Hymn - - - - - - Seymour

Softly now the light of day
Fades upon my sight away;
Free from care, from labor free,
Lord, I would commune with Thee.

Thou, whose all-pervading eye
Naught escapes, without, within,
Pardon each infirmity,
Open fault and secret sin.

Soon, for me, the light of day
Shall forever pass away:
Then, from sin and sorrow free,
Take me, Lord, to dwell with Thee.

Thou who, sinless, yet hast known
All of man’s infirmity;
Then, from Thine eternal throne,
Jesus, look with pitying eye. Amen.

Hymn - - - - - - - - Duke Street

O God, beneath Thy guiding hand
Our exiled fathers cross'd the sea;
And when they trod the wintry strands,
With pray'r and psalm they worshipp'd Thee.

Thou heard'st, well pleased, the song, the prayer,
Thy blessing came; and still its power
Shall onward, through all ages bear
The memory of that holy hour.

Laws, freedom, truth, and faith in God
Came with those exiles o'er the waves;
And where their pilgrim feet have trod,
The God they trusted guards their graves.

And here Thy name, O God of love,
Their children's children shall adore,
Till these eternal hills remove,
And spring adorns the earth no more. Amen.

Dedication of Watkins Memorial Hospital

University of Kansas
Sunday, June 5, 1932
3:00 p.m.
IN PRESENTING the Watkins Memorial Hospital to the University of Kansas, I had in mind, first, a memorial to Mr. Jabez B. Watkins, who, in a large measure, made this project possible and, second, a desire to contribute to your welfare. I feel that the future success and happiness of yourselves, as well as the future prosperity of the state, depends to a considerable extent on the proper care of your health. I hope you will appreciate this gift in the spirit in which it is given, that you will show that appreciation by your care of the facilities placed at your disposal, and a proper respect for the instructions and regulations given by the staff in charge. If this is done, the knowledge of the service given by this hospital throughout future years will be my greatest happiness.

The WATKINS MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

The building which is being dedicated today represents one of the most valuable private gifts yet made to the University of Kansas, and is a monument to the generosity of a far-sighted benefactor of Lawrence and the university community. A thing of beauty, Watkins Memorial Hospital is no less distinguished for its well-rounded completeness—its fitness to serve the purpose for which it has been built. No student hospital in the country is better equipped; only a few approximate this hospital as a center designed for the medical care of students.

Watkins Memorial Hospital has a normal capacity of forty-six beds, besides having reserve wards for use if they should ever be needed. The equipment includes an up-to-date operating unit with adjacent room for sterilizing dressings and water and producing distilled water, a complete x-ray and fluoroscopic equipment for diagnostic work, an electro-cardiograph, an ultra violet lamp, a basal metabolism machine, and an automatically controlled oxygen machine. Every room is beautifully furnished; and nothing has been neglected which would insure, not only the active treatment of the sick, but as pleasant a stay for them as is humanly possible.

Mr. Jabez B. Watkins, in whose honor the building is named, was for many years one of the most prominent men in the state of Kansas. From his arrival in Lawrence in 1873 to his death in 1919, he made the force of his influence felt both as a business man and as a strong and high-minded citizen. It is altogether fitting that his memory should be enshrined, as it were, in the beautiful building so generously donated by his widow.

CRIMSON AND THE BLUE

Far above the golden valley
Glorious to view,
Stands our noble Alma Mater
Towering toward the blue.

CHORUS
Lift the chorus ever onward,
Crimson and the blue,
Hail to thee, our Alma Mater
Hail to K.S.U.

Far above the distant humming
Of the busy town,
Reared against the dome of heaven,
Looks she proudly down.

Greet we then our foster mother,
Noble friend so true,
We will ever sing her praises,
Dear old K.S.U.

I'M A JAYHAWK
By GEORGE H. BOWLES, '08-'11

Talk about the Sooners
The Aggies and the Braves,
Talk about the Tiger and his tail—
Talk about the Huskers,
Those old Cornhuskin' boys,
But I'm a bird to make 'em weep and wail.

