Section I. CANTEEN STORES

1. GENERAL
The Japanese Army establishes canteens for their personnel. At present, there is little information available regarding canteens located in rear areas. Those canteens of which information is available apparently do not carry many articles. Tobacco, sake and beer appear to be their main items for sale. The Navy canteens seem to be better stocked than those of the Army.

The Japanese apparently have a gratuitous issue for their soldiers. Information shows that here the main items of issue are sweets, cigarettes and beer. Naturally this issue has ceased in areas where the Japanese have been pressed.

Comfort bags are items which are received by Japanese soldiers and it appears that they are greatly appreciated. According to prisoners of war, there are two types of these bags: those received from civilian organizations and those received from the Army. Comfort bags contain such articles were sent out from Japan, since there is also a shortage in your area.

2. POST EXCHANGES AND SHIP STORES

AMENITIES IN THE JAPANESE ARMED FORCES

"Japanese soldiers in FRENCH INDO CHINA had special Army canteens (GUNSHUHO) established for their benefit. There, they could eat and buy whatever they wanted at extremely low prices. Many Japanese civilians had come from JAPAN to run those canteens and some had brought their families too."

Section II. AMUSEMENTS

5. GENERAL

It appears from information gathered that the Japanese do not make too great an effort to furnish athletic equipment to their troops. One prisoner of war stated that as far as he knew there was no organized athletics in the Japanese Army. Local Japanese district headquarters apparently indicated that this is not entirely true because in rear areas the troops have athletic meetings. There is little evidence to support the theory that an athletic program is carried out in forward areas. In fact it appears that no athletic equipment is carried to these areas and that any participation in games must be done with make-shift equipment.

Evidence indicates that the Army makes an attempt to provide occasional movies for the troops. They apparently do not furnish movies to any great degree and there is little information as to the type of movies shown to the troops. One American war prisoner was apparently rather eager to see a movie, because he infiltrated the Allied lines to see a picture in which Ginger Rogers was playing.

The Japanese apparently have organizations similar to American United Service Organization shows which are for the entertainment of their troops. It appears that these units do not travel to forward areas. They made several appearances in the South West PACIFIC Islands but soon returned to JAPAN due to Allied bombings.

The Japanese insure one form of amusement by allowing their brothels to forward areas. One prisoner of war has stated that brothels are immediately established where there are any large number of troops. Majority of the women of the Japanese brothels are Japanese, Koreans and Chinese. Although the Japanese apparently waste no time in establishing their brothels, it appears that the demand greatly exceeds the supply. This condition practically excludes the enlisted personnel, and only officers are able to take advantage of these places of business.

There appears to be quite a bit of difference of opinion among prisoners of war as to who owns and controls the brothels. The statement of a prisoner of war, who was a brothel owner in BURMA, and several lists of brothel requisitions, which have been captured in South West PACIFIC Area, indicate that brothels are privately owned but under military supervision. Information available indicates that the venereal rate among Japanese troops in South West PACIFIC Area is excessively low.

Japanese troops are usually granted leave when in the homeland but evidence indicates that they have no policy of leave or rotation in the South West PACIFIC Area.

(a) Prisoner of War TSUNO, Keisahin (JA 14-5030), Superior Private, member of 144 Infantry Regiment, captured captured OIVI, 9 November 1942 stated: "Gambling is strictly prohibited in the Japanese Army, and when it was discovered that some of the Japanese soldiers were gambling, cards were taken away from them." (ATIS Interrogation Report, Serial No. 34, page 5)

(b) Prisoner of War TOMITA, Tomaoki, First Class Private, member of the 112 Infantry Regiment, captured at SIRZWEYA, 12 February 1944, stated: "As for the songs the troops sang, there were none that could be said to be in general use since most sang those which were popular in their own part of JAPAN." (Source available on request)

6. ATHLETICS

(a) According to a petty officer second class the "SHUKAI SHO" (probably mess hall or day room) on KWAJALEIN had magazines, phonographs, ping-pong sets, record and radio sets. At the headquarters of 6 Base Force, sake and cigarettes were available. Volleyball was popular.

