Study: Effectiveness of medical missions

Each year, medical professionals in the U.S. spend thousands of hours in the developing world, repairing cleft palates, treating cholera and distributing medicine. While admirable, these short-term medical missions go largely unevaluated. A recent KU Medical Center study, a seven-year review of outcomes, is among the first of the kind.

Full Story
Food drive at football spring game

Kansas Athletics and KU Parking and Transit have announced that they will accept donations of nonperishable food items at the Kansas Football Spring Game to benefit Just Food. The annual game will kick off at 1 p.m. Saturday, April 28, at Memorial Stadium. Admission is free.

Full Story

New KLETC officers graduate

Forty-eight new law enforcement officers graduated from the Kansas Law Enforcement Training Center on April 13. KLETC is a division of KU Continuing Education.

Full Story

Political science students honored

KU’s political science department honored its top students with awards and induction into Pi Sigma Alpha during a ceremony April 19 at the Adams Alumni Center.

Full Story