'Cause I'm a Jay, Jay, Jay, Jay, Jayhawk,
Up at Lawrence on the Kaw—
'Cause I'm a Jay, Jay, Jay, Jay, Jayhawk,
With a sis-boom hip hoorah.
Got a bill that's long enough
To twist the Tiger's tail,
Husk some corn and listen
To the Cornhusker's wail—
'Cause I'm a Jay, Jay, Jay, Jay, Jayhawk,
Riding on a Kansas gale.

The Sixtieth Commencement

A BRIEF REVIEW

SIXTY-SIX YEARS of service to the State of Kansas are rounded out with the Sixtieth Annual Commencement of the University of Kansas, observed today.

Year by year the institution has grown until today a great circle of buildings looks down on the scene of the Commencement exercises. Today, a thousand graduates receive their degrees, and next September probably two thousand Freshmen will be initiated into life at the University of Kansas. In the same stadium seats where nearly a half-score of recent graduating classes have received their diplomas, the Freshmen gather under autumn stars to hear anew the story of the founding of this University, and to pledge fidelity to its ideals. Each year they watch the runner with symbolic torch bring a flame from the hearth on the site of old North College to kindle a new fire before the great seal of the University.

In these 60 commencements, more than 17,500 degrees have been awarded to nearly 16,000 different persons. More than 54,000 different persons have entered the doors of the University, and 38,000 more have received instruction through correspondence and extension classes.

Physically, the University has grown from one small building on a ten-acre tract to its present proportions of thirty major buildings on the 160-acre tract at Lawrence and the two tracts aggregating 23 acres at Kansas City. The student group is one hundred times as great as it was when the preparatory department was hastily organized to provide for those who offered themselves as its first students.

Incalculable benefits to the state and the nation have come from the lives and influence of the men and women of character who have served on its faculties, and highly important contributions to science, art, and government have been made by the young men and women who have received a part of their life training on this campus, and have gone into their places in the world.

Possibility of a university here was one of the subjects of conversation, tradition says, among those pioneers who spent an August night on Mount Oread upon their first arrival from the East to found a free-state town in Kansas. The first map of Lawrence shows city blocks platted for university purposes. Each territorial constitution in turn, and the state constitution when it was adopted, provided for higher education for the young people of the prairie state.

The Topeka constitution of 1855 provided for the establishment of a university for the promotion of literature, the arts, sciences, medical, and agricultural instruction, and the Free-State legislature under this authority voted to establish a state university at Lawrence.

The Lecompton constitution of 1857 asked the President of the United States to set aside 72 sections of land "solely for the use of said seminary," and the Leavenworth constitution of 1858 provided that, "as the means of the state will admit, educational institutions of a higher grade shall be established by law."

Finally, the Wyandotte constitution of July, 1859, later adopted as the constitution of the state, directed the establishment by law of a state university, "for the promotion of literature and the arts and sciences."

WHILE the constitution makers were planning for the future, the settlers in the free-state outpost of Lawrence were early taking steps to bring into reality the "seminary of higher learning" they had visualized. Naturally, they turned to their benefactor, one of the founders of the New England Emigrant Aid Society, Amos A. Lawrence, and from him received every encouragement. As early as 1856 he asked Charles Robinson, later to become governor of the state, and a liberal benefactor of the State University, to spend some money in laying foundations for a "Free-State College." The next year Mr. Lawrence transferred to the local trustees notes that had been given him by the Lawrence University of Appleton, Wisconsin, aggregating with interest $11,696.14.

The following year a group, representing the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, undertook to found a university. A committee headed by Dr. Charles E. Miner obtained a charter from the territorial legislature, and with title to the "North College" property from the city, started erection of a building 36 by 60 feet in dimensions, two stories high.

This committee hoped to put its "Lawrence University" project on such a firm basis that the Amos Lawrence gift would be available, and that other gifts would be received. This group issued a printed circular, listing six faculty members, and outlining in detail courses for a three-year academic department, a three-year scientific department, and a four-year collegiate department. One session of three months was held in the Unitarian church building starting in September, 1859.

That same summer, a group of Congregationalists had investigated Kansas as a site for a denominational college, and obtained tentative agreements giving them the Amos Lawrence fund, but the drought of 1860 which hampered the Presbyterians in their building project, discouraged the Congregationalists. They later founded their college at Topeka (Washburn College).