"A seaman first class complained about the lack of recreational facilities on KWAJALEIN in spite of the equipment listed above and the fact that he was able to see 32 movies on Sundays. As a Catholic, he attended masses regularly on Sundays. According to this prisoner of war, the recreation room at SASEBO, where he took his basic training, was poor, while that of YOKOSUKA impressed him favorably because it offered a variety of food and drinks and had waitresses, baths, movies and stage shows." (A-160 30 August 1944, pages 6-7)

(b) Extract from handwritten routine order issued 7 June 1942, by 55 Transport Regiment: "Baseball games by TAKAMORI Force."

c) Prisoner of War TSURUTA, Masatoshi (JA USA147292), Second Lieutenant (Medical Officer), member of 141 Infantry Regiment, captured TALASEA Area, stated: "At RAKUME, athletic meetings, SUMO exhibitions and plays were sometimes arranged for entertainment of troops. Baseball was frequently played in PHILIPPINES but no sports equipment was brought to NEW BRITAIN. No recreational facilities in the field." (ATIS Interrogation Report, Serial No. 453, page 12)

d) Prisoner of War SASAYAMA, Jun (JA 145331), Sergeant, member of 50 Independent Antiaircraft Battalion, captured off TROBIAND ISLANDS, 23 March 1943, stated: "As for as he knew there were no organized athletics in the Japanese Army." (ATIS Interrogation Report, Serial No. 189, page 10)

e) Prisoner of War YAMADA, Toshio, First Class Private, member of the 124 Infantry Regiment, captured on GUADALCANAL, 9 February 1943, stated: "There are organizations at home which buy and collect the latest popular records and send them to the camps. 2. Managers may close down or suspend the operation of their establishments only with the permission of the officer in charge of MANILA Sector Line of Communications Duties. In such cases, the manager will present a statement for recompense for any losses or for any other inconvenience.

3. Authorized restaurants and houses of relaxation will be used only by soldiers and army civilian employees.

Permission is necessary before anyone joins the establishment.

9. The location of and the buildings used as authorized restaurants and houses of relaxation must have the approval of the Officer in Charge of MANILA Sector Line of Communications Duties. 10. Hostesses (geisha, waitresses, maids) may, as a general rule, be re-hired at the expiration of their term of contract. This does not apply to persons who have not been overseas at least a year. Those wishing to continue their employment will so notify the Officer in Charge of MANILA Sector Line of Communications Duties for his approval. The hostesses will take care of their own expenses for clothing, hairdressing, cosmetics and the like. The diagnosis of an army physician will be the basis for determining whether any particular illness is due to overwork.

20. The names and assigned units of revelers guilty of misconduct will be reported by the managers to the MANILA Sector Line of Communications Office.

It may also be necessary, however, to examine such other employees as may be instructed.

24. The army physicians will make the necessary reports on health after each examination (Appendix A, Form No. 14), and affix their seals thereto.

25. Persons failing the physical examinations or receiving unfavorable diagnosis will be forbidden to entertain guests while under treatment.

"At FORMOSA, where 22 other girls bound for SINGAPORE were taken on board, and at SINGAPORE they transferred to another ship, arriving at RANGOON on 28 August 1942."

"At RANGOON they were divided into groups of 20 to 30 girls in each and dispersed to various parts of BURMA, each group being attached to various regiments, units or formations, so that each had its own brothel (a)."

"Prisoner of war's group was attached to 114 Infantry Regiment. They spent some months at GOOUNGOO, MEKTILA, and at MAYMYO, following their trade, and then arrived at MYITKYINA (about January 1943). There were already two brothels established in MYITKYINA, so altogether there were three brothels with 63 girls in all; prisoner of war's house, known as KYOBI, with 22 Korean girls; the KINSUI house, with 20 Korean girls; and the MOMOYOMA house with 21 Chinese girls, who had been purchased from CANTON on the same conditions as the Koreas. There were Japanese girls in houses in the rear areas, as for example at MAYMYO where they formed two of the eight houses there, but none in the forward areas.

