Sample Exam Form

This form is provided to illustrate the format that we suggest for certain oral exercises for exams included in the instructor's edition.

Dictée (There will sometimes be a title given, here or orally, to suggest the context of what is to follow)

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

(We give line numbers for each "chunk" and recommend that instructors use those numbers in the second reading--as in the dictations on cassette for the workbook. Note that the line "chunks" are not necessarily sentences. Also, we do not usually dictate punctuation, although some instructors may do so. We expect students to recognize the end of a sentence by context and do not worry about whether or not they include commas that were in the original text.)

Word and Sound Discrimination You will hear a series of sentences, one for each numbered list below. Rewrite, for each one, the word or expression you hear.

1. / vu - vous - veut / _____
2. / nous allons - nous avons / _____
3. / ils ont - ils sont - ils font / _____

Logical and appropriate response? You will hear a series of minidialogues. For each one state whether the response was logical and appropriate: if yes, write oui, if no, write non.

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

Written Work

All written work for this class should be done either on the paper provided or on 8 1/2 X 11 lined paper. Always work in ink (preferably black), unless your instructor directs otherwise, and always leave wide margins and skip lines.

Although we do not expect perfection and certainly not near-native style, we do expect students to be particularly careful in their written work. In the first place, the written language is different from the spoken language and requires more attention to form. In the second place, you have more time, more opportunity to check grammar rules and exact meanings of words when you are writing at home.

We recommend to instructors that written work be corrected as follows:

Students submit the work on the day due, following carefully the instructions about format (skip lines, leave margins, use ink). If any students do not follow those instructions, we believe it is proper--and fair to the entire class--to return those papers uncorrected.

Instructor corrects the papers by underlining errors and placing appropriate abbreviations in the margin. See the abbreviation list on the next page. Papers are then returned, with or without an initial grade.

Students make revisions according to the instructor's notes and comments and resubmit the composition.

Instructor checks the revision, makes any necessary additional corrections, and assigns a grade, if appropriate.

The revision process, of course, may be repeated more than once.

Note that this process can be used not only for compositions but for all written work.

These common abbreviations, along with any additional ones that your instructor may give you, may be used in the correction of your written work. Errors will be underlined, and the appropriate abbreviation written in the margin.

Reading Assignments

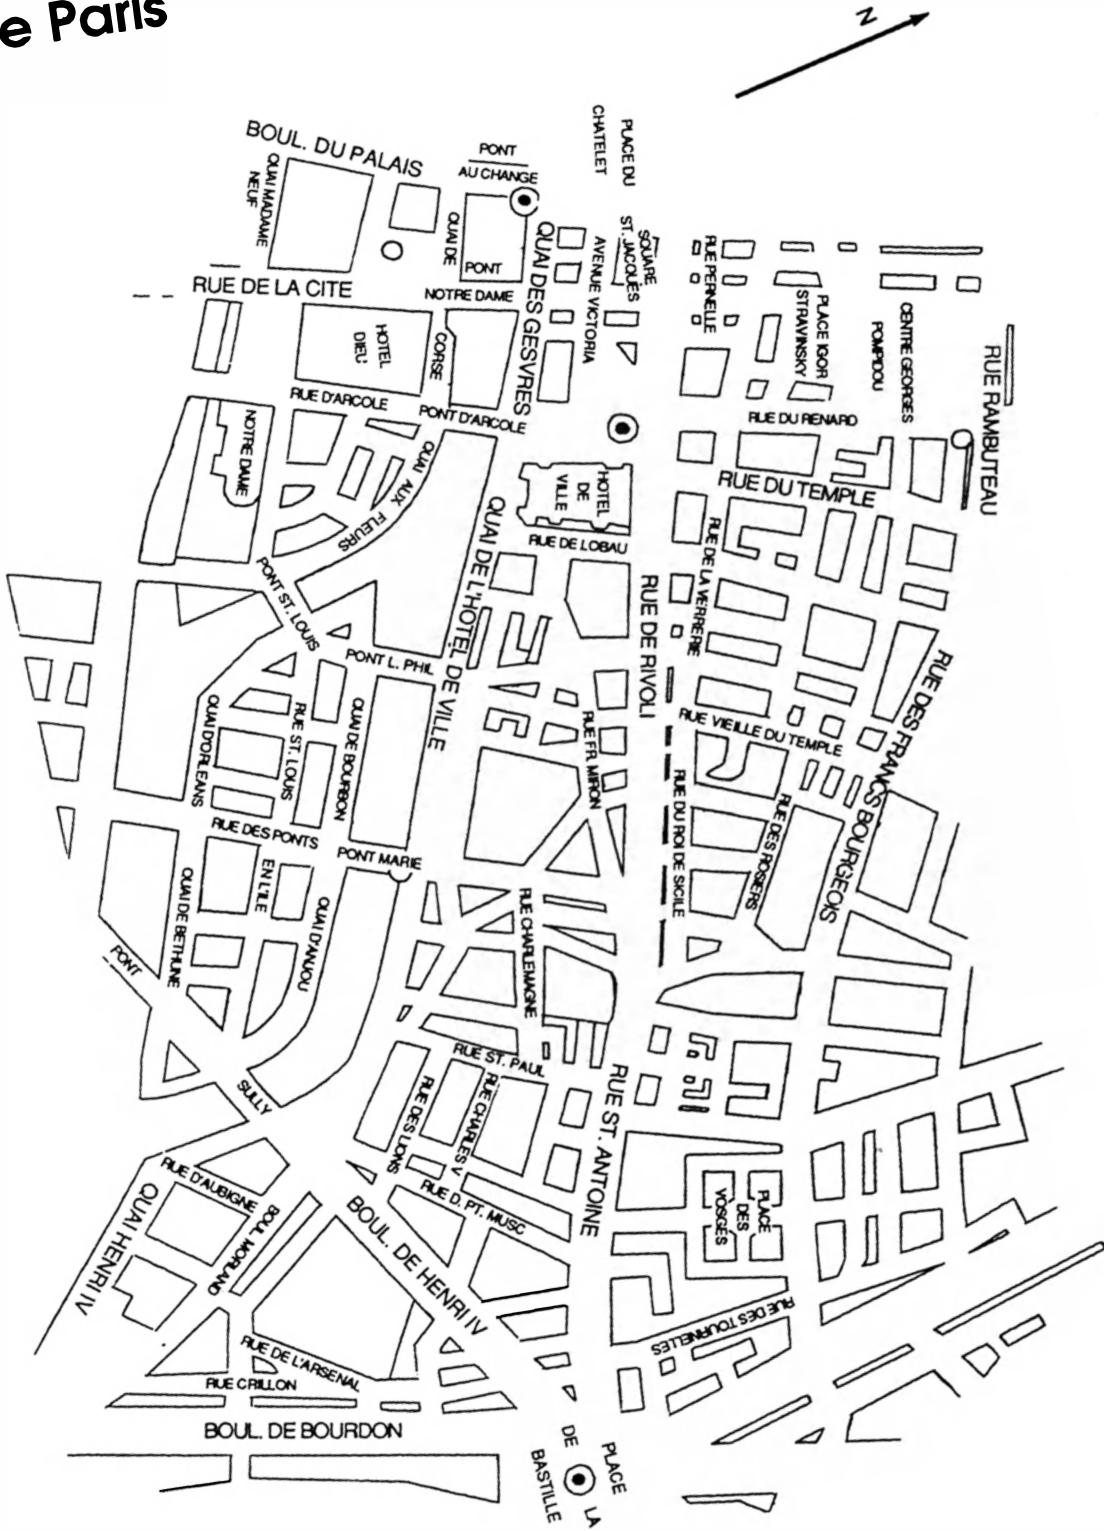

1. Start early, not the day before the assignment is due to be discussed in class.
2. First, scan-read the entire passage without looking up any words or even slowing down to guess at the meanings of words you don't recognize immediately. Try simply to get a general idea of what the passage is about.

* At no time in this process should you write translations between the lines.
3. Read the passage a second time, trying to work out the meanings of words you don't know or of constructions that are unfamiliar by using the total context. Do not use the glossary (if one is provided) or a dictionary.
4. Read the passage a third time, using the glossary or a dictionary as needed.

* Do not write the English equivalents between the lines: write them, if at all, on separate paper. We would prefer that you write out only those words that you realize ought to be part of your productive vocabulary. For example, you should write out and study a word like arbre, 'tree' if you don't know it, but should simply retain a word like frêne, 'ash tree' as part of your receptive vocabulary (i.e., know it is a type of tree, recognize it in future reading or in a dictation, but do not expect to produce it on your own).
5. Put the assignment aside. Some time later, preferably just before you are to discuss it in class, read it again, rapidly.

Remember that the purpose of a reading assignment is to give you practice reading. You only improve in reading by reading, and you will be tested at the end of each semester/quarter of French on your reading ability. Do not fool yourself by focusing on exercises that accompany certain reading assignments, without giving full attention to the reading process described above. You may succeed in class that day, but you will not succeed as well on later exams.

Plans de Paris

Pour Commencer...

- A. Cassette. Listen to the robotic and repetitive dialogue. If you have studied the words in the text and attended class, you should be able to understand it easily. Listen at least twice now, and then a few more times later on, not all at once.
- B. Written. Test yourself. NB: You should be doing this exercise after you have made flashcards and studied the words. After you have tested yourself, check your answers and write in the correct answers for any you missed, in a different-colored ink. Do not erase your mistakes, cross them out: it will be useful for your instructor to know if a number of students missed some of the same words.

C. Cassette. Listen to Pauline as she describes her family. She doesn't know you are just a beginner and will use quite a few words and constructions you don't know, but that's o.k. All you have to do is try to get the gist of what she says, then answer these questions:

1. Does she have a brother? _____ ... a sister? _____
2. What does her father do? C'est un _____.
3. Where does her mother keep her books? _____.
4. Is Pauline bigger than her brothers? _____.

D. Written. Complete the blanks for the appropriate words. There should be sufficient context for you to determine what word is missing, but there will be some words used in the sentences that you don't know. You'll have to read each unit (sentence, mini-dialogue, or paragraph) completely in order to figure out what they mean before filling in the blanks.

1. C'est un stylo noir?

Non, c'est un stylo _____; c'est le stylo du professeur. Il corrige les examens avec ce stylo.

2. Marie est étudiante. Elle a un livre et un cahier, mais elle n'a pas de stylo. Ça va, elle a un _____.

3. Je suis étudiant. Dans ma chambre il y a un _____ et une _____. Mes livres, mes stylos, mes cahiers et mes crayons sont sur la _____. Mes vêtements sont sur le _____. (Ma mère n'est pas contente.)

4. Madame Renaud est avocate. Elle est très conservatrice. Elle porte toujours un _____ gris. Mademoiselle Brune, au contraire, n'est pas conservatrice. Elle est chanteuse. Elle porte souvent un _____ et une chemise d'homme.

- E. Cassette. Dictée. This will be an easy dictation and it will not be given the way we give dictations in the regular chapters, so enjoy it while you can. Each line will be read twice with a pause each time, for you to write. Listen, write; listen again, make corrections.

Chapitre Un

Note: Remember that the Workbook is an integral part of this course: it's not just "busy work." In fact, the normal way to prepare for each class is to work quickly through the assigned pages in the textbook, then do the workbook assignment, then review the textbook to see if you can predict what unexpected questions or situations the instructor might introduce at the next class.

It is best to do the workbook exercises for each chapter in order and to have the cassette for that chapter ready to play as you work through the exercises. It is possible to do the oral exercises and written exercises separately, but always be sure to give plenty of time to the oral exercises.

- A. Start the cassette. First, listen only, glancing rapidly back and forth between the French and the equivalent English expressions.

Répétez tous ensemble.	Everybody repeat together.
Répétez, s'il vous plaît.	Please repeat.
Comprenez-vous?	Do you understand?
Vous comprenez?	You understand?
Oui, monsieur.	Yes, (sir).
Oui, madame.	Yes, (Ma'am).
Oui, mademoiselle.	Yes, (Miss).
Posez la même question à votre voisin.	Ask the same question of the (male) person next to you.
Tu comprends, Jacques?	You understand, Jim?
Non.	No.
Posez la même question à votre voisine.	Ask the same question of the (female) person next to you.
Tu comprends?	You understand?
Oui.	Yes.
Qu'est-ce que c'est?	What is this?
C'est un livre.	It's a book.
Qu'est-ce que c'est?	What's this?
Une fleur.	A flower.
Qu'est-ce que c'est?	What are these?
Ce sont des chiens.	They're dogs.