FRIENDS of education, still courageous, formed a new committee, chartered in 1861, under the auspices of the Episcopal church, for the organization of “Lawrence University of Kansas.” Doctor Miner was one of the incorporators, but the principal agent of the enterprise was the Reverend Charles Reynolds, rector of the Episcopal church at Lawrence. Dissensions prevented progress, and in 1863 the city of Lawrence repossessed itself of the North College property for a city school site, over the protest of the Reverend R. W. Oliver, successor to the Reverend Mr. Reynolds. Two days later occurred the Quantrill raid, which again diverted attention from education.

A legislative act of February 11, 1863, located a state university at Lawrence, provided the city of Lawrence gave a tract of 40 acres and raised an endowment of $15,000. Charles Robinson offered to furnish the required 40 acres from his land “above the city,” if the city would deed him a half-block immediately south of the school foundations on Mount Oread.

This was done, and even before the first building had arisen on the site between Tenth and Eleventh, Ohio and Indiana—the original Mount Oread—beginnings had been made in assembling the present campus, in a tract extending from Thirteenth to Sixteenth street, along the west side of Oread avenue and the present lilac hedge. The western limits of this original tract were midway between the Chemistry and Administration buildings of the present.

Legislative action of March 1, 1864, established the University, and the governor named a board of regents. Three weeks later, the Reverend R. W. Oliver, rector of the Protestant Episcopal church of Lawrence, was elected chancellor and president of the regents (although not a member of that board). By assembling interest on the Amos Lawrence notes and balances from relief funds contributed to sufferers in the Quantrill raid, the regents resumed construction, and finished a stone building 50 feet square and three stories high, on the foundations begun by the Presbyterians and added to somewhat by the Episcopalians.

With care to distribute faculty memberships among different religious denominations, the regents named as the first faculty, Eliil Jay Rice, David Hamilton Robinson, and Francis Huntington Snow. The first named remained in Kansas only a year, but the others remained for long periods and Doctor Snow gave his whole lifetime to the upbuilding of the institution, filling many years with teaching, serving a dozen years as its chancellor, and by his indefatigable interest in scientific matters endowing the University with a spirit that has brought it into national prominence through the men of science it has contributed to American industry and education.

VISION has ever outstripped actuality in the life of the University of Kansas.

The very morning in September, 1866, that the carpenters finished their work on the original building, the prospective students were invited in for conference, and the opening exercises of the new institution were held.

“Our first class consisted of 22 boys and 18 girls" from 15 to 25 years of age,” wrote Doctor Snow to a friend in Massachusetts. "None of them was ready for the Freshman class. The faculty hurriedly made a preparatory course of two years to meet the exigency."

Meeting exigencies has been a part of the University administration from that time forward.

When John Fraser was elected to become chancellor, his salary was to be $3,000 a year. The legislature that winter failed to include the item; a vacancy occurred in the teaching staff, and General Fraser came anyway, accepting the first year the $1,600 provided for the teacher.

IN SPITE of the handicaps which the University has always faced, it ever has been a growing institution. It was founded in a period in which the state was in a most desperate financial situation, and drought and insect pests harassed the people.

1 Later enrollments brought the year’s total to 15.
Its first active chancellor, John Fraser (Chancellor Oliver was a member of the Board of Regents rather than of the teaching staff), found it a preparatory school inadequate to its needs, even at that time. He left it housed in a beautiful and commodious building (Fraser Hall), said to have been the largest school building in the country at the time, with classes fully organized, and doing work of collegiate grade. 2

Chancellor Fraser had been a military man, with the militarist's impatience at delay. However, he remained until two classes had been graduated, and was succeeded by the Reverend James Marvin, of Meadeville, Pennsylvania.

Chancellor Marvin brought to his work high ability as an organizer. He harmonized a disorganized faculty situation, and met the problems arising from further legislative curtailments. In his time the preparatory department reached its maximum, the College of Arts nearly doubled its enrollment, the departments of law and music were established, and the normal department and graduate study were begun.

Chancellor Lippincott's administration from 1882 to 1889 saw the establishment of courses in pharmacy and of art, and the discontinuance of the normal department, which had been started by Chancellor Marvin on legislative instructions.