Every "comfort girl" was employed on the following contract conditions. She received fifty percent of her own gross takings and was provided with free passage, free food and free medical treatment. The passage and medical treatment were provided by the Army authorities. The food was purchased by the brothel owner, with the assistance of the Army supply depots. The owners made other profits by selling clothing, necessities and luxuries to the girls at exorbitant charges. When a girl is able to repay the sum of money paid to her family, plus interest, she should be provided with a free return passage to KOREA, and then considered free. But owing to war conditions, no one of prisoner of war's group had so far been allowed to leave; although in June 1943, 15 Army Headquarters had arranged to return home those girls who were free from debt, and one girl who fulfilled those conditions and wished to return was easily persuaded to remain.

"In prisoner of war's house the maximum gross takings of a girl were around 1500 yen per month, the minimum around 300 yen per month, or by rule of the house, the girl had to pay to the brothel owner a minimum of 150 yen per month."

The scale of charges and time-table was fixed by instructions from the regiment, the time-table being so contrived that officers, noncommissioned officers and men were not met each other at the same time. The schedule was strictly adhered to; and noncommissioned officers and men were supposed to visit the brothel only once weekly, as often as they wished. Payment was made on a ticket system, the girl retaining the ticket, which was of cardboard about two inches square, bearing the name of the house, the regimental seal, and the price of the ticket. In prisoner of war's house the schedule was originally laid down as follows:

Another brothel, the SUIKO EN, was reserved for officers only.

"There was a strict order for the use of contraceptives; so that according to prisoner of war, cases of venereal diseases were due only to the carelessness of the soldiers themselves. During the one and one-half years prisoner of war was running the house in MYITKYINA, there were only six cases of venereal disease, who were sent to the Medical Officer of 2 Field Hospital 18 Division for treatment. There were some cases of venereal disease among the soldiers of 114 Infantry Regiment, but prisoner of war never had any trouble with regimental headquarters on this score."

"During their visits to the brothels troops read, received military subjects, preferring to escape from their normal military surroundings. Prisoner of war said he never had a chance to overhear any interesting military secrets, and considered to the presence of the military police, and that the men were afraid to talk freely, even if they had anything to say. The usual subjects of complaint among the men were criticisms of their officers, lack of supplies and homesickness."

"The girls had seen some Allied propaganda leaflets but had not read them, except that one girl remembered one about the hopeless situation in MYITKYINA which at the time she did not believe. They had not heard any Forward Broadcasts, but remembered the men openly discussing a 'radio broadcast'."

"On 31 July, about midnight a party of 63 girls from the three brothels in MYITKYINA, and the brothel owners, etc. began their evacuation from MYITKYINA. The girls wore dark green Army clothing on top of their civilian clothes. They crossed the IRAWADDY in ten boats. The majority of the remaining troops had already departed from MYITKYINA, but the sick and wounded were left behind. The girls remarked on this point 'It was no use to get them across, because once across these soldiers couldn't walk. It was better to float them down the river with the hope that they might get through. They landed north of Waingrau where they remained in the jungle until 4 August. The party then began to trek in the wake of the retreating troops. On 7 August, they became involved in a skirmish and in the confusion the party split up.

"The 20 Chinese girls remained behind in the jungle, and gave themselves up to Chinese troops. One party of about 20 Korean girls followed on in the wake of the Japanese troops, and were seen by another prisoner of war on 19 August, a small disconsolate group still following on. Prisoner of war's party went to shelter in an abandoned native house where they remained for two days while prisoner of war tried to construct a raft; with them was a wounded Japanese soldier. On 10 August, the house was surrounded by a number of Kachins under the command of an English officer, and they were captured. Of the original party of 63 girls four had died during the journey and two had been shot, mistaken for Japanese soldiers." (SEATIC Interrogation Report, Serial No. 2, dated 30 November 1944, pages 10-13)

(2) Extract from letter written by prisoner of war, a well-educated man of 23 years, nominally a sergeant wireless operator, who had spent the greatest part of five years in service either in the cook-house or under training:

"Brothers-in-arms

"While the fighting was still going on at MYIT-KYIN and COLONEL RABAT, five in the shelter-trough almost every day. Later he arranged that the girls should cross the river ahead of the wounded soldiers. This is the truth." (Source available on request)

(3) Prisoner of War MITSUI, Junichoku, Superior Private, member of the 112 Infantry Regiment, captured LITWEDET, 10 February 1944. Although he vehemently maintains that he had never entered an IANSHO (House of Relaxation) he seems well-informed about their organization, and gives the following information:

