ELENA BASTIDA is an Assistant Professor of Sociology at Wichita State University. She is currently researching the timing of life events and how they influence women's perceptions of aging. A forthcoming article entitled "Reconstructing the Social World at Sixty: Older Cubans in the U.S.A." will appear in the Gerontologist this summer.

BARBARA G. BRENTS is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Missouri-Columbia and a predoctoral fellow with the Midwest Council for Social Research in Aging. She is presently doing work on the development of old age insurance laws in the U.S. and Great Britain, and is interested in political and economic sociology, sociology of knowledge, and any attempts to make sociology radical.

TIMOTHY DIAMOND is a Research Associate with the Program on Women, Northwestern University, and a postdoctoral fellow of the Midwest Council for Social Research in Aging. He is currently completing a monograph on a participant observation study in nursing homes of which this article is a part. Another paper from the study, "Nursing Homes as Trouble," appears in a special issue on "Trouble and the Politics of Contemporary Social Control Institutions" in Urban Life.

KIRK ALAN JOHNSON is an Assistant Professor of Sociology and Corrections at the University of North Alabama. His previous publications include "Perceptual Responses to Victimization in Rural Communities" and "A Critical Commentary on Victimization Research and the Importance of Meaning Structures." His current research activities involve an analysis of interpersonal violence in barroom situations, and an assessment of informal control structures' impacts upon adolescent alcohol and drug use.

ALAN SICA, Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of Kansas, is Visiting Associate Professor at the University of Chicago for 1984-85. His recent publications include "Parsons, Jr." (AJS) and Hermeneutics (Amherst, 1984).