Professor Snow, one of the three men who had formulated the first courses of study for the University, back in 1866, and who had continued an indefatigable member of the faculty over the years, was called to the Chancellorship in 1890, following the illness and resignation of Chancellor Lippincott, and a short interim administration of Regent W. C. Spangler.

One of the first things Chancellor Snow did was to effect a reorganization of the University, in 1891 discontinuing the preparatory department, and establishing the Schools of Liberal Arts, Engineering, Law, Fine Arts, and Pharmacy. Definite organization of the School of Medicine, long dreamed of, came almost at the last of his administration.

Chancellor Snow, valedictorian of his class at Williams college, had aspired to the chair of Greek in the newly established University, but the apportionment of subjects gave him mathematics and natural science, which so interested him in entomology that he made it his life work. The University's splendid collections of the present are monuments to his devotion.

Attention to detail marked his life. Page upon page of his accession book contains entries in his own handwriting. Day by day for the forty years that he was at the University he kept a detailed weather record that gives the University one of the oldest meteorological records in Kansas.

His research into Kansas entomology, disclosed more than 200 new species of insects of all orders. He was the first to catalog Kansas birds, describing more than 300 varieties.

After Chancellor Snow's retirement W. C. Spangler again filled out the year until the appointment in 1902 of Dr. Frank Strong, then president of the University of Oregon. The University here had then grown from the preparatory school of the 1860's to an institution of eight different schools, with a student enrollment of more than 1200, and a faculty of 175.

When Dr. Frank Strong came to Kansas thirty years ago, old North College was still in use, and on the present campus stood Fraser, the Medical (now Journalism) building, Snow Hall, Spooner library, and the Chancellor's residence, Blake hall, Fowler shops, and the old heating plant. Chemistry building and Dyche Museum were just being completed.

With a rapidly growing student body, need for buildings was pressing, and the engineering and geology buildings, engineering laboratory, and Green hall were erected. The east unit of the Administration building was constructed, and buildings were placed on the first School of Medicine campus, provided for through the generosity of Dr. Simeon Bell of Kansas City.

In the 18 years that Doctor Strong was Chancellor, attendance increased from 1200 to 4200, the faculty from 175 to 256, and the graduating classes from 200 to 425. Since 1920 he has been professor of law.

Dr. Ernest Hiram Lindley has been Chancellor since 1920, in a period of stabilization of the University organization, of expansion, of state service, and of the bringing of the building equipment forward in accordance with the needs of a growing institution.

Early in Dr. Lindley's administration, plans took form for a memorial to the University's losses in the World War, and resulted in the Kansas Memorial Union, and the first units of the stadium, which was finished with funds from other sources.

Housing of women students was studied, with the result that several co-operative houses were established. University-operated residence halls for women were later provided by the state in Corbin hall and in the gift of Watkins hall by Mrs. J. B. Watkins. The Auditorium and new Snow hall for biological departments have been erected.

Chief in the building program of this administration is the progress made on the medical center at Kansas City, Kan., where a 110-bed ward building and a nurses’ home flank the administration building with its clinics, dispensary, and class rooms, and makes it possible to envision the medical plant designed for the Kansas City site.

This decade’s building program is estimated to have totalled $3,336,000, of which $866,000 was in gifts to the state and the rest from legislative appropriation.

A comprehensive program for beautification of the campus is nearing completion, with campus drives paved and a great part of the campus landscaped.

During Dr. Lindley’s administration, a plan of student government through the Men’s Student Council and the Women’s Self-Government Association was devised and put into effect.

Re-establishment of supervision of the University by a non-political Board of Regents six years ago reaffirmed the principle of academic freedom, already well established on the campus of Kansas.

The School of Business, organized in 1924, has become firmly established.

Direct and tangible service to the State is given by the University through the Geological survey, the Food and drug laboratory, water and sewage laboratory, and the field surveys in entomology and sociology and by the school service bureau. The extension division, by correspondence study and extension classes, adds 2000 to the number each year receiving definite instruction from the University.