Now listen and repeat, once with the book open if you wish, but at least once with the book closed. Frequent practice of these expressions utiles will help prepare you for class.

- B. Written. Qu'est-ce c'est? Answer the question, "What's this/what are these?" by completing the blank in the first few sentences, then writing the complete answer yourself, following the model (Number 1).

13. C'est _____.
14. Ce sont _____.
15. _____

- C. Cassette. Someone has just incorrectly indentified the object identified between diagonal bars at each line. Following the model, correct him/her. (This is on the cassette: you should listen to it and practice doing dictation; there is no object identification of the last four, just the spoken cues on the cassette.)

Model: /a snake/ Non, ce n'est pas un chat, c'est un serpent.

1. /a window/ Non, ce n'est pas une porte, c'est _____.
2. /a pencil/ Non, ce n'est pas une fenêtre, c'est _____.
3. /a set of keys/ Non, ce ne sont pas des professeurs, ce sont _____.

9. Non, ce n'est pas un chien, _____.

| 7. Comment va Marie? | How's Mary? |
| 8. Comment ça va? | How are you? (familiar) |

E. Written. Answer the questions, following the model. If you need to look up the verb form, aller, see the Verb Tables, but try first to do the exercise without that help: you've already seen and used all the forms you need.

Model: Comment allez-vous?

Je vais bien.

1. Comment vas-tu? _____
2. Comment va Madelaine? _____
3. Comment allez-vous? (to group) _____
4. Comment vont-ils? _____

G. Cassette. Repeat as the speaker counts from 0 to 10. Please do not look at the textbook as you do this.

1. 0, 1, 2, . . . , 10
2. 0, 2, 4, . . . , 10
3. 1, 3, 5, . . . , 10
4. 10, 9, 8, . . . , 0

H. Cassette. Do the addition problems and write the answers in Arabic numerals. The expressions we'll use is "n plus n font _____?" and "n plus n font _____?"

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____
6. _____

I. Written. We'll say someone/something is not X. You complete the statement by providing a contrasting (not necessarily the exact opposite) quality. Keep on the same subject, replacing nouns by il, elle, ils, elles.

Model: Jean et Jacques ne sont pas sportifs;...

Ils sont studieux.

1. Marie n'est pas studieuse;...

_____.

2. Je ne suis pas bon;...

- J. Cassette. Dictée. There will be three readings. During the first one, listen and try to understand every word. During the second one, write. During the third one, check what you've written, and once again, think about the meaning of the passage or dialogue as a whole. Note: We give line numbers the second time. Those lines do not necessarily correspond to full sentences.

1. _____?
2. _____?
3. _____.
4. _____?
5. _____.
6. _____?
7. _____.
8. _____?
9. _____.
10. _____?

- K. Cassette. Word and sound discrimination. For each numbered set below, rewrite the word or phrase out of that set that you hear for the corresponding number on the cassette. (Do not write everything you hear, just the word or words from the set on that line.)

1. /un - une/ _____
2. /a - et - est/ _____
3. /la - le/ _____
4. /font - sont - vont/ _____
5. /présent - présente/ _____
6. /la - le/ _____

- L. Written. On your own. This exercise may be collected separately. Using only the vocabulary and expressions that you remember (do not look any up), write out a simple conversation between you and a friend you meet outside of class. Start with a greeting, ask how he/she is, ask one or two other simple questions, close with a farewell. Be sure to use tu in addressing your friend.

YOU: _____

YOUR FRIEND: _____

Chapitre Deux

- A. Cassette. Listen and look back and forth between the French and English equivalents (two readings on tape; you may replay it if you wish).

Répondez à la question.	Answer the question.
Dites la même chose à votre voisin.	Say the same thing to the (male) person sitting next to you.
Dites la même chose à votre voisine.	Say the same thing to the (female) person sitting next to you.

On dit "heureux".	They say "heureux".
Vous avez compris?	Did you understand?
Tu as compris?	Did you understand?

- B. Cassette. Now listen and repeat without looking at the text. (The tapescript will have expressions utiles from Chapters 1 and 2, not in the order presented, with some minor variations.)

- C. Cassette. Read quickly the following English version of the short dialogue in your textbook. Then listen to the recorded version a number of times, without looking at either text.

Teacher: Hello, Phillip.
Student: Hello, ma'am.
Teacher: What's that, Phillip?
Student: It's an elephant.
Teacher: Oh. What's its name?
Student: His name is Toto.
Teacher: You're tired, aren't you? (You must be tired.)
Student: No, Toto is small.

- D. Cassette. Listen and repeat, looking at the Arabic numerals. You will be given time to repeat each set after it has been read, not each numeral.

- Set a. 1, 3, 5, 7, 9
Set b. 2, 4, 6, 8, 10
Set c. 11, 13, 15, 17, 19

Set e. 21, 23, 25, 27, 29
Set f. 22, 24, 26, 28, 30
Set g. 17, 18, 19, 20, 21
Set h. 20, 22, 21, 29, 23

E. Cassette. Listen to the question and response. Fill in the blank with the age given, using Arabic numerals.

1. J'ai _____ ans.
2. J'ai _____ ans.
3. J'ai _____ ans.
4. J'ai _____ ans.
5. Jean-Pierre? Il a _____ ans.
6. Moi? J'ai _____ ans.
7. Oh! oui, il a _____ ans.

F. Written. Complete the following sentences, writing out (in French) the age of the person, as given in parentheses, and finally (in sentences 6 - 10) writing out the entire sentence, supplying your own subject (a name, your real brother, . . . see following list for ideas).

- (23) Mon frère a _____ ans. (my brother)
(19) Ma sœur a _____ ans. (my sister)
(20) Robert a _____ ans.
(21) Jacqueline a _____ ans.
(22) Jean est plus âgé que Robert; il a _____ ans.

Model. (18) Mon ami Jean a dix-huit ans.

(21) _____
(22) _____

You may use: mon ami C
 mon cousin
 ma cousine

mon amie F
mon frère
mon oncle

ma mère
ma sœur

(Don't look these words up—just guess at their meaning.)

- G. Cassette. Listen to the following commands, looking back and forth between the French and English equivalents.

Regardez-moi.	Look at me.
Donne-moi ce stylo.	Give me a pen.
Rendez-moi vos copies.	Turn in your papers to me.

Compstez votre billet.	Cancel your ticket. (Put it in a machine that eats a chunk out of it.)
Marie, donne-moi une bise.	Give me a little kiss, Mary.

- H. Cassette. You will now hear a series of commands, followed by (we hope) appropriate sound effects as the person complies with the request/command. Listen and pay attention. This is not just for amusement, though we're sure it's very entertaining: these expressions will come up later in class.

- I. Written. Forms of the definite article (See Reference Grammar, 2.2.2 and 21.). Replace the indefinite article by a definite article (instead of saying 'a book' or 'pens,' we'll say 'the book' or 'the pens'). Rewrite the entire phrase, not just the article.

des stylos	_____
des chaises	_____
un grand livre	_____

- J. Written. Complete the blanks in the following sentences by using the appropriate word from the "pool" we provide and filling in the proper form of the verb given in parentheses. Be sure to make any contractions that are required. (Reference Grammar, 21.)

/ les étudiants - le médecin - le jardin - le mur - l'université - le professeur - l'exercice - le restaurant /

1. (arriver à) Les enfants _____ arrivent au jardin _____ avec leurs jouets.
2. (parler à) Le professeur _____.
3. (parler à) Quand vous êtes à l'hôpital, vous _____.
4. (parler de) Les étudiants _____ quand il n'est pas dans la salle de classe.
5. (arriver à) Les étudiants _____ à 8h du matin.
6. (arriver à) A 6h du soir, nous _____ pour le dîner.

- K. Written. Write out the question that would have elicited the answer given. You may use est-ce que, inversion, or simply normal word order with a question mark, but don't use just one formula for all sentences. Note that these are all responses to "yes/no" questions, and all involve verbs that follow the same pattern as regarder. (For all third-person forms, we give you a subject noun to use, as in the model.)

Model: Est-ce que Robert regarde cette carte?

– Oui, il regarde cette carte. (Robert)

1. _____ ?
– Non, je ne regarde pas cette carte.
2. _____ ?
– Non, elles ne parlent pas lentement. (les Françaises)
3. _____ ?
– Oui, nous regardons le film.
4. _____ ?
– Oui, monsieur, vous posez beaucoup de questions.
5. _____ ?
– Non, il ne retourne pas à sa place. (Phillipe)
6. _____ ?
– Oui, je ferme la porte.
7. _____ ?
– Oui, elle entre dans la salle. (Mademoiselle Caillou)
8. _____ ?
– Non, il n'explique pas la leçon. (le professeur)

- L. Written. Make the following sentences negative, using the simple negative construction. This will seem boring (it is!), but please write out each sentence carefully, thinking what it means: it is important to get the order of negative words straight right now.

Model: Je suis content.

Je ne suis pas content.

1. Nous parlons français.

2. Alors, vous êtes content?

3. Le prof ferme la porte.

4. Ils regardent le portrait.

5. Les étudiants entrent dans la salle.

6. Tu retournes à ta place.

7. Vous regardez votre livre.

8. Nous sommes heureux.

- M. Written. Make up four simple "yes/no" questions and write the answers, all in the negative--as in the model. Do not use the verb avoir.

Model: Etes-vous contente?

Non, je ne suis pas contente.

1. _____ ?

Non, _____ .

2. _____ ?

Non, _____ .

3. _____ ?

Non, _____ .

4. _____ ?

- N. Cassette. Do the simple calculations requested of you on the cassette. The expressions we'll use are:

for addition: "n et n font n." (e.g. Deux et deux font quatre.) OR ("n plus n font n.") for subtraction: "n moins n font n." (e.g. Quatre moins deux font deux.)

for multiplication: "n fois n font n." (e.g. Deux fois deux font quatre.)

Sentences 1 - 5 are dictated completely. Fill in the blanks with the numerals, written in French. Sentences 6 - 10 are "problems"--give the answer only, in Arabic numerals.

1. Deux plus quatre font _____.
2. _____ plus dix-sept font _____.
3. Vingt-cinq moins _____ font _____.
4. _____ fois quatre font _____.
5. Trente moins _____ font _____.
6. _____
7. _____
8. _____
9. _____
10. _____

(The only reason we have not included any exercises in division, is that one of your authors hates arithmetic, particularly division--long or short. If you really want to do it in French, the expression is: "n divisé par n font n." One can also use that kind of expression for multiplication: "n multiplié par n font n.")

- Q. Written. Composition. Imagine you have arrived in class early. Write the dialogue that takes place as your instructor greets you, asks some questions, tells you to get up, to go to the board, or to open/close the door. If you wish, add another person to the dialogue at the end. Before you do this exercise, quickly scan the textbook and/or the workbook to remind yourself of what you are now able to talk about in French--but then DO NOT use the book again until you have finished.

B. Cassette. Books closed, please. Repeat.

(The recording will contain some of the above sentences, but not in the same order, and with some variations, including some expressions from Chapters 1 and 2.)

C. Cassette. Read quickly the following English version of the dialogues in your textbook, then listen once to the recorded version while looking at the French text. After that, listen to the recording a number of times, without looking at either text. Do not try to work out a "translation" by comparing the two texts: the English is provided only to be sure you understand what the dialogues are about, not to have you work on analyzing the grammar of the sentences.

First dialogue:

Narrator: A client enters a men's clothing shop. A saleslady approaches.

Saleslady: Good afternoon, madam. May I help you?

Client: Hello. I'd like to find something for my fiancé's birthday, and it's tomorrow!

Saleslady: I understand. Let's see Here we have some shirts, and over there you have trousers and suits in wool, in linen, in silk

Client: Would you have something a bit simpler, for example, some scarves, hats or ties?

Saleslady: Wait here a minute. I'll go look for some beautiful leather ties that just arrived.

Narrator: The client waits for several minutes. Finally, the saleslady reappears.

Saleslady: Here they are. See, I have ties of all colors, brown, blue, grey, red, violet, and they only cost 150 francs.

Client: Excellent idea. Give me a grey tie and green one.

Saleslady: Shall I gift-wrap them?

Client: Yes, please.