"Each division had five or six IANSHO (House of Relaxation) attached. Korean women as well as Japanese women were used in them. The charges for an hour's entertainment were: officers 5 yen, noncommissioned officers 4 yen, and privates 3 yen. The use of preventives was periodically." Section III. NEWS

Information is offered to show that the Japanese carry out strict censorship in the Army. It appears that the amount of news which is handled to the troops is left to the discretion of the unit commander. There are several cases where garrisons publish field news sheets, but most prisoners of war are of the opinion that these publications do not print a true version of the news. Since it is not always possible to have access to this type of news, many unit commanders print news sheets to be posted on bulletin boards. It must be kept in mind that this news is censored radio news and it is left to the discretion of the officers as to what will be posted. There are several references listed which show that many troops never received war news in any form.

Further evidence shows that it is the exceptional unit which possesses radios for the benefit of the enlisted personnel. Most officers have access to radios but information indicates that the majority of programs which are available are propaganda programs.

12. NEWSPAPERS

a. Field News Sheets

(1) Prisoner of War OTSUKA, Hideo (JA/USA) 147265, Second Lieutenant (Medical Officer), member of 65 Brigade, captured NUMOND, 29 March 1944, stated:

"Only news accessible was that published in the field newspapers which came out weekly. The last one prisoner of war saw was October 1943. These papers always contained news of Japanese victories, number of airplanes shot down, etc. However, it was thought these publications were grossly erroneous. Bad news was never published. Newspaper was about foolscap size, and circulation was about 200 copies."

(2) Prisoner of War YAMAMOTO, Hisashi, Leading Seaman, member of RABAUL Hospital, captured off KAVIENG, 22 February 1944, stated:

"At RABAUL Naval Hospital, prisoner of war saw the news sheet published by air units at VUNAKANAU. He could remember nothing of significance from it."

(SOPAC Interrogation Report, Serial No. 01068, page 8)

(3) Prisoner of War SATO, Susumu (JA/USA) 147143, Sergeant Major, member of 141 Infantry Regiment, captured TALASEA, 16 March 1944, stated:

"AKATSUKI Force news bulletin was called 'JINCHU SHIMBUN' with a circulation of about 500. News covered South West PACIFIC area and gave all battle results with, of course, figures which he thought belied the truth."

(ATTIS Interrogation Report, Serial No. 475, Section 13)

(4) Prisoner of War TAJIMA, Isao (JA/USA) 147097, Superior Private, member of 1 Independent Mixed Regiment, captured PAPITALAI, 9 March 1944, stated:

(5) Prisoner of War IMAMURA, Masayuki, Corporal, member of 55 Mountain Regiment, Captured at KWAON RIDGE, 7 February 1944, stated:

"The men received the 'BURMA SHIMBUN' every day, even in fairly forward areas. They read this but did not take it too seriously as they knew that it was full of propaganda. He also received an organizational newspaper from JAPAN in which he immediately recognized the stock propaganda terms of the BURMA publication."

(Source available on request)

(6) Prisoner of War MITSUI, Junchoku, Superior Private, member of 119 Infantry Regiment, captured at LETWEDET, 10 February, 1944, stated:

"In BURMA, an Army newspaper section produced a newspaper which was issued free to the troops. Little or no news was given as to how the Japanese Army was faring in other theaters of war or even in other theaters in BURMA. He thought that the newspaper toned down any Japanese reverses. The company commander sometimes informed the men of some good items of news but he was of the opinion that news was deliberately withheld from the troops because it was mainly bad news."

(Source available on request)

(7) Prisoner of War ARASE, Kenji, Leading Seaman, member of 751 Air Group, captured off KAVIENG, 22 February 1944, stated:

b. Bulletins

Prisoner of War MATSUMOTO, Hajime, (USA)147113, Superior Private, member of 141 Infantry Regiment, captured near TALASEA, 29 March 1944, stated:

Since he was attached to regimental headquarters he was able to read Army bulletins covering the war situation as issued by headquarters. However, the rank and file of the troops in the field did not receive any news excepting on rare occasions when the commanding officer read bulletins to their men. At first only good news was published, but of late he believed the policy had been changed and that good and bad news were both published."

