Copyright is A Bundle of Rights

Rights are held by the OWNER of the work (not necessarily the creator/author). Owners may:

• Reproduce - make copies of their works publicly or privately.
• Adapt - prepare additional works derived from their copyrighted work, (aka, derivative works).
• Distribute - Disseminate copies of their works, to the public by sale or other transfer of ownership, or by rental, lease, lending.
• Perform - Perform their work publicly (at location open to the public or to persons other than close family and social acquaintances).
• Display - Display their work publicly (applies to all works except sound recordings and architectural works).

From, Section 106 of 1976 Copyright Act and see, http://www.copyright.gov/circs/circ1.pdf
Length of Protections offered to Owners of Copyright

• Copyright Term Extension Act, 1998
  – Adds 20 years to the duration of copyright
  – Life of author plus 70 years
  – Joint work – 70 years after last surviving author’s death
Connecting the Copyright laws with Publication Agreements:

• Publishers generally request the transfer all of the rights in copyright— but grant BACK to authors some of those rights.

• Two common ways that authors give rights to publishers (and vice versa)
  – granting of licenses, sharing via contract law.
  – transferring of copyrights
  – all or some of the “bundle”, providing exclusive or non-exclusive permissions or rights.

• The agreement is negotiable.