Narrator: The client pays and leaves the shop, pleased with her purchase.

Second dialogue:

Pierre: I'm looking at an animal. What is it?

Marie: Is it small?

Pierre: No, it's not small.

Paul: Is it in this room?

Pierre: No, it's in this photograph.

Josée: Is it a lazy animal?

Pierre: No, it's very active.

Paul: Is it nice and pleasant?

Pierre: Yes.

Marie: Is it a cat?

Pierre: No, it's a dog. Cats aren't nice.

Please DO NOT write out the questions: the simplest way to do this exercise is to take one question at a time, stop the cassette while you answer, start again. Get used to this exercise, because your oral exams may include exercises like it.

Chapitre Quatre

- A. Cassette. Listen first, then listen and repeat, as explained on the tape.
 (The following is a loose translation of the dialogue. Look at it before and/or during your first listening. Do not copy translations into the textbook. Do not look at the following "translation" while repeating.)

Tourist: Hello. I'd like to go to the Rodin museum.
 Clerk: Good. Wait here a minute, I'll call a taxi for you.
 Tourist: Oh, no thanks. Taxis are too expensive. Besides, it's a beautiful day. I'd rather walk. Could you tell me how to get there on foot?
 Clerk: Sure. That's going to be quite a hike.
 Tourist: How long?
 Clerk: Oh, about a half-hour maybe. Our hotel is on the Boulevard Saint-Germain. Turn right as you leave the hotel and go to the Rue du Bac. There, turn left and go to the Rue de Varenne, where you have to turn right. Keep going in the direction of the Hôtel des Invalides. The Rodin museum will be on your left.
 Tourist: Thanks very much. And how can I get back by metro?
 Clerk: That's a bit more complicated: the metro station is Varenne. You take the subway in the direction of Porte d'Orléans. At the Duroc station, you'll have to transfer: get out and take the subway in the direction of Gare d'Austerlitz. You can get out at the Mabillon station and you'll be very near the hotel.
 Tourist: You weren't kidding: that is pretty complicated.
 Clerk: I have a suggestion: go both ways on foot.
 Tourist: Thank you. How would you like to visit the museum with me?
 Clerk: Great idea. Let me just close the office up and I'll be right with you.

(O.K. So no hotel clerk in Paris would close up and go to the museum with a tourist ... There are no live elephants that you can carry around with you either!)

- B. Cassette. What follows is a quick review of a number of expressions utiles introduced in the first three chapters. Listen and simply determine if each one is sufficiently familiar to you: that is, whether or not you understand it. If not, put a check mark next to it and look it up (the chapter and line numbers are given); if you do understand it, just repeat the expression (do not go back and check for the exact meaning).

1. Chapter 1, 2
2. Chapter 1, 4
3. Chapter 2, 1
4. Chapter 2, 5
5. Chapter 3, 1
6. Chapter 3, 3
7. Chapter 3, 4
8. Chapter 3, 6

- C. Cassette. Dictation and practice with possessive adjectives. First, write in the question that you hear, as directed on the tape and following the model. Then listen again and respond with the appropriate expression: le voici, la voici, or les voici. (The correct response is given in the second reading, after a pause.) By the way, there are some words in this exercise that you may not have seen before, but they are all useful, high-frequency items and we've listed them in alphabetical order in the Glossary which follows the exercise.

FIRST READING

Model: You hear: Où est mon livre?

In the pause following that, write: Où est mon livre?

1. _____ ?
2. _____ ?
3. _____ ?
4. _____ ?
5. _____ ?
6. _____ ?
7. _____ ?
8. _____ ?

SECOND READING

Model: You hear: Où est mon livre?

In the pause following that, you say: Le voici.

Glossary:

cheval, m.	horse	robe, f.	dress
couteau, m.	knife	sac, m.	pocketbook
hôtel, m.	hotel	soeur, f.	sister
journal, -aux, m.	newspaper

- D. Written. Write a complete NEGATIVE answer to each question, using the word in parentheses to contradict the questioner, either as to the owner of the item mentioned (we'll provide the appropriate possessive, as in model a.), or as to the identification of the item mentioned (see model b.).

Models: a. -- Je regarde mon nez, n'est-ce pas? (mon)

Non, vous regardez mon nez!

(That's not a typo: the questioner says "I'm looking at my nose, right?"; the answerer says "No, you're looking at my nose" -- same word each time, different referent.)

b. -- Je parle à ton chat, n'est-ce pas? (chien)

Non, tu parles à mon chien.

(We changed not only the item mentioned, but also the possessive adjective: of course, it still refers to the same owner--the person originally addressed.)

1. C'est mon sac, n'est-ce pas? (mon)

2. C'est votre prof? (ami)

3. Il parle à sa mère? (père)

4. Ce sont vos étudiants? (enfants)

5. Tu cherches ton livre? (devoirs)

6. Vous entrez dans votre maison? (appartement)

7. Ils ferment leur porte, n'est-ce pas? (fenêtres)

8. Vous allez dans votre cuisine? (chambre)

E. Written. Fill in the blanks with the appropriate form of the verb prendre, or apprendre, or comprendre. In this particular exercise, it's permissible to use any of the verbs more than once. In some sentences, more than one of the verbs will fit the context.

Note: The verb prendre does not mean "take" in the sense of "take a course". (We use suivre for that.)

1. Je _____ un bain.

2. Nous _____ bien le français.

3. Tu vas _____ le chinois l'année prochaine?

4. _____ -vous?

5. Marie et Jean _____ un taxi pour aller à l'aéroport.

6. On _____ beaucoup dans un cours de linguistique.

F. Cassette. Verb drill for prendre, comprendre, apprendre. Repeat the first short sentence given each time, then give the appropriate follow-up according to the cue, as in the model.

Model:- You hear: Je prends le train. (there's a pause)

You say: Je prends le train.

Then you hear: Nous. (pause)

You say: Nous prenons le train.

Note: We'll give three separate cues after each verb phrase. After a pause, during which you should respond, we'll give the correct response. Listen to it carefully and match it with yours but do not repeat it. (There will not be time to do so.)

For third-person forms, instead of a pronoun cue, we'll usually give a noun (Jacques, Mon ami, Les étudiants, Marie et Françoise, etc.) to make it clear whether the subject is singular or plural. Always repeat the cue (or the equivalent pronouns) with the verb form, not just the verb form alone.

(These are the cues: in later lessons, we will not give them in written form.)

1. Je prends le train.
2. Tu comprends?
3. Il apprend le français.
4. Elles prennent le métro.
5. Nous comprenons la question.
6. Vous prenez un verre?

- G. Written. Your very forgetful roommate is moving out (Dieu merci!). There were some things that she was not sure about: were they hers or not? So she put them in a big box, waited for you, and is now asking your help/opinion. Complete the responses, using an appropriate possessive adjective. Careful: note that your roommate doesn't always suggest that an item is hers.

Model: C'est ma tasse?

– Oui, c'est ta tasse.

1. Ce sont mes photos?
– Oui, _____.
2. a. Est-ce mon éléphant?
– Non, _____.
b. C'est peut-être l'éléphant de Marie et de Jeanne?
– Oui, _____.
3. a. C'est mon cahier, n'est-ce pas?
– Non, _____.
b. Est-ce le cahier de ton frère?
– Oui, _____.
4. Voici mes lunettes de soleil, n'est-ce pas?
– Oui, _____.
5. Ce sont tes chaussettes sales?
– Non! _____.

Now add two of your own.

6. _____ ?
– _____.
7. _____ ?
– _____.

- H. Written. Is your room a mess? Look around you (literally or in your imagination) and list items in your room--as you did in an earlier chapter, but this time you're going to locate the items and tell us whose they are, following the model. Try to stay within your vocabulary, but you may use a dictionary if you wish and you certainly are not restricted to mundane items like livre, stylo. You may assume you are speaking to a friend on the phone and thus say something like "Et ta cassette est sur la table."

Model: Mon livre est sur le lit.

Mes devoirs sont dans la corbeille.

La photo de Nanette est sur la table.

(Attention: Remember there is no apostrophe s in French.)

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____
6. _____
7. _____
8. _____

(We hope you used at least five different prepositions. If not, your instructor may be disappointed.)

- I. Written. Following the model and using the information given you, write out what each person described is. (Some words you'll need are: avocat, boulanger, athlète, directrice, musicien, médecin.) In the first five, follow model a.; in the second five, model b. Remember, both forms (C'est un : il est) mean essentially the same thing: we want you to become familiar with both because both are used frequently.

Model a: Voici Nanette. Son père et sa mère sont canadiens.

-- Elle est canadienne.

1. Voici Paul. Il apprend le français à cette université.

_____.

2. Voici mes amis. Ils sont religieux. Ils vont à la messe tous les dimanches.

_____.

3. Voici mon père. Il travaille devant les juges.

_____.

6. Voici Monsieur Bonpain. Il travaille à la boulangerie.

_____.

7. Voici Claudine Collet. Elle est chef d'une grande compagnie industrielle.

_____.

8. Voici Philippe LeFort. Il joue au football. Il court vite. Il est costaud.

_____.

J. Written. Complete the following blanks with il/elle est, c'est, ils/elles sont, or ce sont, as required by the context. At the same time, prepare to answer similar questions in class, or at an exam.

1. Votre père, il est avocat? Non, _____ un médecin.
2. Vos sœurs, sont-elles journalistes? Oui, _____ des journalistes.
3. Et votre mère? _____ professeur.
4. Votre père est sénégalais? Non, _____ algérien.
5. Et votre mère? _____ une Française.
6. Votre mère est catholique? Oui, _____ catholique.
7. Et votre père? Non, _____ luthérien.

K. Cassette. You're going to hear a number of different statements, each introducing a telephone number. We'll give you a hint as to the content of the statement, but don't worry if you don't understand each one. All you are required to do is write out the telephone number, in Arabic numerals.

Model: You hear: - Votre numéro de téléphone, s'il vous plaît.

- C'est le 44-62-07-89

You write: 44-62-07-89

1. (Phil gets the answering machine at François' house.) _____
2. (Radio announces a time and temp service.) _____
3. (She gives him her telephone number.) _____
4. (MacDonald's in Paris takes phone orders.) _____
5. (Operator gives you a number you requested.) _____
6. (You get an emergency number.) _____

- L. Written. Some number-writing practice. Please be sure to do this without looking at the number list in the text, then check it against the key. You're just trying to find out if you remember the basic orthographic conventions, and--as we say--it's not as important as learning to work with numbers orally.

Chapitre Cinq

- A. Cassette. Listen first, then listen and repeat. Remember, the English equivalents are given here to help you understand in general the content of the dialogues. Do not copy those 'translations' into your textbook. You'll find the text of the dialogue, in French, in your textbook.

Narrator: A group of tourists in Paris. They are fascinated by the explanations given by their guide.

The Guide: You are now on the square in front of Notre-Dame. Please look at the cathedral. It is a good example of Gothic architecture.

Mme Bonpoids: Excuse me, how old is this cathedral? Fifty years old?

The Guide: Er . . . no! It's a bit older than that. This cathedral was built from the twelfth to the fourteenth centuries. It is therefore about 700 years old.

M. Bonpoids: Yes, yes, I know, it's from the time of Louis XIV. He constructed this cathedral.

The Guide: I'm terribly sorry, sir, but you are mistaken. Louis XIV was the so-called "Sun King." He lived in the seventeenth century.

Mile Chanel: Yes, and he built the Louvre, didn't he?

The Guide: No, the château de Versailles. The Louvre dates from the twelfth century. It was, however, the royal residence and several kings lived in the Louvre: Henry IV, Louis XIII, and Louis XIV when he was a child.

M. Chardin: Yes, but today the Louvre is a museum. Now where does the king of France live?

The Guide: (Exasperated) France is no longer a kingdom; we had a revolution in 1789 and we are a republic, with a president!

(The guide leaves his group of tourists, and goes off singing La Marseillaise.)

- B. Cassette. Review of basic expressions and constructions. You're going to hear a series of questions and answers. As the model shows, each set will first have one pair that you are to repeat, then have a second pair in which you are to respond to the question (no "correct" answer will be given on tape as there will often be more than one possibility.) We give reference numbers to the page in which the construction is introduced, but please try to do this exercise first without looking anything up.

