New views on decline in young adult voters

Statistics may clearly track a decline in political participation among 18- to 24-year-olds in the United States, but Jay P. Childers, KU assistant professor of communication studies, argues that the decline reflects changes in American society, not youthful apathy.

Full Story
LibArt accepting submissions

The University of Kansas Libraries will once again provide students an opportunity to display their artwork in the libraries’ public spaces during the 2012-13 academic year. Submissions are due Monday, April 16.

Full Story