ACHIEVEMENTS of the University of Kansas faculty and graduates can only be suggested here. Men and women with the Kansas imprint are to be found in all quarters of the globe. They are holding commanding positions in science, journalism, engineering, and education. Current directories show a higher proportion of K.U. graduates distinguished in engineering than from any except two large Eastern professional schools. Outstanding character of Kansas work is generally recognized among educators.

Mention may be made of only a few, including Professor Robert Kennedy Duncan, whose plans for industrial chemistry first worked out here brought about the founding of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research at Pittsburgh, with him as its head. His successor and present head of the Institute is also of Kansas training, and a half its staff is from K.U.

Others of the “Bailey’s boys,” trained under Dr. E. H. S. Bailey, now nearing 50 years connection with the University of Kansas, and an emeritus professor of chemistry, included E. V. McCollum, discoverer of vitamins; E. C. Franklin, former president of the American Chemical Society and this year the recipient of the Willard Gibbs medal; and the late E. E. Slosson, founder of Science Service, as well as a teacher, author, and editor.

Mention should be made of James H. Canfield, who brought to the classroom an amazing personality and a brilliant understanding of American history, civics, and the Constitution of the United States; and Ephraim Miller, teacher of mathematics and human living, and for a time Dean of the College; and William Herbert Carruth, whose poetry brought notice to the University; and James Woods Green, first Dean of Law; and L. E. Sayre, for more than thirty years Dean of the School of Pharmacy; and Frank W. Blackmar, who applied theories of sociology to the intensely practical service of prison reform; and L. L. Dyche, originator and chief collector for the natural history museum; and Handel T. Martin, whose search and labor added much to the knowledge about Kansas fossils.

Then there was Samuel Wendell Williston, who made Kansas a center of knowledge on geological paleontology, and gave inspiration to many students who later ranked high in that field; and Erasmus Haworth, now retired, who popularized geological information and was largely instrumental in establishing the Kansas Geological Survey. There was Lucien L. Blake who was sending under-water signals in the Kaw before Marconi spanned the Atlantic without wires; and A. M. Wilcox, who spent his declining years as curator of the classical museum.

No less than 25 present members of the University teaching staff have been with the institution for 30 years or more, adding year by year the impress of their knowledge and their influence on the lives of the young people of Kansas. Several are on an emeritus basis, but most of them are still actively engaged in their teaching work.

The story of others whose services to the University is in continual remembrance follows the listing of Candidates for Degrees.

Gifts - Honors - Memorials

Gifts in numbers have come to the University of Kansas from its very founding—lands, buildings, service, scholarships—and the University in turn has sought to perpetuate the memory of the donors. Its buildings bear the names of men who have toiled that the University might be established and of men whose liberality has made the buildings possible. A bronze plate here recalls a donor; another plaque commemorates the life and service of some revered faculty member, or some son of the University who has served well his state. Less tangible, but no less valuable, are the scholarships and prizes, many of which are in themselves memorials, and all bear testimony to the interest that friends of the University have in its welfare and in that of its students.

Two notable gifts of recent days are the Watkins Memorial Hospital, which was dedicated at this commencement, and the Summerfield Scholarships, which have now reached their full quota, with groups in each of the four years of University instruction.

The Summerfield Scholarships were established in the summer of 1929, with the appointment of the first group of young men under a grant by Solon Summerfield, New York manufacturer, who had received degrees from this University in 1899 and 1901. Each group has been re-appointed, as was Mr. Summerfield’s intention, so that each appointee will receive a complete college course free from financial worry. Appointments this spring brought the total to 47. One student from the first group is this June completing his work for his Bachelor’s degree. Selections are made strictly upon a scholarship basis, after exhaustive examinations and tests; the stipend of each is decided according to his need.

The Watkins Memorial Hospital is the second major gift of Mrs. Watkins to the University. The first was a residence hall for self-supporting women students, and the tract of land on which it is situated, adjoining the campus. It was finished six years ago.

Gifts of land to the University began with the original 40 acres on which the older principal buildings are now situated, given by the city of Lawrence, as was part of the North College double block. The rest of this latter site was given by Sen. James H. Lane, when scarcity of funds had made it desirable to erect the first University building there on foundation already started on Mount Oread.