Models: (Chap. 1-C)

- a. Répétez. -- Et Louise, comment va-t-elle? (You repeat)
-- Elle va bien. (You repeat)
- b. Répondez. -- Et toi, comment vas-tu? (Listen, do not repeat.)
-- Je vais bien, merci, et toi? (You give your answer.)

1. (Chap. 1-D) Repeat the a. set; answer the b. question.
2. (Chap. 1-Numerals)
3. (Chap. 2-A)
4. (Chap. 2-D, E: Note--your response must be negative.)
5. (Chap. 3-A, B: Note--your response must be negative.)
6. (Chap. 3-C, D)
7. (Chap. 3-E)
8. (Chap. 4-A)

C. Written. In the following exercise, give the proper form of either vouloir, or pouvoir, or écrire, according to the meaning of the sentence.

1. Quand il fait chaud, je ne _____ pas étudier.
2. Nous _____ des lettres à nos amis.
3. C'est vendredi soir et mes amis _____ sortir. Moi, je vais rester ici et travailler.
4. _____ -vous avec un crayon ou un stylo? _____
5. -- _____ -vous encore du café?
-- Non, merci.
6. Si tu _____, tu _____

D. Written.

(1) Tell us what the following people/animals can do.

- a. Je _____.
- b. Mes amis _____.
- c. Mon chien _____.

(2) Tell us what the following people want to do.

- a. Je _____.
- b. Mes amis et moi _____.
- c. Mon professeur _____.

- E. Written. Give the weather expression that corresponds to the sketch. Of course, there may be more than one possible appropriate response, . . . so we give the same sketch more than once. You, on the other hand, are not permitted to repeat an expression: it's a teacher's world.

Model:

Il fait beau.

1.

3.

4.

6.

F. Cassette. You're going to overhear a conversation between two friends. Madeleine has called François looking for sympathy: she's on vacation and the weather is terrible. She doesn't get much sympathy, but we get to hear lots of weather expressions, in contrasting statements. Listen and try to get the gist of what is said. AT THE END, repeat the weather expressions when they are given again, with pauses.

G. Cassette. Verb drill on the verbs pouvoir, vouloir, and écrire. As usual, repeat the model sentences, then give the correct form as the three cues are given. We will always give the correct response to the cue, but you are not to repeat that. If you have trouble, repeat the entire exercise.

H. Written. A simple, but dull exercise, just to be sure you have the forms of the interrogative adjective straight. Fill in the blanks with the proper form of quel, according to the gender and the number of the noun it goes with. To spice it up a bit, we've inserted a few new words, but you'll be able to pick up the gender from the rest of the question/response (for example, ton would lead you to the masculine form, quel, in the model).

Model: - Quel genou regardez-vous? - Je regarde ton genou.

1. - _____ arbre regardez-vous? - Le grand arbre juste devant vous.
2. -- _____ heure est-il? - Il est six heures.
3. -- _____ couleurs préférez-vous? - Moi, je préfère les couleurs vives, comme le rouge.
4. - _____ roman de Camus lisez-vous? - Je lis La chute.
5. - _____ chemin prends-tu? - Je prends le chemin qui mène à la maison de grand-mère. (Red Riding Hood to the wolf.)
6. - _____ hôtels choisissez-vous? - Je choisis toujours les petits hôtels charmants et pittoresques.

I. Cassette. Sound and word discrimination. Write the word(s) you hear, following the usual pattern.

- K. Written. Guided composition. We'll give the first words for each unit (which may be a short paragraph or just one sentence). You complete the units, using your imagination, but following the guidelines we give here. In the first one, set the framework (either simply tell us where you lived or take some other simple approach: e.g., imagine that you traveled to some other country that year; that you went to a private school that year, or ...). In the following ones, say what went on, within that framework, in each of the seasons.

Chapitre Six

- A. Cassette. Before listening to the dialogue, quickly scan this English version of it, then read (again) the French version in your textbook. As you listen to the dialogue the first time, follow it in your textbook (in French). After that, listen to it a number of times, without looking at either version.

Narrator: Two girls, Evelyne and Stéphanie, are strolling in Paris.

Evelyne: Look, there are a lot of people in front of that bistro.

Stéphanie: What's going on? Let's go see.

Evelyne: Oh, there's a mime! Look, he's making believe he's eating, but he has nothing in his hands.

Stéphanie: That's right: there's no table, no chair, no plate, no fork, no knife, no spoon.

Evelyne: This guy is really talented. Too bad he just finished up.

Stéphanie: And now he's passing the hat. You want to give him something?

Evelyne: Yes, I like him, I'm going to give him five francs. How about you?

Stéphanie: Not me. I prefer to spend my five francs at the bistro.

- B. Cassette. A short drill to help you get used to the passé composé with avoir verbs. As usual in verb drills, repeat the first full sentence given to you, then give the proper substitute form according to the cue. You'll hear the correct response; do not repeat it. Three cues follow each sentence, then a new sentence.

1. J'ai étudié le français.
2. Il a fait ses devoirs.
3. Il a pris un taxi.
4. J'ai fermé la porte.

- C. Cassette. This will help you get started on your own set of questions and responses for the continuation of Questions et réponses-A in class. Just listen to the sets we have recorded: it's okay to take notes but don't try to write everything down (this is not a dictée--simply a sample of the kinds of things you can ask and the kinds of answers that might be given.)

1. The prof thinks John is rich because he bought a Cadillac, but . . .
2. Françoise wasted her time in front of the tube (worse yet, watching DALLAS), while her friend wrote letters.
3. Not only did John-Paul work last night despite the noise in the meeting room, but he points out to his friend that he finished his homework, whereas his friend . . .

Glossaire

les actualités, le téléjournal,	the news
une salle de réunions,	a meeting room
vieux, vieille,	old (masculine and feminine forms)
un chanteur,	a singer

- D. Cassette. Like B, this is a drill on the passé composé, but with verbs that take être as the auxiliary. Same pattern: A short sentence that you repeat, then three cues in a row for you to produce a substitute sentence. We'll give the correct responses, but you are not to repeat them: if your responses do not match ours, it's better to go back and repeat the entire exercise.

1. Elle est allée à Paris.
2. Nous sommes partis ce matin.
3. Mes amis sont arrivés hier soir.
4. Il est entré dans la salle.

- E. Written. Complete the following sentences by giving the correct passé composé form of the verb given in parentheses. Remember to check the être verb list in 6.2.1-b of the Reference Grammar. There should be no mistakes: all the forms can be looked up.

1. (boire) J' _____ un coca.
2. (faire) Ils _____ leurs devoirs.
3. (aller) Tu _____ au Mexique.
4. (pouvoir) Elles _____ voyager en France cet été.
5. (partir) Je _____ à cinq heures.
6. (être) Tu _____ malade hier?
7. (arriver) Elles _____ à sept heures.
8. (choisir) J' _____ ce disque.
9. (finir) Vous _____ la leçon.
10. (regarder) Il _____ la télé pendant quatre heures.

- F. Written. What you (or someone else) did, when. Write ten sentences, using the passé composé and a time expression (clock time or something like "last night"), each one stating what you or X did at some time in the past. For the first five, use avoir verbs, the next five, être verbs, following the models.

Model: J'ai fini mes devoirs ce matin.

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____

Model: Ma sœur est partie à six heures.

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____

- G. Cassette. This and the following exercise will be short verb drills, all following the same pattern: short sentence to repeat, three cues followed by pauses (you give the correct substitution), followed by the correct responses (you do not repeat the correct responses).

1. Je finis mes devoirs.
2. Les étudiants obéissent au prof.
3. Le malade choisit un médecin.

- H. Cassette. Verb drill, as in Exercise G.

1. Je bois de l'eau.

1. / est - a - ai / _____
2. / finit - fini - finis / _____
3. / écrivez - écrivaient - écrit / _____
4. / a - es - as / _____

- K. Written. We will give sentence beginnings, with an explanation of the context for that sentence. You complete the sentence using your imagination or personal experiences, being sure to use the tense that is called for by the forms proposed and/or by the situation.

1. (The person speaking just won the lottery. He/she tells us what he/she was doing just two days ago.)

J'ai gagné à la Loterie Nationale aujourd'hui. Il y a deux jours, _____

2. (The person speaking has been converted recently to leading a better life. Formerly, she/he had various vices--list them; now, she/he does better things--list those.)

Autrefois, quand j'étais une pécheresse (un pécheur), je... _____

Maintenant que je suis converti(e), je... _____

3. (The person speaking was a famous athlete. She/he was injured last year and life has changed. You supply the sport and the details of changes in life-style.)

Il y a deux ans, tout le monde me connaissait: ... _____

Puis, l'été passé, j'ai eu un accident et j'ai été obligé(e) de renoncer à ma carrière.

Maintenant, _____

4. (Make up a situation of your own. You might try using a recent event or a situation discussed in your student newspaper, but be sure to use French that you can handle. Explain the situation briefly in English, then write the details in French.)

Chapitre Sept

- A. Cassette. The first time you listen to the dialogue, you may read the English equivalent given below (or you may read it before listening to the dialogue). The next few times, you should look at the text in your textbook. Finally, you should listen to the dialogue a few times with no text in front of you. If you wish to repeat (it is not necessary to do so: the dialogue's main purpose is to develop listening comprehension), you may stop your cassette--preferably using a "pause" button if you have one.

Setting: We are at the Museum of Science and Industry. It's the last week of classes. A class is on a field trip to the exhibition, "Repaired Man." At the exit, surrounded by his students, the professor asks them for their reactions.

Professor: What impressed you most about the exhibit?

Armand: For me, it was the paradox that wars and catastrophes are at the origin of important scientific and technological developments.

Camille: Yes. They explained, for example, how one should treat burns, poisonings and fractures.

Bertrand: It's really something to see all the techniques that doctors use to "repair" people. Did you see those electronic prostheses?

Violaine: Yes, not bad. Using electronics and the computer, they've found compensatory systems for handicapped people, the deaf and the blind. Some of their solutions are incredible.

Professor: So, then, you learned something?

Students: Yes, a lot.

Professor: Good. Now, let's get over to the geodesic dome where we are supposed to see two movies. Our reservation is for two o'clock.

Students: Great!

- B. Cassette. Listen to the following sets of mini-dialogues or comments. Each one will contain one or more avoir expressions. Write as many as you hear, on the respective lines.

Model: Il a faim. (This is what you write, after hearing:)

Qu'est-ce qu'il a ce pauvre garçon?
Il a faim. Il n'a pas mangé depuis deux jours.

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____

- C. Written. Complete each of the following sentences with an avoir expression from the pool provided. Do not use any expression more than once. You will not have to use all the expressions provided.

/ avoir soif avoir froid avoir tort avoir raison avoir besoin de avoir faim avoir chaud /

1. Jean dit que Marie _____ d'être prudente.
2. Il ne peut pas faire cela tout seul. _____ deux ou trois autres personnes.
3. Si vous _____, vous n'avez qu'à mettre un pull.
4. Quand on n'a pas assez mangé, _____.
5. Au mois de janvier, quand nous avons froid, les habitants du Brésil_____.

- D. Cassette. Verb drill for dire. Repeat the first short sentence given each time, then give the appropriate follow-up according to the cue, as in previous drills. We'll give the proper response each time, but will not leave time for it to be repeated. Later, you should repeat the full exercise.

(Note that we no longer sequence the drills starting with a je- form, and proceeding in order through the third person plural form. In addition, from now on, we'll regularly include imparfait and passé composé forms in our models, not just present tense forms.)

1. Je dis la vérité.
2. Qu'est-ce que vous disiez? (imparfait)
3. Tu dis qu'elle est malade?
4. Il a dit bonjour. (passé composé)
5. Ils disent qu'ils ont froid.

- E. Written. Complete the blanks below with the proper form of the verb dire. Read the whole sentence to be sure of the tense and person-number required.

1. Je _____ toujours la vérité.
2. Au moment où l'inspecteur est arrivé, le criminel _____ qu'il n'avait pas peur des agents de police.
3. Nos étudiants _____ souvent que nous leur donnons trop de devoirs.
4. Pardon, je ne peux pas vous entendre. Qu'est-ce que vous _____ ?

- F. Written. Answer each question, following the model. This is a fairly repetitive exercise, but it is important that you develop the use of the futur proche, and writing it out completely in the contexts we provide should help. Note that we give you, in parentheses, the time or time period at which the person replying intends to do whatever is asked.

