public forums are being held to gather the needed input.

Town hall meetings for stakeholders to discuss the vision and offer comments will be held as follows: Faculty, October 25th & 27th; Department Chairs and Library Faculty Liaisons, October 24th & 25th; Students, October 24th & 30th; Library Staff, October 26th & 30th.

The procedure so far has been to listen to stakeholders, record the information on flipcharts and transcribe onto the public Web site. The public Web site is linked on the front page of KU Web page. Questions and comments main focus has been on collection holdings and the move toward a more electronic medium.

KU DIGITAL LIBRARY - Marilu Goodyear (chart handout)
For the last year the Digital Library Executive Group (Keith Russell, Bill Crowe, Marilu Goodyear, John Miller, Jerry Niebaum, Cathy Smith, and Beth Warner) has been working on the initial plan for the Digital Library. It has become clear that in order to make progress we need full time leadership and given that these issues ranked number one among the leadership group of the IT/Library family we have decided to go ahead with the search to fill this position.

The search committee consists of Bill Crowe, chair, Cathy Smith, Rick Clement, Denise Stephens, Brian Baird, John Miller and Sandy Gilliland. There will be nation wide advertising for the position, which will probably be an unclassified professional with consideration for faculty status open to discussion if qualifications of the person warrant. The search committee and the promotion and tenure committee will be consulted on this issue.

PROVOST'S SCHOLARLY COMMUNICATION SEMINAR – Richard Fyffe
Next Wednesday, November 8th, the Provost's Office and the KU Libraries will sponsor a day-long seminar, "From Crisis to Reform: Scholarly Communication and the Tempe Principles," in the Big 12 Room of the Kansas Memorial Union. The seminar is open to the entire KU community including faculty, students, and staff. All Library staff are encouraged to attend.

The American Association of Universities, the Association of Research Libraries, and other organizations met in Tempe, Arizona and developed a document that has become known as the Tempe Principles. They address the rising journal costs and other problems associated with the current scholarly publishing. More information can be found on the Libraries' Web site at http://www.lib.ukans.edu/news/tempe/html

INCLEMENT WEATHER POLICY - Sandy Gilliland
The latest version of the Inclement Weather Policy has been submitted to the Provost's office. The Emergency Calling Tree for Day Time Hours and After Hours is currently being updated.

VETERAN'S DAY OPERATIONS - Sandy Gilliland
Veteran's Day, November 11th, is a holiday for classified staff only. Any classified staff member who works will earn compensatory time at the rate of 1.5 hours.

Department heads with public service responsibilities need to review staffing needs and make appropriate arrangements.

DOLE INSTITUTE UPDATE – Bryan Culp (handout with details)
Bryan updated everyone on the construction plans for the new Dole Archives building, (The Dole Archive at the Robert J. Dole Institute for Public Service and Public Policy). It is scheduled to go out for bid in mid-December this year. Construction will take about 16 months. It will consist of 30,000 square feet, a small building in comparison to the rest of the campus.

The structure is planned to represent both of Dole's residences, Kansas and Washington. The Kansas roots will be in the limestone construction, deep joints and rough edges that are planned. The roof will resemble a farm silo, shingled in copper, cut in half and laid on top of the building. The Washington governmental architectural style will represent Dole's status as a senior statesman and his service to the government. There are plans for a front lawn and a reflection pool, which when combined with the architecture will make the structure appear larger.

Bryan expanded on some of the issues Dole worked hard on, such as women issues (the glass ceiling), WICK, elderly care, hungry Americans, POW and MIA issues and all wars, plus served on the Senate Finance Committee.

UPDATE ON BUDGET – Shannon Royer, Keith Russell
Shannon stated that the Library continues to work on the 2002 budget process, and the timetable is on schedule. The budget proposal will be due in the Provost's office in February of 2001.

Keith briefly discussed four items mentioned in a brochure that have implications affecting the Libraries. He passed out copies at the Senate Library Committee meeting last week. The handout was entitled: The Case for KU, Legislative Agenda for the 2001 Legislative Session, by Jayhawks for Higher Education, A Committee of the Kansas Alumni Association.

UPDATE ON VOYAGER – John Miller
John stated that Voyager will have some downtime on December 1st while installing hardware needed to make the OPAC available in read-only mode during the planned December 18-20 upgrade. He has sent out a detailed message on KULIB-L. The changes will be significant to acquisitions, but other departments will not experience much in changes. John promised email messages to keep everyone aware of the developments.

OPAC Advisory Committee meets December 1st

UPDATE ON 24/HR ANSCHUTZ – Kent Miller (handout)
Kent stated that hourly usage counts have been conducted at the Anschutz 24-hr study area since its inception. The handout consisted only of data from October 23rd through November 17th. The most popular study time is 12pm-1am, 1-2am comes in second, with 2-3am and 7-8am tied for third place.

Kent discussed the problems associated with maintaining the required 68 degrees within the Libraries. He explained the Watson and Anschutz 'wind chills' as being a problem that probably won't go away due to the constant-flow air system. Reducing the amount of air flow is a lot of work and probably will not be attempted, since it is more important to maintain a constant temperature. SRL is exempt from the energy saving requirements due to their collections.

CALENDAR REVIEW & OTHER TOPICS
UCITA (Uniform Computer Information Transaction Act) teleconference will be presented on December 13th, Burge Union, Pioneer Room, 12-3:00pm. Washburn University, Johnson County Community College, and the University of MO., Columbia also planned to sponsor this program.

CC meetings have been cancelled on the following dates: December 6, 13, 20, 27th and January 3rd, 10th.
A December visit by Katherine Deiss has been postponed.

Keith stated that at the last Dean's Council meeting, Provost Schulenberger has requested that it be made a top priority to evaluate work stations for employees. Human Resources has employees that specialize in conducting those evaluations.

