about it) that a different set of muscles are used in the sprints and that he can turn it on at the end of a distance race.

After cross-country and the indoor season, the goal will be the 4-minute mile in the outdoor season.

Ellison’s Relaxation

The ascendency of Ellison to consistency as a sophomore was one of the bright surprises of last year’s athletic season at K.U. He was regarded as a good prospect when he came out of Wyandotte High school in Kansas City, but in less than a season he exceeded Coach Dick Harp’s expectations.

Ellison moved into the Jayhawker starting unit last year in the fourth game and was not dislodged thereafter. What was the learning task for Ellison? Relaxation. He cites this as the key to his improvement.

The pressure will be particularly strong on Ellison and his backcourt mate Jerry Gardner this season, what with K.U.’s front line devoid of all but the barest of experience after graduation and other dropouts took Bill Bridges, Wayne High topis and All Cornell from the ranks.

But Ellison says he learned last year that you have to be relaxed to play well. It’s a good bet that he will work on that feature again this season.

Freshmen Dump ‘Cats

The Kansas freshman team unveiled a potential break-away back in the October game against Kansas State, with K.U. winning 21-6. Gayle Sayers, from Omaha, Neb, scored all three touchdowns for the fresh squad which coach Jack Mitchell has called the finest he has ever collected.

Notes on the Teams

As this was written the first of November the Jayhawk football warriors seemed to have found themselves both offensively and defensively. Failure to handle passes against Colorado and to kick all the points after touchdown let the important game at Boulder out of the bag after it seemed to be cinched 19 to 0 with only 14 minutes to go. After that, strong Iowa State was defeated decisively, Oklahoma went down definitely and Oklahoma State was swamped, John Hall, quarterback, donned contact lenses and began passing like a sharpshooter. A new pass defense system was tried and it worked. And Kansas seemed to be the team hoped for in August. Still ahead were strong California and Missouri.

The Kansas varsity basketball team was to get its first test against a highly touted freshman team at the homecoming varsity-freshman game Nov. 10. After that a feature of the December schedule will be a western trip to play U.C.L.A. and Oregon State. Regardless of the outcome of those early games it is hoped the court squad will be stronger after Christmas when Jay Roberts and Lee Flachsbart come off the football squad to aid the court team. Both are tall and are able basketeers.

Watch for the swimming team to get stronger. The number of meets has been reduced this year to provide more practice time. New talent is expected to add post-making power.

The Kansas cross-country team is much stronger again this year. The conference championship meet was held in Lawrence Nov. 11. Last year Oklahoma State took the title after Kansas held it 12 years. The runners under Coach Bill Easton hoped to regain it this year.
