RICHARD H. COON received his Ph.D. from Iowa State University. He is currently Assistant Professor of Sociology at Carroll College. His most recent interests are in critical theory and humanistic sociology. His present research work is evaluating the nursing program at Carroll College.

KIRK A. JOHNSON is an Assistant Professor of Sociology at Washburn University. His prior publications have centered upon the issues of criminal victimization/victimology, and adolescent substance use and abuse. He is currently involved in survey research projects investigating adolescent lifestyles and the concerns of Kansas youth, and contemporary community power and development issues which are confronting the citizenry and economy of Kansas.

HARLAND PRECHEL is an Assistant Professor of Sociology at SUNY-New Paltz. His current research focuses on how capital accumulation opportunities and constraints effect the rationalization process, managerial systems of control, and industrial organization. This work is based on an historical analysis of organizational change in one of the largest steel manufacturing corporations in the United States.

JOHN F. WELSH received his Ph.D. from Oklahoma State University. Currently he is an Associate Professor of Sociology at Pittsburg State University and his research focuses on the exchange between Raya Dunayevskaya and Herbert Marcuse.