Model: Avez-vous fait vos devoirs? (ce soir)

Non, (mais) je vais faire mes devoirs ce soir.

1. Alors, tu as écrit cette lettre? (tout de suite)

2. Paul, tes étudiants ont étudié pour l'examen? (ce week-end)

3. Marie est sortie avec Jean? (samedi prochain)

4. As-tu téléphoné à tes parents? (la semaine prochaine)

5. Avez-vous déjà visité la France? (l'année prochaine)

6. Est-ce que Françoise a voyagé en France? (cet été)

7. Henri, tu as fait ton lit? (tout de suite)

8. Le prof a expliqué cette leçon, n'est-ce pas? (demain)

- G. Cassette. Review verb drill. Repeat the first sentence in each set (given below), then give the appropriate follow-up to the cue (not given below). We'll provide the proper response on the cassette, but there will not be time to repeat it: if you have trouble, it's better to repeat the entire exercise later. Each set has a different verb. We give in parentheses the chapter in which that verb (or the model it follows) is presented.

1. Je fais du ski nautique. (3)
2. On ne comprenait pas. (4)
3. Elle ne pouvait pas sortir. (5)
4. Les étudiants ne voulaient pas écouter le prof. (5)
5. Avez-vous obéi à l'agent? (6)

- H. Written. Respond to the question with the same tense (imparfait, passé composé, or futur proche) and a contrary meaning. It doesn't have to be an exact opposite, just clearly different, as in the example.

Model: Tu vas sortir ce soir, n'est-ce pas?

Non, je vais rester ici.

NB: Be sure to retain the same tense and same basic construction as is used in the question.

1. Le prof a fermé la porte, n'est-ce pas?

2. Tu vas étudier beaucoup cette année, n'est-ce pas?

3. Jean faisait toujours ses devoirs, n'est-ce pas?

4. Fifi avait froid hier soir, n'est-ce pas?

5. Il va faire du soleil demain, n'est-ce pas?

6. Elle est entrée à six heures, n'est-ce pas?

J. Cassette. You will hear a series of mini-dialogues. After each one, write oui if the response you heard was logical and appropriate; write non if the response was inappropriate and/or illogical. (Note: We do not intentionally include grammatically incorrect sentences, although some may be so strange semantically that you will consider them as such.)

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____

K. Written. Write five sentences following each model below. You are to compare how something is now with the way it was sometime in the past (first model) or how you expect it to be sometime in the future (second model). You choose the topic and the condition or quality.

Model a: Aujourd'hui il fait beau; hier il faisait moins beau.

1. _____

4. _____

5. _____

Model b: Maintenant, je suis content, mais demain je vais être plus content.

Chapitre Huit

- A. Cassette. We give two "dialogues" this time: the animal dialogue that appears at the beginning of the chapter and one of the fables from the lecture section at the end of the chapter.
1. For the dialogue, as usual, first read the loose translation to be sure you have the general content. Then play the cassette, looking at the French version in your textbook. Later, play the cassette without looking at either version. Repeat, if you wish, by stopping your cassette after each speaker finishes.

Situation: A tortoise is taking a walk. All of a sudden she is surrounded by a bunch of animals. They are farm animals.

Tortoise: Greetings, cow! Where do you live?

Cow: I live in the stable with the other cows, some calves and a big black bull.

Tortoise: And what do you know how to do?

Cow: Moo, moo! I graze and I give milk.

Tortoise: And you, horse, what do you know how to do?

Horse: Neigh, neigh! I know how to run, leap and jump.

The tortoise continues her walk.

Tortoise: Hi, pigs. And you, what do you know how to do?

Pigs: Oink, oink! We know how to roll in the mud and we stink.

Tortoise: And you, little cat, what do you know how to do?

Cat: Meow, meow! I hunt mice and I purr.

Dog: And me, I bark, bow-wow!, to protect the house and chase the cats, the cows and the sheep.

Tortoise: And you, chickens, what do you know how to do?

Chickens: Cluck, cluck! We lay eggs and we eat grain.

The rooster comes along.

Rooster: Cockle-doodle-doo! Cockle-doodle-doo! Me, I'm the boss, I wake everybody up in the morning.

Sheep: Baa, baa. Me, I give wool.

Donkey: Hee-haw! Hee-haw! Me, I pull the cart and I am stubborn.

Tortoise: You all live together? Do you like each other?

All reply at the same time.

All: (All the animal sounds above, plus some others, jumbled together.)

2. For the fable, we do not give a translation. The recording is done twice, once rapidly, once with pauses. Use the recording to help you as you memorize this fable.

- B. Written. This is a simple substitution exercise: you definitely have to know the forms of the indirect object and we're providing an opportunity to practice writing them. REWRITE each sentence, replacing the indirect object by the one given in parentheses. Do not change the subject.

Model: Je te donne mon stylo. (lui)

Je lui donne mon stylo.

1. Elle me rend les devoirs. (nous)

2. Vous m'avez parlé de Jean? (leur)

3. Tu vas lui offrir un cadeau, n'est-ce pas? (me)

- C. Written. Now let's make that a bit more interesting. We'll provide just the framework of a sentence: the subject and the verb. You will fill in the indirect object pronoun (an appropriate one for the sense of the sentence) and any other necessary constructions (direct object or adverbial phrase). Go back to the vocabulary in Intégration: 4-6 for ideas on vocabulary.

Model: Nous _____ envoyons_____.
Nous lui envoyons souvent des lettres.

1. La patronne _____ a posé _____.
2. Mon père va _____ montrer _____.
3. Ce monsieur _____ a dit: "_____".
4. Est-ce que tu _____ obéis?
5. Le professeur ne _____ a pas expliqué _____.
6. J'ai envie de _____ acheter _____.
7. Monsieur, voulez-vous bien _____ répéter _____?
8. Ma mère _____ a lu _____.
9. Cet avocat va _____ vendre _____.
10. Tu _____ plaisir, chéri.

- D. Cassette. Now let's do some simple substitutions with the books closed, responding to oral cues. We'll give a sentence containing an indirect pronoun, then give (in a different voice) a different indirect object pronoun. You restate the sentence, substituting the new pronoun for the one in the original sentence. (Your model is all of Exercice B.) We'll give the proper response in each case, but do not want you to repeat it. If you have trouble, it's better to repeat the whole exercise, paying careful attention each time to the proper responses as they are given.

- E. Cassette. The following is a familiar question-answer exercise. Please be sure that you use the appropriate pronouns in your response: see the model sentences.

Models:

- a. Tu veux me parler?
-- Oui, je veux te parler.
- b. Je vous ai donné une bonne note, n'est-ce pas?
-- Oui, vous m'avez donné une bonne note.

- F. Cassette. Complete the blanks with the proper form of the verb savoir or connaître, according to the meaning of the sentence.

1. Je _____ que Budapest est la capitale de la Hongrie.
2. Très bien. Est-ce que tu _____ Budapest?
3. Non, je ne l'ai jamais visitée, mais je _____ qu'elle est sur le Danube.
4. Formidable! Dis, tu _____ mon amie, Josée? Elle aussi s'intéresse à la géographie.
5. Josée Dupuis? Oui, j'ai fait sa connaissance hier, mais je ne _____ pas que tu la _____.
6. Oh! si. Nous sommes allés au même lycée ici à Paris. C'est pourquoi nous _____ si bien la ville.

- G. Cassette. Verb drill on savoir and connaître. Usual pattern.

- H. Written. Working with the pool of verbs given below, complete the blanks in the sentences by writing the imperative of a verb that "fits" (right meaning), along with an appropriate indirect object pronoun to fill out the command.

Model: _____ mon livre.

Rends-moi mon livre.

N.B. Don't use any verb more than once.

/____ rendre ____ donner ____ dire ____ expliquer ____ chanter ____ parler ____ être /

1. _____ la vérité.
2. _____ une autre chanson.
3. _____ d'amour.
4. _____ de bonnes notes, s'il vous plaît.
5. Ne _____ pas le problème.
6. _____ sa carte d'identité.

I. Written. Fill in the blank with the proper form of offrir or ouvrir, according to the meaning of the sentence.

1. Quand j'ai chaud, j' la fenêtre.
2. La porte est fermée, n'est-ce pas? Non, elle est .
3. Elle m' un cadeau magnifique chaque année.
4. Nous vous le choix entre la liberté et la mort.
5. Ces étudiants des milliers de boîtes de bière.

J. Cassette. Verb drill on ouvrir and offrir. Usual pattern.

K. Cassette. Sound/word discrimination. Write out the word(s) that you hear.

- M. Written. Composition. Write six different very short paragraphs, following closely the model below. We want you to take time to choose the people you're going to mention (friends, relatives, public figures, imaginary people), then follow the framework of the model in an imaginative way.

Model: Voilà mon professeur de français. C'est un homme très pauvre. Je vais lui donner 5.000 dollars. (et il va me donner une bonne note?)

You don't have to add a comment in parentheses, but it might be amusing.

Chapitre Neuf

- A. Cassette. Follow the established pattern in working with the recorded dialogue. Please don't break that pattern. It is important that you know, in general, what is being said, but we don't want you to focus explicitly on each separate word and grammatical construction. If you repeat, try to imitate the speakers completely; imagine the situation and, when appropriate, use gestures. Whether or not you choose to repeat (your instructor may, of course, tell you to do so), we strongly urge you simply to listen to the recording several times in addition (at various intervals).

The setting: Some French students introduce themselves to you and tell you about their plans for the future.

- Marc: I've just finished my lycée studies. I earned a Math degree. I'd like to become a doctor. Medical studies are in three cycles in France. The first cycle is entirely devoted to basic sciences and lasts two years. But before going into the second year, I must win in a very selective competition. You have to figure four years for the second cycle, and the third one may take anywhere from two to four years. The length of that last one will depend on my specialization.
- Viviane: Me, I'd like to become a technician but I don't want to get involved in a long course of study. That's why I am applying for one of the University Institutes of Technology, since the length of study at those places is only two years.
- Anna: Like Marc, I have my bac, and I'm now in my first cycle at the university, which lasts two years. At the end I'll earn a Diploma in General University Studies. As a specialization, I'm going to choose economics. My brother, on the other hand, is working for a Diploma in Scientific and Technical University Studies, because he wants to get into computer science.
- Christian: I've just been accepted in the CPGE, which is a course of study preparatory to entering the so-called "grandes écoles." For two years, they prepare us for the entrance exams held for each of those schools. The one I want to get into is the Ecole normale supérieure.

- B. Written. Adverb formation. Quick and easy exercise, but a good chance to develop your vocabulary in both adjectives and adverbs. We give the masculine singular form of an adjective: you give the feminine singular, then the adverb that is derived from that adjective.
NB: When the adverb is not formed from the feminine singular form, we mark it with an asterisk.

1. vrai	*
2. lent
3. joli	*
4. complet
5. joyeux
6. sévère

4. On a parlé un peu et elle a dit: "Tu sais, nous _____ souvent les mêmes romans."
5. Maintenant, ils _____ ensemble avant de se coucher: ils sont mariés.

1. Je lis Paris Match.
2. Elle a lu le journal.
3. Nous lisions des lettres.

F. Written. Jean-Paul is a generalist, a jack-of-all-trades, a "Renaissance" man, . . . Philippe, on the other hand, has a one-track mind, thinks small, does not try to do too many things. Give Philippe's response to Jean-Paul's statements, following the model.

Model: Jean-Paul: Je parle français. Je parle espagnol. Je parle chinois.

Philippe: Moi, je ne parle que le français.

1. Je lis des romans. Je lis des pièces. Je lis des poèmes.

2. Je sais danser. Je sais chanter. Je sais jouer du piano.

5. J'ai voyagé en Europe. J'ai voyagé en Asie. J'ai voyagé en Afrique.

G. Cassette. We'll provide a cue sentence that indicates that someone does or has only a specific subset of something. You respond, using the construction, "ne...que," as in the model.

Model: Tu fais tes devoirs ce soir, et tu ne fais rien d'autre?

—C'est ça. Je ne fais que mes devoirs ce soir.

- I. Cassette. Drill on the verb dormir. Same pattern as usual.
1. On dort bien quand il fait froid.
 2. Nous avons dormi huit heures.
 3. Ils dormaient quand je suis entré.
- J. Written. We give a sentence containing a reflexive verb in the passé composé. You rewrite (completely rewrite) the sentence twice, once in the present tense, once in the futur proche. Be sure to change any time expressions to fit the tense; add one if you wish to make a sentence more natural.