His companions had mischievously utilized spare sets at 18 Army Headquarters and Ordnance Depot to listen to Allied broadcasts although few of them understood sufficient English to comprehend gist of talks. There were not many radio sets in RABUAL, and the available ones would certainly only be found in officers' messes and such places."
(ATS Interrogation Report, Serial No. 472, Section 13)

(SOPAC Interrogation Report. Serial No. 0805, page 9)
Section IV. MAIL

14. GENERAL
Mail for the troops is another item for which the Japanese Army makes little provision. Information indicates that they make no provision in forward areas for civilian employees. This lack of mail does not seem to have the same effect on their morale as it probably would have on Allied troops, but information available indicates that it must be considered a factor in the morale level. Probably one reason mail is not as important to the Japanese as to the Allies is that when troops with the real SAMURAI spirit leave the homeland they never expect to return. They are taught to regard themselves as no longer sons of their parents but as sons of the EMPEROR. With this figurative break of family ties it is not surprising that the lack of mail would have less effect on their morale than on that of Allied troops.

a. Sending of Mail
(1) Extract from report of mail censorship, 6 Field Military Police unit, 8 June 1943: "General Situation. No one wrote about the late Fleet Admiral YAMAMOTO during this period. In general, morale was good and the mail censorship in each unit was thorough. Restricted matter was closely watched and stricken out. However, there are still some who write about being homesick and their dislike for war and others whose writings require attention. Such traces still remain. The general situation is shown in the following summary:

"Total number of military police censors: 8."
"Remarks: Mail matter for the six days from May 26 to 31.
"Volume of mail censored: 30,000 pieces of fourth class mail"
"a. Mention of low morale, dislike for war and hope for going back: 16 cases.

(ATTs Interrogation Report, Serial No. 500, Section 13)
Section V. CONCLUSIONS

1. The Japanese Army and Navy establish canteens for those troops located in areas in which supplies are available.

2. It appears that the Japanese Army supplements the normal ration to troops with a gratuitous issue which usually consists of such articles as sweets, cigarettes, beer, and sake.

3. Comfort bags are a gratuitous issue to troops and are of two types, those issued by the Army and those from civilian charity organizations.

4. Although measures for physical training apparently play a big part in the life of the Japanese soldier, there is little provision made to carry out an athletic program in the South West Pacific area.

5. Movies and traveling shows are practically non-existent for Japanese soldiers in the forward areas of the South West Pacific Area.

6. The establishment of brothels under strict regulation is sanctioned by military authorities in any areas where there are large numbers of troops.

7. Inmates of these brothels are regularly inspected for venereal diseases.

8. There is no set policy for leave or rotation of Japanese troops in South West Pacific Area.

9. A few units publish field news sheets for their troops but on the whole only bulletins or verbal news is passed on to the Japanese soldiers.

10. It appears that few radios are available to enlisted men in the South West Pacific Area. On the other hand, officers are permitted to possess radios or to have access to them.

11. There is little provision made for troops in forward areas either to receive or send mail.

Appendix B.—POLICE REPORT ON MANILA BROTHELS

Police report on medical inspection, dated 7 February 1944, issued by MANILA Sector Line of Communications.

"To all managers:

It is desired that all managers note carefully the following police report on medical inspection for the month and take steps to make the necessary improvements.

General observations:

1. Restaurants and special clubs:

The cleaning of kitchens is generally satisfactory, but better measures of prevention against insects are necessary.

The care of chopping boards is generally unsatisfactory and they are used indiscriminately.

Cooking vessels require more thorough washing. Lavatories require more and better cleaning.

2. Houses of relaxation

Scant attention has been paid to hygienic rules and there are many cases of failure to take hygienic measures. This has been repeatedly called to the attention of many persons.

Lavatories and wash-rooms are generally unclean, nor is there proper lighting in the latter.

If the health of the employees is to be preserved, there will have to be improvements in the care of bathrooms, and the cleaning of dining-rooms. Many managers are interested in nothing beyond their own profit, and do their job with no other purpose. They exhibit no concern for the welfare of the geisha, maids or hostesses, nor bother themselves with their health or sustenance nor with such matters as bath facilities. Their selfish conduct requires restraint.
