Lithium measurements key in star research

Scientists from KU are using lithium measurements to better understand stars and star clusters in the Milky Way. “Lithium is a diagnostic marker of what's been going on inside a star basically from the time it formed,” said Barbara Anthony-Twarog, professor of physics and astronomy at KU, whose work is supported by the National Science Foundation.

Full Story

TODAY’S HEADLINES

Lilly Ledbetter to speak at KU

The namesake for the Lilly Ledbetter Fair Pay Act will give this year’s lecture for the Jana Mackey Distinguished Lecture Series, “And Justice for All? Why Equal Pay for Women Matters to Everyone,” at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 1 at KU.

Full Story

Groundbreaking for engineering site

In its ongoing effort to produce additional high-quality engineers to meet industry demands and boost the state and national economy, KU's School of Engineering will hold a formal groundbreaking for new engineering facilities on Friday, Oct. 26.

Full Story

Chemical Society's Midwest Award

University Distinguished Professor of Medicinal Chemistry Jeff Aubé has earned the 2012 American Chemical Society’s Midwest Award. The award is given annually to a scientist who has made meritorious contributions to the advancement of pure or applied chemistry, chemical education and the profession.

Full Story

CAMPUS NEWS

TODAY’S EVENTS

LECTURE

‘From Hope to Audacity: The Evolution of President Barack Obama’s Rhetoric and the 2012 Presidential Campaign’

Wednesday, Oct. 24, 2012

7:30 p.m.-9 p.m.

Kansas Union Woodruff Auditorium

View all events

TWITTER

@kunews #KU alumni include the CEOs of Ford, IGA and Kroger #KUFacts

http://www.ku.edu/about/alumni/

View all tweets

FEATURED MULTIMEDIA

KU ON FLICKR

Common Book author Eula Biss

More: photos | videos
KU staging 'Peanuts'-based parody

University of Kansas Theatre is staging “Dog Sees God: Confessions of a Teenage Blockhead” by Bert V. Royal, with shows starting Friday at the William Inge Theatre in Murphy Hall.

Full Story