Model: Elle s'est couchée à minuit hier soir.

Elle se couche toujours à minuit.

Elle va se coucher ce soir à minuit.

1. Nous nous sommes levés de bonne heure aujourd'hui.

2. Je me suis lavé les mains.

- M. Written. Composition. The police are holding you on suspicion of burglarizing a university office. The burglary occurred early yesterday morning and someone claims to have seen you near the building at 6 a.m. Your roommate has confirmed your absence from the room when he or she woke up at 5:45. Tell the police what you did from 3 a.m. to 7 a.m. yesterday. (They want the facts; we want at least three reflexive verbs.)

That should be enough space in which to prove you are innocent. If you're going to say anymore, get a lawyer who speaks French.

Chapitre Dix

- A. Cassette. As usual, the dialogue will be read twice. Read the English version here first, just for the sense of it. Then listen to the dialogue, trying to imagine what is happening. Look at the French text (in your textbook) the first time, but then listen to it (frequently) without looking at either text. You may stop the cassette and repeat, if you wish to do so.

It is morning. Imagine four girls, Denise, Zéon, Liliane, and Marie-Claude. They share an apartment. Unfortunately, there is only one bathroom.

- Marie-Claude: Is the bathroom free?
- Zénon: No, you see perfectly well that I'm getting washed.
- Marie-Claude: Hurry up. I want to wash my hair this morning and I've got an appointment with Jean-Paul Belmondo in an hour.
- Zénon: I'm not leaving here until I've put on my makeup, and I want to add some blue to my hair, because, me, I've got a date with Alain Delon in fifty minutes.
- Denise: (comes running up) Watch out. Let me by. I'm late. My plane takes off in forty minutes.
- Marie-Claude: Your alarm clock didn't work?
- Denise: Yes, but I went back to sleep.
- Liliane: (walks in yawning) What is this "circus"? Me too, I'm in a hurry. I've got an appointment with the Prime Minister in a half-hour. Denise, where are you flying to?
- Denise: I'm leaving for... I forgot. Marie-Claude, where am I going?
- Marie-Claude: Yesterday, you told me that you were going to Morocco.
- Denise: Well, then, that's it. I'm going to Morocco. Or is it Japan?
- Liliane: Make up your mind. Have you already bought your ticket?
- Denise: No, and I haven't even packed. Hurry up everybody, I want to take a shower!
- Zénon: Calm down. Even if you took a taxi to the airport . . . you know it's already nine-thirty. In short: you've missed your plane; and in any case, despite your story, you're not going to get ahead of us.

Chapitre Onze

- A. Cassette. The following are loose translations of the dialogues in your textbook. Read them quickly before listening to the cassette, just to be sure you know what each one is about. Do not write the translations in your textbook.

At the "kiosque"

- Passerby: Give me a télécarte, please.
Owner/Manager: Do you want a small one or a large one?
Passerby: What's the difference?
Owner/Manager: On the little one you get 50 units, on the big one you get about 300.

A passerby wants to go to the suburbs. She stops at the métro ticket window.

- Passerby: A ticket for Park St.-Maur and a packet of tickets, please.
She hands the cashier a twenty-franc bill.

In front of the "Halles" shopping center

1. Recall that the interrogative pronoun/adjective, when used wth the verb être as it is here, will regularly mean "who" when the expression on the other side of the verb "to be" refers to a person or persons. In such cases, it is more common to use quel than to use qui, but you need not worry about the choice at this point in your career.

- C. Cassette. Substitution drill. Repeat each short sentence, replacing the appropriate word or words with the expression given immediately after the sentence, as in the model. Note: make all necessary additional changes. We give the most likely answers; others are possible in some cases.

- L. Written. Write a dialogue between two small children who speak French amazingly well and who have been told to use the expressions introduced in this chapter: the various negatives, the verbs tenir and venir, and the idiomatic "immediate past" tense using venir de + INFINITIVE. The children are Claude and Jean-Paul Aimé (see written exercise B), and they might discuss their cousins and other relatives as well as any other topic you feel they (you) can handle. Look at the vocabulary lists for ideas. At least ten lines.

Chapitre Douze

- A. Cassette. Quickly scan the following version, in English, of the interview that is given to you in the text. Then listen to the recording of the interview a number of times, preferably without the text in front of you. As usual, you may use the pause or stop button and repeat if you wish, but this is principally for comprehension.

Louise: What is your name, and where do you come from?
Famaria: My name is Famaria Koné. I'm from the Republic of the Ivory Coast in West Africa. I'm from Abidjan; I went to school there and my parents still live there.
Louise: What is Abidjan like?
Famaria: Abidjan is not very different from most large cities in America or in Europe. We have large buildings and an infrastructure that one usually finds in this kind of city. However, there are still some things that are unique to the Ivory Coast, stemming from the traditionalism that we try to preserve.
Louise: Could you give me an example?
Famaria: Yes. For example, the suit, that is: pants, shirt and tie and jacket, is considered the official men's apparel in Europe. That's about the same in the Ivory Coast, except that one will find as well the traditional noble costume, which consists of a pair of trousers, a shirt and a grand boubou, a chichia, (a kind of hat) and sandals (babouches).
Louise: What's the role of the family?
Famaria: Myself, I'm very attached to my family and we try to see each other often. The ties to my family are very strong. We also have very close ties with our neighbors; we help each other all the time.
Louise: What do you do for entertainment or relaxation in Abidjan?
Famaria: As for leisure activities, you can do almost anything. Abidjan is a very developed city. You find everything there.
Louise: What do you think of your country?
Famaria: The Ivory Coast is beautiful. It's an interesting country to visit. It's a country that is open to the future, but which does not want to forget its past. To know where one is going, it's necessary to know where one comes from.

Chapitre Treize

- A. Cassette. Read this English version of the dialogue in your text, then listen to the cassette recording. As usual, we do not leave time for repetition: we want you to concentrate on listening and on imagining the situation.

Madame Vincent, the assistant director of the "Euro-monde" Travel Agency, is interviewing a young man, M. Michelin, who is interested in a job with her agency.

An employee: Ms Vincent, this is Alain Michelin. He's replying to the ad in the paper.

Mme Vincent: Good. Please come in. Have a seat.

M. Michelin: Thank you.

Mme Vincent: Tell me a little about your work experience. Have you ever worked for a travel agency?

M. Michelin: Yes, I worked for two years for Euro-tour. I liked it very much. I had the chance to travel just about everywhere in Europe. Obviously, I mainly visited Western countries with our clients, but I also organized several tours to Eastern bloc nations: Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria . . .

Mme Vincent: Then why do you want to change jobs and come work for us?

M. Michelin: My agency only takes groups to places in Europe. But I'd like to see other things: Australia, the United States, South America, . . .

Mme Vincent: (cutting him short) Thank you, Mr. Michelin. We will inform you of our decision within two weeks. Good luck.

M. Michelin: Goodbye Ms Vincent. I hope to be working for you soon.

- B. Written. Answer the following questions, using the future tense as in the model. Add an appropriate adverb or adverbial phrase, at least in a few of the sentences. (Some of the questions will also be in the future tense.)

Non, mais _____.

5. Pouvez-vous nous aider maintenant?

6. Est-ce qu'il est allé en France l'année passée?

Non, mais _____.

- C. Cassette. Drill on verb forms in the future tense. Same format as for irregular verbs. Repeat the model sentence, then supply the correct response to each cue (we give a new subject, you insert that and make all necessary changes).

Two hints on pronunciation: for -ir verbs, like finir, be sure to pronounce the i before the r clearly: American students have a tendency to "reduce" that vowel; on the other hand, be careful to pronounce the e in ferai, fera, etc. as a "schwa" (reduced vowel), not as an /e/ or /ɛ/.

- D. Written. We are going to supply an answer. Your task is to compose a question that could have elicited that answer, with a focus on the underlined portion. Your questions should all be "info" questions, not "yes/no" questions, and all should involve an interrogative adverb. If we give an expression in parentheses, use it to "flesh out" your question.

Model: We give: Je les ferai à six heures. (devoirs)

You write: Quand ferez-vous vos devoirs?

1. _____ ?
– Il habite à Alger. (Meursault)
2. _____ ?
– Elle va beaucoup mieux, merci. (fille)

6. _____ ?
– Je l'ai trouvé au marché aux puces. (chapeau + ADJ)

- E. Cassette. Verb drill on servir. Usual pattern.

K. Written. You have arrived late for class. It's late in the semester and your instructor insists that you give your excuse in French. Do so, being sure to be imaginative and to use a few difficult constructions so as to impress your instructor. You should definitely consider using at least one sentence with devoir. No fewer than eight lines, no more than twelve.

Chapitre Quatorze

- A. Cassette. You probably do not need this English version of the "dialogue" by this time in your study of French, but we won't break with the tradition we've established. Just read this version quickly, then listen to the recording of the postcard message, a number of times.

(at the top of the card):

Mr. D: How are things? All is well here. Would you do me a favor and read this note to the students in the Intensive French course? Thanks a lot.

(next is the printed text of the postcard, describing the photo):

N4755 - Biarritz - 64

The fishing port, Sainte-Eugénie Church and the famous restaurant, "Albert"

(finally, the short note for the students):

I'm writing with the hope that this note will help encourage you. I was doing the exact same thing as you last year, and now, here I am in France. Thanks to the effectiveness of the program that you are taking, I can say that I'm one of the people in our group (there are 45 of us) who speaks French with the least difficulty. I'm very happy in France. Everywhere you look there's another photo to take. There are lots of people anxious to welcome foreigners. I hope you are doing well. Keep up the good work! . . . Yes, it's worth all the effort!

- B. Written. Rewrite these short sentences, replacing the underlined expression by y. Remember that y, like the direct and indirect object pronouns, precedes the verb of which it is the complement.

1. Je vais à Paris.

_____.

2. Elle pense à cette question.

_____.

3. Il est arrivé à Strasbourg.

_____.

4. Il met son revolver sur la table.

_____.

- C. Written. Answer the following questions, replacing the underlined expression by y, and supplying the rest of the answer yourself.

J'y vais parce que je veux apprendre le français.

1. Quand penses-tu à tes examens?

_____.

2. Combien de fois sont-ils allés à Paris?

_____.

3. Pendant combien de temps est-il resté au Canada?

_____.

4. Pourquoi as-tu mis ton livre sur le lit?

_____.

5. Quand est-ce que Marie est entrée dans la cuisine?

Model: (You hear): Tu vas à Paris?

(You respond): Oui, j'y vais.

- E. Written. Fill in the blank with the form of suivre that the context requires. Remember, as always, that the futur proche is normally a correct form to use to indicate future time.

(Michèle is telling a friend about the courses she and her brothers take..)

Le semestre passé, j' _____ un cours de chimie. C'était très intéressant, mais très difficile. Mes frères ont décidé de faire autre chose; ils _____ un cours de biologie. Ils ont dit que le prof était bien sympa, mais ils n'ont rien appris! Ce semestre je ne _____ que trois cours. À huit heures du matin je vais à la piscine pour un cours de natation. Mes deux frères _____ le même cours. Tout de suite après je dois me sécher les cheveux et courir au cours de maths. L'après-midi, j'ai un cours de philosophie. Le semestre prochain, je _____ quatre cours: maths, philosophie, littérature anglaise, et sociologie.

- F. Cassette. Drill on the verb suivre.

G. Written. Rewrite each sentence, replacing the underlined words by en. Remember that en, like y, and the direct and indirect object pronouns, precedes the verb of which it is the complement.

1. J'ai du pain.

2. Nous n'avons pas d'amis.

3. Il va acheter du lait.

4. Il a vu des avions.

5. Il n'a pas trouvé de diamants.

H. Written. Answer the following questions, replacing the underlined expression by en, and supplying the remainder of the response yourself.

Model: Où a-t-elle trouvé de l'argent ?

Elle en a trouvé dans sa poche.

1. Pourquoi as-tu acheté des oranges?

2. Quand vas-tu chercher des amis?

3. Où trouve-t-on des cochons?

4. Combien de frères avez-vous?

5. Pourquoi posez-vous des questions?

I. Cassette. Drill on subjunctive forms, mainly of irregular verbs. We'll give a set of three models (listed below), which you are to repeat. Then we'll give new, short completions for each sentence, with the verb in the infinitive. Replace the underlined part of the model with the correct subjunctive form of the expression given as a cue.