These 40 acres were deeded to the state by the city of Lawrence after it had obtained them from Charles Robinson, resident of Lawrence almost from its founding and the first governor of the State, in exchange for lots in the 1100 block on Louisiana.

Governor Robinson further showed his interest in the University by deeding to it his farm of 1300 acres northeast of Lawrence, valued at $150,000. Part of the farm is now leased by the city of Lawrence for an airport. Governor Robinson’s interest in the University is perpetuated by the bestowal of his name on the University gymnasium and by a marble bust in Administration rotunda.

The nine acres of the original School of Medicine site also were given the University in this year, by Doctor Simeon Bell of Kansas City, who later added 420 acres of land in Missouri and 101 lots in Rosedale, the sale of which made possible the construction of the original Bell hospital and School of Medicine class buildings. Dr. Marshall Baker added to the hospital site 18½ lots, worth $800. Five years later, when it became obvious that the original site for Bell Hospital was inadequate for a plant such as the state needed, citizens of Kansas City provided the new tract at a cost of $66,000.

The title, "Bell Memorial Hospital," was transferred to the central unit of the great hospital plant which the State is now building on the 13-acre tract at Thirty-ninth Street and Hudson Road. Four of the projected dozen buildings of the medical center have been erected.

Spooner-Thayer Art Museum carries joint honor to William B. Spooner of Boston, uncle of the wife of Chancellor Snow, who provided the building, and to Mrs. William B. Thayer of Kansas City, who gave to the University her wonderfully diversified collection of art objects, estimated to be worth at least a quarter of a million dollars. Mr. Spooner’s gift in 1894 provided also the residence occupied by the Chancellor and the land on which both buildings stand. Five years later George Fowler of Liverpool, England, a friend of Prof. L. I. Blake, gave $21,000 for Fowler Shops.

Fraser Hall commemorates the untiring efforts of the University’s first chancellor in raising funds when none seemed available. By constant effort he induced the city of Lawrence to vote $100,000 in bonds which provided the means of enclosing the building, but finished only two or three rooms. Ceaseless work brought legislative appropriations, and ultimately a completed building. After Chancellor Fraser had retired from office his name was fittingly given to what had been "University Hall."

Doctor Snow, member of the faculty from the first, and 12 years its chancellor, is remembered both in the old Snow Hall, which must soon be removed, and the new biological science building, dedicated but two years ago this Commencement. Marvin Hall is named for Frank O. Marvin, engineering dean, and son of Chancellor James Marvin.

Other buildings carrying memorial names include Dyche Museum, named for Prof. L. L. Dyché, noted naturalist and originator of present practice of mounting animals on display; Blake Hall, named for Professor L. I. Blake, physics teacher; and Green Hall, for the late James Woods Green, 40 years dean of the law school. Corbin Hall, dormitory for women students, is named for Miss Alberta Corbin, professor of German, who with the aid of women's clubs of Kansas was largely instrumental in obtaining dormitories for college women of Kansas, and Watkins Hall for Mrs. J. B. Watkins, its donor. Watson Library honors Miss Carrie Watson, an early graduate, and librarian emerita, and Haworth Hall is named for the geologist, Erasmus Haworth now of Wichita.

Two war memorial projects on the campus represent investments of $850,000, much of which was contributed by alumni, students, and friends of the University. Nearly $400,000 of the contributions went into the Memorial Stadium, which has been finished through bond issues of the Athletic Association, and nearly $300,000 of contributions have gone into the erection and partial completion of the first units of the Kansas Memorial Union.

At the time of the campaign to raise $1,000,000 for the Memorial Stadium and Memorial Union, friends of the late Dean James Woods Green joined the movement and raised a fund of $33,000, with which was erected the statue in front of the Law Building. The bronze was designed by Daniel Chester French.

In the spring of 1922, Mrs. A. Henley of Lawrence gave a large residence, just a few steps from the campus, to be the social and executive center of the University Y.W.C.A. It is known as "Henley House."

In 1918, Dr. J. L. Porter of Paola gave to the University a farm of 160 acres in Miami County, and valuable securities, making a total gift of $33,000, income from which was to be used to further scholarship and research at the School of Medicine. The Porter Scholarship is awarded annually to the outstanding member of the senior class. The fund provides also important lectureships.

