ANTHONY CORTESE is an Assistant Professor of Sociology at Colorado State University. His primary research interests are in social theory, race and ethnicity, and moral development. His recent publications include “Standard Issue Scoring of Moral Reasoning: A Critique” in Merrill Palmer Quarterly and “Moral Judgment in Chicano, Black, and White Young Adults” published in Sociological Focus.

MICHAEL R. HILL received his initial Ph.D. in Geography from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln where he is currently completing a further Doctorate in Sociology. He is author of a University of Nebraska Studies Monograph, Walking, Crossing Streets, and Choosing Pedestrian Routes. His current work is focused on design theory and epistemology, the experiences of recent doctorates in academia, and the sociology of the visual arts.

ROBERT JOHN is completing his Ph.D. in Sociology at the University of Kansas. He is currently Instructor of Sociology at Haskell Indian Junior College. His primary research interests are in aging, family life, and social theory. A forthcoming work is “Service Needs and Support Networks of Elderly Native Americans: Family, Friends, and Service Agencies,” in Warren A. Peterson and Jill S. Quadagno (eds.), Social Bonds in Later Life (Sage, in press).

ALAN SICA, Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of Kansas, is Visiting Associate Professor at the University of Chicago for 1984-85. His recent publications include “Sociogenesis versus Psychogenesis: The Unique Sociology of Norbert Elias” (Mid-American Review of Sociology), “Parsons, Jr.” (AJS) and Hermeneutics (Amherst, 1984).