1. Je veux qu'elle fasse le dîner.

2. Il faut que tu partes tout de suite.

3. Il vaut mieux que vous m'écoutiez.

J. Written. Answer the following questions, using your own words. Use the subjunctive if it is required.

- L. Written. You have expanded your horizons in French. To prove it, to yourself and to your instructor, return to one of the compositions you wrote earlier in the course (usually the final exercise in your workbook), read it quickly, then put it aside and rewrite it completely, trying to make it more interesting by using a greater variety of words and constructions. Make additional comments that involve talking about the past or the future, or that involve your stating your opinion about some aspect of what you said earlier.

Chapitre Quinze

- A. Cassette. Dialogue. We provide below an English version of the dialogue in the Textbook. Please do not attempt to match words and lines: as always, our purpose is to give you a complete idea of what the dialogue is about, but not to provide a word-for-word translation. After you have read the version below, listen to the recording several times. If you wish to repeat, you may do so, but we do not leave pauses for repetition.

Charles Brown is majoring in French. He's happy with his major: he likes his courses, he loves the French language and its literature, and he has had the chance to study in France for one year. However, he's a bit anxious as a result of questions that his friends and his parents keep asking. He decides to go see his French professor and advisor. He knocks on the door . . .

Professor: Come in. Oh, hello Charles, how are you?

Charles: Fine, thanks. Do you have a minute?

Professor: Sure. What's on your mind?

Charles: Well, it's about French, but not about my courses. My friends and my family keep asking me: "What good is French going to do you?" Since I can't seem to find an answer myself, I thought I'd ask you for a good answer.

Professor: Hmm. Right....That's a good question. (Silence.) By learning a foreign language, you...mature...(Silence.) you become more cultured..you begin to understand the world a little better. . .

The phone rings. Relieved, the professor, after excusing himself, replies.

Professor: Hello? Babette? It's a pleasure to hear from you. You just got a job with SORTEC? Well, congratulations. It's an excellent ad agency. What's that? Because you know how to speak French they already gave you a raise and advancement? That's great; I'm really happy for you. Listen, you've called at just the right moment. I have a student in the office who is worried and would like to know if there are some good reasons to study French. Could you talk to him about your job? That's very good of you, thanks. . . Charles, here's a good answer.

And the professor passes the phone to Charles.

N. Written. Composition.

Write a single, cohesive paragraph, describing or commenting on something that you started doing some time ago and still do today (or an attitude or opinion that you had in the past and have not lost or changed). You must start with (or end with) a sentence that contains the "present idiomatic" construction, as in the model (underlined). Aside from that restriction, you are free to discuss past situations or current ones, or future ones.

Model: J'adore l'université depuis six mois. C'est vrai que quand je suis venue ici il y a deux ans, je n'étais pas contente. La première année était pénible: je ne connaissais personne, et je détestais mes cours et mes profs. Mais le semestre passé, j'ai commencé à étudier le français. Alors tout a changé. J'ai des amis maintenant. Je participe au "cercle français". L'été prochain, je vais aller en France. Que je suis heureuse!

(Suggestions, but you are not limited to these! --You love pizza now, but you used to like only hamburgers; you swim every day; you read the newspaper; you study on weekends instead of going out. NB: these are ideas for topics. DO NOT try to translate them: choose words you know.)

Chapitre Seize

- A. Cassette. Read the following English version of the dialogues that are in your text, then listen to the taped version a number of times. As usual, you may—if you wish—stop the tape at various intervals and repeat sections of the dialogue, but we are mainly interested in your developing listening comprehension: listen without looking at either version of the text. We also recommend that you try repeating as you listen to the tape (simultaneously).

Dialogue 1.

A crowd of people gather around the paintings of the artist Toto, who is the star today. But where is the artist? Did he perhaps skip out to go to the Faucette movie house?

A man who has been sipping champagne for more than an hour and a rather large lady who's filling herself with snacks find themselves together in front of a canvas entitled: "Impression-sunset."

Mme de Bouffix: Oh, my dear sir, the power that this painting has on my soul cannot be expressed! My heart is touched and I laugh and I cry, so strongly does this painting express your genius. I congratulate you on its success. As I look into your eyes, I see there the same fire that burns in the colors of your canvases. Please permit a humble admirer who thought that modern art had nothing further to reveal to shake your hand with warmth and to express to you all of her admiration.

M. de Pinard: Dear lady, you flatter me and honor me, but . . . I am not the artist. I must unfortunately undeceive you. I've come here only to drink some champagne . . . free.

Mme de Bouffis: Sir, you shock me and your attitude is inexcusable--trying to make me believe you were the artist. I only converse with cultured people, not with the common herd. But where is Toto, the artist?

Dialogue 2.

Cultural activities on the weekend. A discussion among friends.

Valérie: Last night, I went to a private showing by a painter. FAN--TAS--TIQUE! The artist totally knows how to express an astonishing melancholy that was at times even esoteric! I'm still all goose bumps, so thoroughly was I impressed by those canvases.

Gérard: As for me, on the other hand, I went to the theater: a play by Pinget: I can describe the experience in one word - SUBLIME!!!!

Constance: Well, modern art is not bad, but I really prefer classical. Is there anything comparable to a symphony of Beethoven, a ballet by the great Balanchine, a Verdi opera? Don't you agree, Albert?

Albert: Um. Errr. Yes, you're right, all of you.

Gérard: And what cultural activity do you participate in passionately each weekend?

Valérie, Constance and Gérard are silent and watch Albert, waiting anxiously for an answer.

Albert: Er... Uh... (He clears his throat.) As for me, I spend my weekends, er, watching stupid shows on TV.

B. Written. Fill in the blanks in the following sentences with the correct form of the interrogative pronoun. Pay attention to context to see if it concerns a person or a thing. (See the Reference Grammar, 1.6.1)

1. _____ est assis sur le trône? Je suis sur que ce n'est pas le roi.
2. _____ est dans votre valise, monsieur?
3. Chez _____ allons-nous dîner ce soir?

5. À _____ est-ce que vous avez révélé mon secret?
6. _____ est-ce que vous avez offert à Marie pour son anniversaire?

C. Cassette. These are the Questions et réponses-A et -B exercises from your text, really dialogues. Please repeat with your text closed.

D. Written. Fill in the blanks in the following sentences with the correct form of the interrogative adjective. Remember that the interrogative adjective can function either as a determiner (directly in front of the noun it modifies) or as a predicate adjective (on the other side of the verb être) and that it agrees in gender and number with the noun that it modifies. DO NOT USE the interrogative pronoun in this exercise, even when it might be acceptable.

1. --Si on allait au cinéma? -Je veux bien. _____ film veux-tu voir?
2. -- _____ animaux sont les plus féroces? -Les hommes.
3. _____ est votre profession?
4. --À _____ étage habitent-ils? -Au cinquième, la porte à droite.
5. _____ sont ces femmes?

2. _____ -vous que le prof travaille autant que nous?
3. Autrefois, elle _____ à ce système politique.
4. Monique! Ne fais pas cela! On _____ que tu es folle!
5. Est-ce que les étudiants _____ vraiment que nous n'allons pas avoir de cours demain?

F. Cassette. Drill on the verb croire. Usual pattern.

- G. Written. Write a question that would naturally elicit the response given, using any words given in parentheses and using an interrogative pronoun (QUI-type) or an interrogative adjective. The bold segment indicates what the question asked about. There is often more than one possibility, but take the time to try to produce the most appropriate question. THINK about what each response means, but do not translate.

Model: (devant la bibliothèque)

Qui attendiez-vous devant la bibliothèque? (or use tu)

J'attendais Jean-Philippe.

1. (notre professeur / à sa femme)

Il lui a offert un collier d'émeraudes.

2. (l'agent de police)

Cette réponse l'a surpris.

- 3.

Il n'y a rien sur la table.

- 4.

Nous parlons du film que nous avons vu hier soir.

5. (aller au grand bal avec lui)

Il va inviter Marie-Antoinette.

6. (voiture)

Je préfère la voiture de sport italienne.

- H. Written. This is basically a study sheet for subjunctive verb forms. All of the blanks require a subjunctive form because that verb is in a subordinate clause introduced by one of the conjunctions that always take the subjunctive. Give the proper form of the appropriate verb from the pool we have provided. Do not use any verb more than once.

/ _ aller _ dire _ être _ avoir _ comprendre _ finir /

1. Je t'ai dit cela afin que tu _____ mes réactions.
2. Il faut conduire plus vite afin que nous _____ à l'heure.

3. Prof: --Très bien. M. le sergent, demandez à cet étudiant _____ partir... gentiment, bien entendu.
4. Jean: --Oh! je vous demande pardon, madame. Mais je vous assure que j'ai essayé _____ faire cet exercice chez moi et c'était impossible.
5. Prof: --Très bien, je vous permets _____ rester dans la salle, mais si vous continuez _____ m'interrompre, c'est fini.

J. Cassette. Word and sound discrimination. Write the word that you hear.

5. _____ ?
6. _____
7. _____

9. _____ Attila,
10. _____

- L. Cassette. Write a brief and concise plot summary of a film you have seen recently. We'd prefer that it be a French film, but realize that it may not be a reasonable request. Remember, as always, to keep it simple. On the other hand, you should not now be limiting yourself to the verbs être, avoir and aller: use the vocabulary lists in the intégration units to get ideas. (Procedure: choose the film, sketch an outline of the plot, scan the word lists, write a little, put it aside, think some more about a simple statement of the facts, return to writing. Don't try to do it all in one sitting.)
Use only the space provided. No more. Start with: Dans (name of film) il s'agit de...

Use only the space provided. No more. Start with: Dans (name of film) il s'agit de....

Chapitre Dix-Sept

- A. Cassette. Read the following English version of the dialogue in the text first, then listen, following the usual pattern.

Narrator: Nathalie and Marie-France are strolling along the "quais" of the Seine River in Paris. Nathalie feels like doing something, but not Marie-France.

Nathalie: Don't you feel like going to the theatre?

Marie-France: What would you like to see?

Nathalie: A tragedy by Racine, Phèdre. It's gotten good write-ups on the staging and on the acting.

Marie-France: I don't like tragedies. They're always so pessimistic. How about going to eat at the Tour d'argent?

Nathalie:- You're crazy! It's too expensive and besides it's not cultural. On the other hand, going to see a tragedy is a significant cultural experience.

Marie-France: Maybe for you, but for me it's too boring. I'd rather eat in a good restaurant. Let's have something; I'm very hungry.

Nathalie: Oh, you... You're always hungry. Well, okay, we have the time.

Narrator: They enter a restaurant and Marie-France chooses a table in the back. They come out an hour later.

Nathalie: Oh, damn! Look at the time! We're going to be late for the play. Taxi! Taxi!

Marie-France: (with a sly smile) -It's really a shame.

- B. Cassette. Verb review drill. There will be one of these in every chapter from now on. We'll follow the usual verb drill pattern, except that each new set (four altogether) will involve a different verb--possibly in a different tense, although we'll emphasize the present tense forms. In this review, we'll work with avoir, faire, aller, and dire.

- C. Written. What we give in quotes is what someone said at some moment in the past. Complete the sentence (started for you in parentheses) that reports that utterance, putting the verb in the appropriate tense: l'imparfait if the original was in le présent; le conditionnel simple if the original was in le futur. Pay attention to who is reporting the statement, so as to keep your pronoun use natural and correct.

Model: a. "Je suis malade." (Vous avez dit que...)

Vous avez dit que vous étiez malade.

b. "Je partirai demain." (Marie a dit que...)

Marie a dit qu'elle partirait demain/aujourd'hui.

3. "Nous ferons ces exercices la semaine prochaine." (Elle a dit que...)

4. "Vous aurez le temps d'écrire cet examen avec soin." (Vous avez dit que...)

5. "Cela m'est égal." (Tu as dit que...)

6. "Tu seras très contente." (Tu m'as dit que...)

7. "Marie viendra à la fête." (Paul nous a assuré que...)

8. "Si tu m'aides, je te donnerai 5.000 francs." (Tu m'as dit que...)

- D. Cassette. Becoming familiar with the various uses of TOUT. Answer the following questions, always using a form of TOUT in your response. Sometimes it will be used in the question, sometimes not. There will often be more than one way to insert a use of TOUT, but we'll give only one "correct" response on the tape. As usual, give your response, then listen to (but do not repeat) the response we suggest.