TRAVEL REPORT

Name: Lars
Name of Event: Libraries in the Age of the Internet
Date(s) of travel: Nov. 2, Nov. 13

A dinner conversation with the Deputy Director of the National Library of Albania, shuttle bus discussions with a representative of the Bibliotheque Nationale de France, chats with three charming ladies from Britain, an interesting range of presentations, and some insight into the Bulgarian culture were just some of my experiences as part of my attendance at this conference which was organized by Emporia State University and Sofia University.

I was invited to give a presentation on Interlibrary Loan Best Practices, which was well received. Some Eastern European countries have little to no interlibrary loan structures in place so there was considerable interest in my talk. It was exhilarating to be able to share our Big Twelve Plus Task Force work with so many people from different cultures with simultaneous translation into Bulgarian.

Over 80 people attended this conference including at least one person from Albania, Bulgaria, Croatia, England, France, Germany, Greece, Macedonia, Netherlands, Poland, Romania, Turkey, Yugoslavia, and the United States. I enjoyed follow-up discussions with a variety of people, including Graham Cornish, President of the British Library Association, and the editor of 'Interlending and Document Supply' which is an international interlibrary loan journal. This contact, and others which will allow me to explore the relevancy of Best Practices, let alone interlibrary loan in a variety of cultures, made the trip worthwhile.

I found some of the presentations to be quite thought-provoking to me. It was interesting to hear Dr. Judith Broady-Preston (Professor, University of Wales, Aberystwyth) discuss her research on the British Banking Industry. She found that they want all staff to be "information aware" rather than relying on specialized Information Professionals. It was interesting to compare this information with some of the library school related talks.

I also enjoyed learning more about Bulgaria which is struggling to overcome 45+ years of communist control. I was able to see many interesting churches in Sofia that had a wealth of interesting frescoes including the Alexander Nevsky Cathedral. Most of the conference attendees who were still in Sofia following the conference went on an incredible bus tour to the Rila Monastery, and the city of Plovdiv. It was another great time to explore the local culture as well as provide time to talk with others about their own cultures and even some library related discussions.

I appreciate the staff development funds, which, along with funding from the International Programs Office, provided enough funding to allow me this opportunity to provide information to an international library community as well as gather information and make some international contacts.

Bulgaria has tremendous hurdles to overcome in order to improve their situation, and conferences like this, will help. Bulgarian Ministry level officials attended several events which helped them gain an appreciation of international cooperation. In fact, this was the first ever international library conference which is a small step in helping the Bulgarians and others from the area start to interact more with others to develop their libraries.

TRAVEL REPORT

Name: Lyn Wolz
Department: Regents Center Library

Name of Event: American Folklore Society meeting
Location: Columbus, Ohio

Dates: Oct. 25-29, 2000

Please provide below a brief report of your activities during this period of travel. This report will be published in the FYI.

At the end of last month I attended the American Folklore Society annual meeting to present a paper and participate in various activities. The first session on my schedule was the orientation for new and returning members. I met the current president of the society and other members and heard some interesting presentations on how to get the most out of the AFS conference. I thought it was definitely time well spent. Later that morning, I attended a meeting of the Computer Applications Section where we discussed how the members were using various software packages to analyze folk song texts and melodies.

On Friday afternoon I gave my paper comparing and evaluating a sample of eight electronic folk song databases, demonstrating the search capabilities of each one. After the presentation, I talked to several people from the audience who gave me valuable information which will benefit my further work in this area. Later that day I attended the Women’s Section meeting where I met those who are spearheading a project (cosponsored by the section and ABC-CLIO) to produce an encyclopedia of women’s folklore. They invited me to write articles about women folk song collectors and women folk song scholars.

On Saturday I attended a presentation by two staff members from the National Endowment for the Humanities who gave us a lot of “insider” information on how to apply for NEH grants. Later that day, I attended the “State of the States” forum in my capacity as president of the Missouri Folklore Society. Representatives of the state folklore societies shared ideas about how to make their society meetings more effective, how to recruit new members, how to raise money, how to work with volunteers, and other challenges.

The final session I attended was the annual get-together of the Library and Archives Section. We discussed the possibility of presenting a panel of papers at next year’s AFS meeting in Anchorage. We also reported on our current projects. I gave a brief synopsis of my research involving folk song databases. Everyone expressed interest in this work and offered encouragement for me to publish my results.

I want to thank the members of the Staff Development Committee for the financial support which allowed me to attend this very worthwhile conference.
SP Steering Committee Needs Your Help!

The Strategic Planning Steering Committee is ready to begin the research process to identify topics that indicate future directions and trends for the Libraries and the environment in which it operates.

What do you think are the most important themes for the Libraries to consider when planning for the next three years? The Committee is asking all library staff to suggest topics for discussion that are important to the future of the Libraries.

Maybe you've read an article or book recently, perhaps in your area of expertise, that you think would be relevant to a discussion of the Library's future. The Committee would like you to suggest citations that we could supply to the staff for background reading.

Do you know an interesting speaker who could inform staff members about these relevant topics? We're asking that staff supply the Committee with names of presenters also.

Lists of topics and information about resources should be sent to the Steering Committee at LIBSP-L@staff.lib.ukans.edu.

Topics and citations will be shared with staff on the Strategic Planning website (http://www2.lib.ukans.edu/~staff/committees/strategicplanning/). Please begin sending suggestions now. We hope to have a good selection to post on the website by the week of July 24. Suggestions will be posted anonymously.

These background activities are designed to inform the Town Hall meetings to be held in September, so your participation at this and future stages of the strategic planning process is essential to the development of an effective plan for the Libraries.