The will of the late Mrs. Nellie S. Boylen, of Kansas City, gave to the University a fund of some $70,000 to promote research at St. Margaret's hospital, under the direction of the University's School of Medicine. This will has just recently been fully probated.

The will of the late Harry J. Diffenbaugh of Kansas City, Mo., provides a fund of $50,000, interest of which is to be used in aiding young people of that city who desire to attend the University of Kansas. The will has not been fully probated.

A bequest for the University was made by Selden L. Whitcomb, professor of English, and Mrs. Whitcomb, both of whom died last year.

KANSAS MEMORIAL UNION, itself a memorial building, displays the pictures and the record of the 128 men and two women who died as the direct result of the World War. The names are cast in bronze in the entrance way of the building. Elsewhere in the building a large panel proclaims that Alfred Cecil Alford, first lieutenant of the twentieth Kansas, was killed in action in the Philippines, "The first son of the University to die on the field of battle." (His mother, by the way, was in that little group who sought admission to the University when it first opened its doors.)

The University memorials do not, however, unduly exalt the military. In a class room in Fraser is a bronze marker inscribed: "Here taught for 14 years James Hulme Canfield, professor of history and political science . . . 'He loved this state and was loved by its children'."

In the central hall of the Administration building is another memorial to Professor Canfield, who later became chancellor of the University of Nebraska. In the same hall is a tribute to Chancellor Snow, and in new Snow Hall a corner is set aside in the entomology museum for his old desk and chair, and the little microscope which was the only equipment of the kind the University had in those days.

Also to be found in the central hall of Administration building is the memorial dedicated last commencement to Ephraim Miller, member of the faculty from 1874 to 1910. The class of 1881, at its semi-centennial reunion, provided the plaque and unveiled it with the tribute, "An accomplished scholar and an inspiring teacher." Another bronze has the likeness of David Hamilton Robinson, first professor of Latin.

The same central hall of Administration Building has pictures of half a dozen graduates of the University who have served also on its board of regents. The list includes Charles Sumner Gleed, A.B. 1880, regent from 1887 to 1893 and 1896-7; James Willis Gleed, 1907-1911; George Scott Hopkins, 1901 to 1913; Frank Grant Crowell, 1895 to 1907; William Yost Morgan, regent from 1907 to 1911, and also chairman of the present Board of Regents from 1924 to 1930; and Charles F. Scott, 1891 to 1901.

Plaques on which are inscribed from year to year names of students of outstanding scholastic attainment include the one in the Memorial Union for the "Honor Men" of the University, now numbering nine; the Williston Award in Geology, and the Dean P. F. Walker award in the School of Engineering and Architecture.

Placed among the pictures of American editors in the Journalism Building is a painting of Professor E. M. Hopkins, who taught journalistic writing in the University 30 years ago. Friends of Professor C. G. Dunlap two years ago presented a portrait of him to the library.

A portrait of Judge Nelson Timothy Stephens, by whose advice in 1875 the School of Law was established, is being presented at this Commencement. It is the gift of his daughter, Kate Stephens, of New York, a graduate in the class of 1875.

At this Commencement will be unveiled also a bronze marker on "The Prairie Acre," a small section of the campus where, on the south slope, south of Blake Hall, lies virgin Kansas soil. It is intended that this small tract shall ever remain as it was first seen by the settlers of Lawrence, with its prairie grass and its prairie flowers uncultivated.

Overlooking the Prairie Acre and the Wakarusa valley is the stone bench that commemorates the fact that nearly sixty years ago the Pi Beta Phi sorority was established at the University, the first of that group of social organizations which now provide the University homes for a goodly share of the students.

Numerous memorials of the various graduating classes are to be found on the campus, starting with a framed picture of the Temple of Karnak, that was given by the first class.

Miles Wilson Sterling, A.B. 1883, A.M. 1893, is this year rounding out 49 years of active teaching. He is the University historian, and was author of "The Quarter Centennial History of the University of Kansas."

OVER THE YEARS many prize and scholarship awards have been established at the University. Some of these are self-explanatory as they appear in the annual Commencement announcement of honors, but the circumstances of the establishment of others are not always as evident.