Model: a. Avez-vous tout préparé?

Oui, j'ai tout préparé.

b. Est-ce que les étudiants sont venus?

Oui, ils sont tous venus.

E. Written. Fill in the proper form of TOUT, pronoun, adjective or adverb, in the following sentences.

6. Ces rats ont mangé _____ le pain qui était sur la table!
7. Nous sommes _____ trop paresseux.
8. _____ est pour le mieux dans le meilleur des mondes.

F. Written. Complete the following sentences using the verbs mourir, boire, or naître. Any of them may be used more than once. Pay careful attention to the context in order to give the right verb form.

1. a. Victor Hugo _____ en 1802, à Besançon.
b. Il _____ en 1885.
2. a. Hier soir, je _____ de soif.
b. Donc, j' _____ cinq bouteilles de bière.
c. Ce matin, mon médecin m'a dit que je _____ dans quelques mois si je continuais à _____ comme ça.

4. / venu - voulu - vu / _____

I. Cassette. Aural comprehension. Listen to the mini-dialogues. In each case, indicate if the response is appropriate and logical by writing oui if it is, non if it isn't.

7. Le patron: _____!
8. _____
9. _____
10. L'employé: _____.

K. Written. Write a short composition in response to the question we will pose, using principally the conditional tense (it will be the most natural tense to use--for most sentences--if you follow the instructions).

Question: Que feriez-vous si vous étiez obligé de passer six mois dans une maison à la campagne sans parler à personne? (On apporterait des provisions tous les lundis et vous auriez tous les appareils: TV, radio, réfrigérateur, etc.)

Si on m'obligeait de passer six mois tout(e) seul(e) dans cette maison, je...

Chapitre Dix-Huit

- A. Cassette. You're going to hear two additional excerpts from the Paris Pas Cher guidebook that provided the lecture passages of Chapitre Dix in the textbook.

The first one is about a stationery store, something like a university bookstore, and there are just a few new words. Some are cognates. You'll hear "papeterie" which means 'stationery store' and you'll hear "idem," the Latin word, which is used fairly often in French, meaning 'the same' or--colloquially--'ditto'.

The second one is worth trying to understand if you like the most recent popular music and have some cash when you go to Paris. It's about a DJ who "caters" his music to parties in Paris. You'll note they use the same word for "disc-jockey." Catch also that he provides special lighting effects (éclairages spéciaux) and even "la fumée (inodore et sans danger)." They tell you when you can reach him by phone, even on Sundays.

- B. Cassette. Just repeat the sentences given in this exercise. All include the use of either jouer à or jouer de or both.

- C. Written. Rewrite completely each of the following sentences, replacing the active on-construction with a passive construction. In general, the tense of the verb that goes with on will be the tense of the auxiliary in the passive construction.

Model: On plantera ces arbres demain.

Ces arbres seront plantés demain.

1. On fabrique ces téléviseurs à l'étranger.

2. On a distribué ces pamphlets partout.

3. On construira un pont à cet endroit.

4. On applaudirait une telle décision.

5. Il faut qu'on répète cette phrase plusieurs fois.

(It is the italicized clause that should be made passive.)

D. Written. As in C, we want you to rewrite, using a passive construction, but you'll notice that all the cue-sentences have their verbs in the passé simple. The intention is to give you some more practice recognizing the past definite forms and also to help you become familiar with one of the more common passive types: the past definite of the verb être + past participle. Since the only objects in our cue sentences will be in the 3rd person, all you'll have to produce (since the direct objects become the grammatical subjects of the passive sentences) are fut (3rd singular) and furent (3rd plural).

Model: Napoléon conquit l'Allemagne.

L'Allemagne fut conquise par Napoléon.

1. Hannibal traversa les Alpes.

2. Les explorateurs français ouvrirent ce passage.

3. Edison inventa la lampe électrique.

4. Gorbachev fit ce premier pas.

E. Cassette. Verb drill. Since plaire has only one very common construction type, we'll just include it with the three verbs we want to review in this chapter: être, lire, and partir.

F. Written. Controlled review of the passé composé. In set (1), you have only "être" verbs; in set (2), "avoir" verbs; in set (3), reflexive verbs. Then in the longer set, (4), we mix them. Write in the correct form of the verb given in parentheses, in the passé composé.

1. a. (aller) Nous _____ au théâtre hier soir.
b. (monter) Elle _____ au cinquième étage.
c. (rester) Ils _____ chez lui toute la matinée.
2. a. (frapper) J' _____ mon petit frère.
b. (boire) Ils _____ tout le vin.
c. (marcher) Elle _____ pendant des heures.
3. a. (se laver) Elle _____ les mains.
b. (se lever) Je _____ à six heures ce matin.
c. (se voir) Nous _____ hier au concert.

4. a. (voyager) Nous _____ en Espagne l'été dernier.
 b. (passer) Moi, j' _____ tout l'été à New York.
 c. (venir) Marie _____ me voir ce matin.
 d. (s'amuser) On _____ à regarder de vieux films en noir et blanc.
 e. (pleuvoir) Est-ce qu'il _____ hier à Bordeaux?
 f. (mourir) Hitler _____ dans un incendie. Enfin, c'est ce qu'on dit.
 g. (mettre) Tu _____ trop de livres sur cette étagère.
 h. (se rencontrer) Ils _____ dans le parc.

G. Written. Fill in the blanks with the proper form of the appropriate verb from the "pool," including--as necessary--a preposition/particle to connect it to the complementary infinitive. See the Reference Grammar, 12.1, and/or use your dictionary to check whether or not the verb takes a particle or preposition with a complementary infinitive. DO NOT USE ANY VERB MORE THAN ONCE, that is, from each group of five.

/ ____ ne pas réussir ____ offrir ____ aller ____ espérer ____ refuser ____ continuer /

1. Le jeune homme _____ perdre tout son argent.
2. Les joueurs _____ jouer malgré tout ce qu'ils perdent.
3. Ils _____ regagner tout "la prochaine fois".
4. Leurs amis _____ les encourager de cesser de jouer.
5. En fin de compte, ils _____ écouter les conseils de leurs amis.

/ ____ vouloir ____ dire ____ apprendre ____ décider ____ inviter ____ aller ____ essayer /

6. Marie parlait avec son agent de voyage hier. Enfin, elle _____ aller à Paris pendant les vacances de Pâques.
7. Elle _____ voir le spectacle qu'on _____ présenter sur le parvis de la Cathédrale de Notre-Dame.
8. On lui _____ ne pas manquer cette occasion. C'est La Passion d'Arnoul Gréban et on ne la présente que rarement.

H. Cassette. Write oui if the response in the mini-dialogue is logical and appropriate; write non if it is not.

1. _____ 2. _____ 3. _____ 4. _____

I. Cassette. Word and sound discrimination. Write the word that you hear.

Chapitre Dix-Neuf

- A. Cassette. The following "translation" (it is, as usual, not a close translation, but rather an English equivalent) of the dialogue on the tape/cassette program for this chapter is the only text you'll have for this section. What is on the cassette is a dialogue, not a recording of the set of short letters that you have in the text.

Narrator: Professor Grosdidier invites his students to join him for some refreshment at the "Académie", but they don't understand right away.

Professor: Anybody want to go to the 'Académie' with me?

Sylvie: No, thanks, I'd rather stay here.

Professor: But, . . . you get a really wide choice there.

Sylvie: Maybe so, but in my opinion we already have enough to do without going to any academy.

Yves: Oh, come on, Sylvie. If the prof wants to show us something new we ought to go along. Where is this academy, Professor Grosdidier?

Professor: Not far. You can get there on foot: go up the Boul' Mich' to the Boulevard Port-Royal, turn to the left and it's on your left.

Yves: Hmm. I don't follow you. I don't know of any academy near there.

Professor: Of course not. I'm not talking about a school. I'm talking about the "Académie de la Bière."

Jean-Luc: OK, I know what you're talking about. Let's go, especially if the prof's paying.

Yves: Sure, I know what the 'Académie' is. I wouldn't mind having a sérieux of Kronenbourg.

Professor: Everyone's coming then? Finish up these exercises and we'll take off.

Sylvie: I don't like beer. I'm staying here.

Chapitre Vingt

- A. Cassette. As always, we ask you to read this English version of the dialogue in your textbook rapidly, just to be sure you know what it is about. Then listen to the recorded version frequently, at various times, preferably without looking at either text.

It's a beautiful sunny day, not a cloud in the sky. A family has just settled down on the beach. The children go off to play in the sand.

Mother: (to the father) There you are, my pet, you can stretch out in the lawn chair under the umbrella. I'll lie down here alongside you on the sand in the sun.

She checks on the children and suddenly cries out:

Monique, be careful, don't get too close to the water! Zoé, don't go over by that lady, stay here! Yves, don't touch the doggie!

Father: Damn! I left my newspaper and my sunglasses in the car.

Mother: Don't worry about it, sweetheart, I'll go get them, stay right there.

She goes off and returns a few minutes later.

There you are, honey.

Zoé begins to cry. The mother, angered, says:

Yves, give Zoé her toys back!

Yves is crying. The mother cries out:

Zoé, stop right now hitting your brother with your shovel. If you kids don't stop fighting, your father's going to get up and . . .

Father: Oh, let them play, they have to let off steam once in a while.

. . . a little later

Mother: Come here, children, there's a cool breeze. I want you to slip on your T-shirts or you're going to catch cold.

Children: But, ma, it's too hot out.

Mother: Do as I say, don't complain.

Father: If only I could have a little peace!

As usual, we'll give correct answers (there may be more than one possible in some cases--we'll just give one). Do not try to repeat the correct answers: rather, if you find you made a number of errors, repeat the entire exercise.

1. Yes, there is a de here, and we told you that de + relative prounoun becomes dont. However, this de is part of the three-word preposition en face de and therefore does not take on that special form. J. Written. Composition, to be written on a separate piece of lined paper, size 8 1/2 X 11. Leave one inch margins (at least) left and right, and double-space. Use a pen (blue or black, not red or green). This composition will be corrected, then revised before a grade is given, but the quality of the first draft will affect your grade, so do your best from the start.

Write a well-organized composition of one to one and a half pages on any topic you choose. Keep within the vocabulary and constructions you know! (Use the Intégration lists first, then the text glossary: use a dictionary only if it is absolutely necessary for one or two key words.)

Chapitre Vingt et Un

- A. Cassette. Listen to the dialogue that is on the cassette. We do not give you the text in written form at all, but will tell you that it's a conversation that takes place in a student snack-bar area at a French university, between a young man and a girl that he recognizes as a former acquaintance from his lycée. Some possibly unfamiliar words you will hear are: la berlue (avoir la berlue means "to be imagining things"); déménagé (déménager means "to move"); malin ("sly, mischievous"); taquiner ("to tease").
- B. Written. Verb distinctions (meaning). From each pair of verbs in parentheses, select the one which properly completes the sentence and fill in the blank with the appropriate form of that verb.

1. (partir / quitter) Nous devrions _____ la stade avant la fin du match.

- C. Written. Make one sentence out of each pair of sentences, joining them with après, avant, or en. Remember that you must change the verb form of the clause that you introduce with one of those connector expressions. We indicate which connector to use for the first three; after that you must choose one that is appropriate (and that will depend on which sentence you choose as the main clause).

You respond, saying to the person, "Oh, you did X," substituting the proper equivalent expression for the one you hear.

Model: (You hear) J'ai étudié hier soir de huit heures jusqu'à minuit.

(You respond) Ah! tu as étudié toute la soirée!

NB: The answers we will provide are somewhat exaggerated. The important thing to listen for is the expression, toute la soirée, etc.

E. Written. Complete the blanks in the following sentences with an "indefinite" demonstrative adjective (ce, cet, cette, ces), or an indefinite pronoun (ceci, cela, ça, ce), or an indefinite quantifier (quelques, plusieurs, chaque). Prove to us that we're right in saying that by going back to the lecture in Intégration: 4-6 and rereading (easily and quickly now) the four poems by Jacques Prévert. Then select one of them as the point of departure for a composition: your reaction to the poem. Don't try to write a critique of the poem; just tell us what it makes you think of. Use 8 1/2 X 11 lined paper and double-space, writing on one side only: that should be long enough unless your handwriting is very large.
